PENNSYLVANIA VOTE TO-DAY IS IN DOUBT

Both Taft and Roosevelt Leaders Express Confidence, but Issue Is Clouded.

FIGHT FOR STATE CONTROL

Senator Penrose's Machine Is Pitted Against Political Strength of Boss Flinn of Pittsburgh.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—In this city, as in every section of the State, will be held to-morrow the most momentous Presidential primary since the existence of the uniform primary law. The result of the State-wide election, at which National delegates will be elected and Congressional and the State Assembly candidates nominated, will, in the opinion of Republican National leaders, be crucial to the candidacies of President Taft and Col. Roosevelt. The election turns entirely upon the contest between Taft and Roosevelt for the sixty-four delegates to the Chicago convention..

The Republican machine of the city and State, directed by Senator Penrose, will undergo its first real test in a Presidential primary. Senator Penrose has declared for Taft and most, if not all, of his leaders in this city and the State are favorable to the election of Taft delegates. Opposed to the Penrose machine is former Senator Flinn of Pittsburgh, the Roosevelt State leader, and all of the men who, working under the name of Roosevelt, hope to come into political power.

While leaders of both factions upon the eve of the primary are making the usual confident predictions of success, reports indicate that much uncertainty exists as to the outcome. Certain Republican leaders say that Roosevelt's visit has had the effect of increasing his following in this city. The doubtful and half-hearted ones, they say, have been stirred to become militant, but just how far this feeling will be registered at the polls cannot be accurately estimated.

David H. Lane, Chairman of the Republican City Committee, after reports had been presented at the meeting of the City Committee to-day, predicted a united Taft delegation to the National and State Conventions.

Ziba T. Moore of the Roosevelt forces issued a statement to the effect that six of the twelve National delegates to be elected would support Roosevelt, and that the Colonel would carry the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Districts, the northwest, northeast, and West Philadelphia and Germantown sections of the city.

Republican machine leaders, while publicly expressing confidence, showed by the preparations made throughout the city at the meeting of ward committees to-night that they were facing a fight to-day of such proportions as they have not encountered in years.

The machine finds itself embarrassed by the fact that the long tried and dependable office holders will be absent, and in some divisions the polls will be manned by new men. In addition to the absence of experienced workers, the organization has found another weakness in the sentiment sweeping the country inimical to old leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 12.—Despite sweeping claims made by the Roosevelt forces that they will sweep Allegheny County at to-morrow's primaries, the Taft leaders to-night are confident they will elect at least six and probably seven out of the eight National delegates to be named. They concede the election of former Senator William Flinn.

The fight here has been exceptionally acrimonious because of the struggle between the Magee-Flinn and Oliver factions, which are lined up for Roosevelt and Taft, respectively, and battling for control of the delegations in the National and State conventions and the State Legislature.

SURE OF TAFT'S STRENGTH.

Senator Penrose in Doubt of Only Two Pennsylvania Districts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Senator Penrose left for Pennsylvania to-day, and just before he went he said he had been in conference with the various leaders and that the reports were all favorable to Taft except in two districts. Asked to specify which were the districts he refused. He admitted the possibility of the election of about fifteen Roosevelt men, and from friends of his it is learned that the Senator will not be much astonished if twenty Roosevelt men are elected out of Pennsylvania's seventy-six.

The Roosevelt men have been making the most extravagant claims about carrying the State. It is conceded on all sides that the Illinois primaries will probably have an effect on Pennsylvania.

On the Democratic side it is generally believed that Wilson will carry Pennsylvania to-morrow, and if he does he will displace Champ Clark, who at the present time is the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination.

PRINCETON MEN TO FARM.

Can Earn $2 a Day and Pay Their Way Through College.

President John Grier Hibben of Princeton University announced last night that a farm had been opened at Princeton which will provide any student who is not afraid of toil with the means of working his way through college. He urged the Brooklyn Princeton alumni, to whom he was speaking at the Brooklyn University Club, to go among the high schools and preparatory schools of Brooklyn and New York and urge industrious students to apply for work on the Princeton University farm.

Ploughing began last week, said President Hibben. There will be steady work all through the Summer vacations, and it is calculated that students will be able to earn $2 a day. He stated that the land would be tilled on a Socialistic, democratic basis, the laborer obtaining the entire product of his toil. The tract at present is ten acres in extent, but it will be increased as rapidly as students apply for work. The soil will be devoted to truck farming, and the crop will be sold to the college commons and to the various Princeton eating clubs.

President Hibben said this idea had been adopted to rid Princeton of the name of being a home for the sons of rich men. The ideal of a university, he said, was a student body representative of every class of society. Princeton, he said, had recently been making progress in the direction of true democracy, and the object which the authorities of the university have at heart for the coming term is to gather a large body of freshmen who intend to support themselves.

To accomplish this, he said, an agency had been established at Princeton, before the farming enterprise was started, to find positions for boys who had to make their own way and are determined to have a university education. This agency is still in existence, and will be conducted this year for the benefit of students who do not go in for agriculture.

THEATRE AFIRE, CROWD SITS.

Demands That Exciting Motion Picture Play Be Completed.

While a fire raged under the roof above their heads last night, two hundred persons sat calmly in a motion picture theatre at 409 Eighth Avenue and demanded that an exciting Western photo-play, which had been interrupted, be completed.

Shortly after 10 o'clock smoke curled through ventilators in the ceiling and about the heads of the spectators. Those seated in the gallery under the opening moved to other parts of the theatre. In a few minutes a thin haze of smoke had pervaded the building and the crackling of flames was heard in the loft. The operator of the motion picture machine stopped it, turned off the electric lights in the metal compartment in the front of the theatre and hurried to the street.

Miss Florence Belmont, the pianist, played a march, thinking the people would immediately leave. They retained their seats.

"Show the rest of the film," shouted a boy.

The cry was taken up by others and was interrupted by Philip Faunstone, the manager, who said a fire was in progress beneath the roof, and requested that the spectators leave.

"The fire apparatus is coming," he shouted, after his efforts had proved futile.

"Let us see the rest of the film, and we will go," some one cried.

Faunstone made a gesture of despair, and appealed to policemen who had turned in an alarm. A moment later the firemen arrived and, armed with ladders, entered the theatre. The work of ripping away the metal covering of the ceiling was begun. It was not until then that the spectators left for the street.

WOODPECKER'S PECK LEGAL.

Woman Whom It Woke at 4 A. M. Fails to Have It Stopped.

The Summer home of William B. Lawrence, a broker at 20 Broad Street, which adjoins the estate of Algernon S. Schaeffer, a banker, in North Broadway, Yonkers, is closed, and Mrs. Lawrence is at her city home, 256 West Fifty-seventh Street, all on account of a woodpecker. The woodpecker inhabits a dead tree on the edge of the Schaeffer estate, just where it adjoins that of the Lawrences.

It has lived there for a year and a half, and every morning at 4 o'clock it begins its task for the day. The noise of its pecking has awakened Mrs. Lawrence, and her neighbors as well, on many mornings, and recently she appealed to Mr. Lawrence to have the nuisance stopped.

Mr. Schaeffer replied that as pecking was a woodpecker's chief employment, he certainly would have no hand in such restraint of trade. Mrs. Lawrence explained that she could not sleep and suggested that the bird could be killed, quickly and with trifling pain. Mr. Schaeffer said he would protect the woodpecker in its pecking with his life.

Mrs. Lawrence appealed to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The officials told her that a woodpecter was meant to peck. It would be cruelty if anyone tried to stop a woodpecker from pecking, and if anyone did so, the society would be in a position to act. As long as the woodpecker was undisturbed, there was nothing the society could do.

Mrs. Lawrence saw Mayor Lennon and he referred her to the police, saying he had no jurisdiction. The police questioned whether any law dealt with woodpeckers, and appealed to the City Attorney.

That official has exhausted the law library of his office in research, and, while he is certain that a woodpecker may not commit any one of a dozen crimes without paying the penalty with its life, he can find nothing which says a woodpecker may not peck.

INSURE 2,500 FOR $4,000,000.

Chicago Concern Takes Out a Life Policy for All Its Employes.

President William A. Day of the Equitable Life has closed a contract with Montgomery Ward & Co. of Chicago for the insurance of all their employes who have been six months or more in their service by a blanket policy under what is known as the group plan. More than 2,500 lives are covered, and the insurance aggregates $4,000,000. This is the largest policy ever written in the United States.

The employes are covered on the basis of their salaries. Montgomery Ward & Co. are also qualifying under the Illinois Workmen's Compensation act, and are providing health, accident, and disability insurance to their employes through the London Guarantee and Accident Company.

President Day said yesterday that he believed this big application of the group plan was the forerunner of a general demand for this kind of insurance service by employers.

FLOWERS, BUT NO CORPSE.

Morgue Attendants Puzzled by Wreath Sent There for "Mrs. Miller."

A large floral piece, three feet in diameter, in the shape of a wreath, made up of lilies and roses, was received at the Morgue on Thursday night. A small card bore the inscription, "For the body of Mrs. Miller," and on the tag of W. Gullicksen, Florist, 130 Summit Avenue, West Hoboken, N. J., was written "Sympathy of Friends, J. Freehold and Company." When the flowers arrived the Morgue attendants thought that a body would arrive for which the flowers were intended, and they notified John Armstrong, the Morgue Superintendent, who ordered that the flowers be placed aside to await the arrival of the body.

Last night Armstrong notified the hospital authorities that the flowers were withering and that no body identified as "Mrs. Miller" had arrived. It was decided to keep the flowers until this morning and the dispose of them through the various wards of the hospital. The flowers are valued at about $25.

W. D. SLOANE DIVIDES ESTATE

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., April 12.—William Douglas Sloane of New York has transferred his real estate known as Elm Court to his wife, Emily T. Vanderbilt Sloane, and his property, Highlawn, to his daughter, Mrs. Leila Vanderbilt Field, wife of William B. Osgood Field of New York.

Mrs. Field has given a lease of the Highlawn property, with the exception of Highlawn House, to her father for the term of his life. Deeds were filed to-day in the transfers.

Highlawn House, which the Fields occupy, was built by Mrs. Sloane for her daughter and son-in-law in 1910.

WEALTHY MAN SLAIN; WOMAN IS SOUGHT

TRAGEDY IN AN AUTOMOBILE

Police Hint That Jealousy and Not Robbery May Have Been Motive for the Crime.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNN, Mass., April 12.—George E. Marsh, President of the Goodwill Soap Company, of this city, was found dead on the rocky embankment of the Point of Pines Boulevard to-day. He was murdered in an automobile and a woman figured in the tragedy, according to the theory of the police to-night.

They are hunting a woman who was seen riding with Marsh about 6 o'clock last night by Harold Cummings, who lives at 10 Ireson Avenue, next door to the Marsh residence. Others, whom the police decline to name, are said to have seen Marsh in company with a woman.

The body was discovered by J. A. Halbon of 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, and T. W. Brennan of 129 Alley Street, Lynn. They were on their way to Boston in an automobile and saw the body lying on the westerly side of the boulevard about a quarter of a mile from the Boston Revere Beach and Lynn railroad station.

Mr. Marsh established the soap concern in 1864. His brother, Caleb W. Marsh of Swampscott, was associated with him in the business. Six years ago the plant was sold to the Swift Beef Company of Chicago, but remained under the old firm name of the George E. Marsh Company, with Mr. Marsh as President.

Miss Hannah Marsh, his sister said today: "My brother left his home early yesterday afternon. He had previously telephoned to brother Caleb, who lives in Swampscott, that he was going to see a tailor named Parker Stone to get fitted for a suit of clothes.

"He usually met Caleb every afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. bowling alleys in Market Street. That is the last time I saw him alive. He had no enemies, and I cannot understand who could have killed him."

The police questioned Parker Stone, the tailor, and learned that Marsh had visited his store yesterday and had left shortly after 4 P. M. He apparently started for home, for at 5 P. M. Mrs. Wilmont Nelson of 131 Chatham Street, saw him pass her house. He lived but a short distance from the Nelson house. Mrs. Nelson says he was carrying a loaf of bread.

Police Inspector Kane declares the case one of cold-blooded murder, for no man could possibly inflict such wounds on himself. He said to-night that with the theory of robbery out of the question, he believed it highly probable that jealousy was the real motive for the crime.

"If it should be shown that Mr. Marsh was paying secret attention to a woman," he said, "it may be easy to run down the person who shot him."

After the murder, it is supposed the body was taken to West Lynn and placed inside the fence of the State Boulevard, where it was found. The discovery of the crime caused much excitement in Lynn, for Mr. Marsh was prominently identified in the business and social circles of the city. He was a member of several clubs. He had been a witness before the Federal grand jury which is investigating the affairs of the North American Rubber Company in Lynn.

Mr. Marsh was 71 years old, and in feeble health. He is known to have been in the business section of the city yesterday afternoon, and was seen to board an electric car bound toward his home. The police say he alighted from the car at Essex and Chatham Streets, in the vicinity of his residence, and that he was last seen, so far as is known, in Chatham Street about 5:30 P. M. Chief Burckes is of the opinion that when within 150 yards of his home Mr. Marsh was picked up by some one in an automobile.

"The police are completely at sea," said Chief Burckes. "I am satisfied that it is a case of murder and that the pistol shots were fired in some kind of a vehicle, supposedly an automobile, and that the tragedy occurred between 9 and 10 o'clock last night. After the shooting the body was taken in an automobile, I believe, to Sea Street extension, which is the State highway between Lynn and Revere, and was thrown over the fence, landing where it was found.

"The police have investigated a number of rumors involving the identity of persons alleged to have seen the victim between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. All theories as to the motive of the crime have failed to develop satisfactorily. A sum of money and a gold watch were found on the body, indicating that robbery was not the motive.

"Mr. Marsh is not known to have had trouble with any one or to have had any enemies. He had not owned an automobile or a horse and buggy for several years."

An autopsy was performed after which it was announced that the man was hit by five steel-pointed bullets of .32 calibre from an automatic revolver. One bullet penetrated the heart, one lodged in the liver, another entered the abdomen, while two grazed the head.

Mr. Marsh lived with his sister, Miss Hannah Marsh and two servants. He was twice married, but both wives are dead. His son, James M., and his wife, have been in California for the last two months and it is understood that Mr. Marsh was making preparation to join them. When he did not return home last night his brother Caleb, a business partner, made a fruitless search for him about the city, without, however, notifying the police.

CRITICISES DR. ELIOT'S VOTE.

Suffragist Says He Did Not Know How to Use the Ballot.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 12.—"Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, did not know how to vote intelligently the ballot placed in his hands at a Cambridge 'election,'" declared Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead to-day, in addressing the study class of the Boston Equal Suffrage Association.

The speaker was attacking the clumsy political machinery of the day, and endeavoring to show how woman's influence, when she got the vote, could be directed toward changing the system.

Mrs. Mead caused laughter when she exhibited the long ballot in the New York primaries, which, she added, defeated the will of the voters.

ENGINEERS REFUSE TO DELAY STRIKE

Employers' Move to Put Off a Reply Until Next Week Is Rejected.

93 PER CENT. VOTE TO GO OUT

Last Word of Employes Is That They Must Have Definite and Prompt Answer.

The conference committee of railroad managers representing the fifty Eastern railroads on which the locomotive engineers have voted to strike, was notified yesterday of the action of the engineers in the following letter which was sent to J. C. Stuart, Vice President and General Manager of the Erie Railroad, who is Chairman of the committee:

Broadway Central Hotel,
New York City, April 12, 1912.
Mr. J. C. Stuart, Chairman Conference Committee of Managers, 50 Church Street, New York City.

Dear Sir: In accordance with my letter of March 25, the questions involved have been referred to the individual members employed on the roads represented, and the counting of the vote has just been completed. The fifty roads' vote 93 3-10 per cent. in favor of supporting those intrusted with the settlement of the question submitted to the Conference Committee of Managers.

While a careful count shows an almost unanimous support of the committee to any extent, yet it is our earnest desire to exhaust every honorable effort to reach a settlement of the questions involved, and trust the Conference Committee of Managers may have some proposal that will bring the desired result.

Hoping you will appreciate the seriousness of the situation, and thanking you in advance for your reply, I remain yours respectfully.

W. S. STONE, G. C. E.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE OF MANAGERS,
50 Church Street, Room 580.
J. C. STUART, Chairman. A. W. SULLIVAN, Secretary.
New York, April 12, 1912.
Mr. W. S. Stone, G. C. E., Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Broadway Central Hotel, New York, N. Y.:

Dear Sir: Your letter of this date received, and will submit same to the Conference Committee of Managers for their consideration and action.

It will require several days to get the Conference Committee together, and doubt whether it can be done before the middle or latter part of next week. Yours truly,

J. C. STUART, Chairman.

This reply was considered unsatisfactory by the committee of the engineers. A vote had been taken declaring for a strike, and the members of the committee wanted definite action one way or the other. A meeting of the committee was held at the Broadway Central Hotel, after which the following letter was sent to Mr. Stuart, the letter having been drafted at once, a debate taking place before its issuance was finally determined on:

Dear Sir: Your letter by special messenger of this date reached me a few minutes ago and was placed before the Chairmen's Committee, and I am directed to inform you we cannot understand why it is necessary to receive such an indefinite reply. We are firmly of the opinion the seriousness of the situation necessitates more prompt and decisive action on the part of the managers and must insist on a more explicit answer. Awaiting your reply, yours respectfully,

WARREN S. STONE.

This letter was sent too late to be taken up by the committee of railroad managers yesterday, and action will be taken on it to-day.

At the headquarters of the engineers' committee in the Broadway Central Hotel it was stated on behalf of the committee that it has no intention of waiting for a week after an almost unanimous vote for a strike has been recorded before it takes further action. A member of the committee said:

"We must have a definite reply from the railroads in a reasonable time, or action will be taken on the strike vote. As a matter of courtesy we notified the railroads at the earliest possible moment of the strike vote in order to give them the chance of averting a strike. It is unreasonable to suppose that it would take the Chairman of the Railroad Managers' Committee a week to get the committee together. There is no justification for such delay when the vote has been taken for a strike, and the men are ready to quit as soon as they receive permission from Chief Stone. The matter is a serious one, and if the railroads do not want to see all the Eastern territory involved in a strike they will have to act on our notification more promptly than their reply indicates."

PURSUES WIFE TO CHICAGO.

W. G. Hoage of Newark Causes Arrest of Her Companion, R. Susmann.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 12.—The elopement from New York City of Roscoe Susmann, who describes himself as a gentleman of leisure, and Mrs. W. G. Hoage, a fashionably dressed woman from Newark, N. J., reached an exciting finish to-day in Assistant State's Attorney Frederic Burnham's office, when the husband of the woman tried to thrash his wife's companion with a walking stick.

"He's a Lothario, and I'm going to spoil his beauty," shouted Hoage as he wrested Susmann's cane from his grasp and chased him around the room. The angry husband was seized by detectives. Susmann wore a monocle and a suit of English clothes when arrested at a rooming house.

"Susmann and my wife ran away from home a week ago," declared Hoage. "They met somewhere in New York City. I traced them to Chicago by their baggage. I'm going to have my wife back. I'll stay in Chicago to prosecute the man who has broken up my home."

"I'm not a working man," said Susmann. "Hoage is a professional accountant and didn't have the time to devote to his wife that a loving woman demands."

Mrs. Hoage is about thirty years old; her husband and Susmann are about five years her senior. Susmann is to have a hearing before Judge Scully.

NEW FRENCH LINER A MAURETANIA RIVAL

Thrilling Contests for Ocean Supremacy Probable—Sails Next Week on Her Maiden Trip.

The new French liner France, which will sail on her maiden voyage from Havre to New York next Saturday, had her speed trials off Saint Nazaire, France, yesterday, and the cabled reports of the trials show that there is added to the transatlantic fleet a vessel that, in speed, is in the same class as the Cunarders Mauretania and Lusitania. The Mauretania's fastest day's run averaged 27.4 knots an hour, and the Lusitania has done nearly as well. As the great Cunarders and the French liner will sail on the same day of the week from the other side, thrilling transatlantic races will probably result. Until the coming of the great French ship there was no merchant vessel afloat that could even approach the Mauretania and the Lusitania in fast steaming.

In the cablegram to Paul Faguet, the general agent in New York of the French Line, it was stated that the France averaged 26.5 knots on her trial spins, and that at times her speed was 27 knots. At no time did the speed indicators of the new flier show a speed of less than 25.6 knots.

Yesterday's performance of the France shows that she will be by far the fastest steamship plying between New York and the European mainland, and that her only rivals will be the Mauretania and the Lusitania. It is of course against all transatlantic regulations for liners in that trade to race, yet it is certain that when the France and one of the fast Cunarders leave the other side on the same Saturday, as they surely will in the near future, Capt. Turner or Capt. Charles of the Cunarders and Capt. Poncelet, who is to command the France, will do their utmost to land their passengers in New York in time for a Thursday dinner.

The France is in every respect the finest ocean liner ever turned out by French shipbuilders. Like the big Cunarders, she has four great red funnels, and like them she has quadruple screws. Her engines are of both the turbine and the reciprocating type, an arrangement that is being followed in the construction of some of the new American warships. The tonnage of the new liner is 27,000 tons, or 5,000 tons less than that of the Mauretania and Lusitania. Her length is 732 feet, or 58 feet less than the Cunarders.

Capt. Poncelet, who will command the France, is the Commodore of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique fleet, and is one of the best known commanders in the Atlantic trade. He wears the cross of the Legion of Honor, and has been an officer in the French mercantile marine for more than twenty-five years.

The France is heavily booked for both her maiden westward and eastward voyages. Among those who are booked for the westward voyage are Robert Bacon, the retiring American Ambassador to France, and Mrs. Bacon.

END GUN FIRE AT NEWPORT.

Committee of Summer Residents Puts Stop to Target Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 12.—There will be no more target practice with the guns at the forts in Newport or Narragansett Bay by coast artillery troops. The order has been brought about by efforts of the committee of twenty, made up of Summer residents and Newport citizens, under the Presidency of John Thompson Spencer of Newport and Philadelphia and some individual Summer residents and Senator George Peabody Wetmore.

The troops will go to Fort Wright at New London for this practice once a year. The coast artillery troops of the State militia will have yearly target practice at Fort Greble, between Jamestown and Saunderstown.

Target practice at the forts has damaged considerable property in Harrison Avenue and Ocean Drive, but no claim for damages has been made.

CRAM WON'T RESIGN SOON.

Denies Published Report That He Will Quit Service Commission.

A report was published in the Brooklyn Eagle yesterday that Commissioner J. Sergeant Cram had made up his mind to resign from the Public Service Commission at the end of the present year, though he would then have more than three years to serve. It was represented that he had stated that he would then feel that his work was accomplished and that he could devote his entire attention to his private interests.

When the report was brought last night to the attention of the Commissioner, he replied:

"I have not seen any one to-day or made any such announcement. Some time ago I did say that when the constructive work of the commission was completed, I should feel inclined to resign. I should not care to give myself up to the routine work of the commission. But I have no intention of retiring now in the midst of the important work the commission has to deal with."

SAYS FIVE CAN LIVE ON $15.

Cincinnati Capitalist Suggests They Can Also Save $2 of It.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 12.—Jacob G. Schmidlapp, a Cincinnati capitalist, says any family of five members or less can live on $15 a week and save $2. Mr. Schmidlapp is the owner of Cincinnati's model tenements and spends thousands of dollars yearly educating children. He was a close friend of Gen. Frederick D. Grant.

"It is not impossible for five people to live on $15 a week and save $2," he said to-day. "On $13 a week they should save $1. The trouble is that our American plan of living is too wasteful, and this wastefulness isn't all on the wife's side of the family, either.

"When I was a young man I lived on $2 a week. When I earned $1,000 a year I saved $600. That left me a bit more than $1 a day for my expenses. One cannot live in the best fashion on this amount, yet he will be much better off and will live longer."

Mr. Schmidlapp asked two sisters of charity what they thought about the idea, and one of them answered that a family would starve on $15 a week.

NOBLES IN FIST FIGHT.

Lively Row in Court Room Causes Scandal in Rome.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, April 12.—A great scandal was caused here by a scene to-day in the law courts, where a case in which anonymous letters to numerous members of the Italian aristocracy are involved is proceeding.

As the Marquis Calabrini, Grand Equerry to the King, who was one of the witnesses, was leaving court, the Marquis Spinola, who is the plaintiff in the action, considering himself insulted by the Marquis Calabrini's evidence, struck him violently on the head with a stick. At the same instant two sons of the Marquis Spinola also assaulted Calabrini, hitting him in the face with their fists.

Several members of the Italian aristocracy who interfered, among others the Duke di Torlonia, and Count Negroni, were also struck by the Marquis Spinola and his sons.

KAISER PRAISED ITALIANS.

Alleged Remarks, Slurring His Own People, Stir Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, April 12.—Further developments may be expected in the German press in consequence of some remarks the Kaiser is said to have made to the Italian Deputy, Cirmenti, at Venice.

His Majesty was first quoted in Berlin as saying, "If I had a people like the Italians, I would conquer half the world." Senor Cirmenti now amends this statement and says that what the Kaiser really told him was:

"If I had a people so intelligent and so patriotic as the Italians."

The Berliner Tageblatt, which Senor Cirmenti attacks for "distorting" the Kaiser's words, points out that the amended version is even stronger than the original. It says that although Senor Cirmenti vouches for it, the whole incident is so remarkable that it must for the present be treated with skepticism.

AMBASSADOR'S BILL $3.45.

Secretary MacVeagh Asks Congress to Pay Count Von Bernstorff.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Secretary MacVeagh appealed to Congress to-day to pay to Count Von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, $3.45 for services in unsuccessfully seeking information concerning the heirs of John A. Beck, a civil war soldier, who was born in Wurtemburg, Germany, and who died in 1895 in the Government Asylum for the Insane in Washington.

While demonstrating how to do a handspring from a springboard in the gymnasium of the East Side Settlement House, 540 East Seventy-sixth Street, last night, Gustav Weinock, a machinist, of 508 East Eighty-fifth Street, fell on the floor, fracturing his spine.

Dr. Weinock of the Reception Hospital found him paralyzed from the hips down. He was removed to the hospital. The X-ray machine will be used this morning to determine if the injury is permanent.

NO MINORITY STEEL REPORT.

Debate on Bill in Senate to Begin Without Democratic Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The Democrats in the Senate are seriously embarrased over a peculiar situation that has arisen in regard to the minority report on the Steel bill. When the committee finally made its adverse report Mr. Penrose of Pennsylvania was selected to write the views of the majority and Mr. Bailey of Texas the minority opinion. Mr. Penrose has already filed his report and debate is expected to begin next week.

This morning the Democrats learned that Mr. Bailey, owing to illness, had done nothing on his task and would not be able to do anything. No minority member of the committee seems to throw himself into the breach, and it looks now as if the debate will begin without any formal expression whatever by the Democrats of the Senate Committee protesting against the action of the Republicans in reporting adversely the bill already passed by the Democratic House.

FREE SELF-STARVING WOMEN.

London Officials Release Five Suffragettes After Hunger Strike.

LONDON, April 12.—By resorting to a hunger strike and impairing their health to such an extent that the jail officials feared fatal consequences, Dr. Frances Ede and four other suffragettes, who recently were sentenced to imprisonment for window-smashing, obtained their release from Aylesbury Jail to-day before their terms had expired.

Dr. Ede says that twenty-five of twenty-eight suffragettes imprisoned in the Aylesbury Jail started the hunger strike April 5, and that it was not discovered by the jail officials until April 9, when a system of forcibly feeding the women was instituted.

"Far more terrible than my personal sufferings," said Dr. Ede, "was hearing the agonizing cries from other cells, as the prisoners in turn were subjected to the painful treatment."

A demonstration will be held in Hyde Park to-morrow to protest against the forcible feeding of the suffragettes.

The Minnesota Runs Aground.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 12.—The battleship Minnesota ran aground in the Delaware River shortly before 5 o'clock, just off the Philadelphia Navy Yard, while on her way here from Hampton Roads. The warship was entering the dock when she struck the long shoal which has caught many war vessels. Little damage was done, and the Minnesota was tied up at her dock later to-night.

ROOSEVELT IGNORES REQUEST OF HOSTS

Talks Politics to Springfield Commercial Travelers, Though Told Club Rules Forbade It.

COULDN'T REFRAIN, HE SAID

Because Politics Represents the Vital Needs of the Country—Campaigns in New Hampshire To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 12.—The pace which Col. Roosevelt set for himself in invading Taft Territory in Massachusetts to-night was so fast that he was unable to complete the programme mapped out for him, and retired to his private car shortly before midnight in complete exhaustion. Col. Roosevelt spoke at length at a dinner of the Commercial Travelers' Club and at two other meetings. After the third address he found himself unequal to further efforts of attending the annual ball of the Police Department, at which 2,000 dancers were awaiting his arrival, and a reception in another hall, at which it had been planned to have him shake hands with all-comers until midnight.

Although he received a broad hint not to talk politics to the commercial travelers, Col. Roosevelt spoke for an hour, and it was all politics. After paying his respects to the speaker who laid the injunction upon him he made the flat statement that he believed his hearers wanted him to say what he believed. When he sat down his face was wet with perspiration, so vigorously had he spoken.

Three hundred members of the club were present. It was William G. McKechnie who introduced the toastmaster, who told Col. Roosevelt that politics was barred.

"Religion and politics play no part in this organization," said Mr. McKechnie. "Any reference thereto is expressly prohibited by its constitution."

Mr. McKechnie referred to the fact that he was a Democrat, and that there were differences of opinion among Republicans, pointing to the fact that Albert P. Langtry, Secretary of State, who was the toastmaster, was a supporter of the present Administration, and was "unequivocally opposed" to the political doctrines of the guest of the evening.

Later on, he continued, the club would have as its guests other public men who did not agree with Col. Roosevelt. "They will receive the same degree of attention as we give to Col. Roosevelt," he said.

When Mr. Langtry arose he made no reference to his own politics, and paid a compliment to Col. Roosevelt as one of the country's most distinguished men.

The Colonel Retorts.

During these introductory remarks the Colonel sat quite still, looking strai[illegible] ahead of him with a quizzical [illegible] When he arose to deliver his [illegible] was a round of applause, [illegible] expectant silence.

"I was duly [illegible] Col. Roosevelt, with a [illegible] Mr. McKechnie's explanation [illegible] there was no politics here, and that therefore he was obliged to warn me that both he and Mr. Langtry utterly disagreed with my policies. And in furtherance of his purpose to keep me out of politics, he said he looked with equanimity upon the disagreements upon our side.

"Apparently he is under the mistaken impression that his own side is boiling over with harmony. If Mr. McKechnie is really perfectly convinced that that is a fact, I suggest that he organize a joint debate between Messrs Harmon and Wilson, Clark and Underwood."

Bending down to Mr. Langtry, who sat beside Mr. McKechnie, he said:

"Mr. Secretary, I deeply appreciate the kind words you have used in introducing me. I know you wished me to come to Massachusetts to tell you the reasons for the faith that lies in me.

"Mr. McKechnie has said your association wished entire freedom of speech. That is no jest. You wish any man to speak with frankness, and I could not come here and refrain from speaking of politics, because with me politics represent the deepest convictions as to the vital needs of the country, and of course I shall speak to you of them."

Explains His Policies.

The Colonel's hearers hardly knew at first how to receive what he said. As he went on he was interrupted frequently by applause. After expressing his determination to talk politics despite the restrictions laid upon him, he spoke of control of corporations and explained his views in relation to the courts.

Col. Roosevelt said that in a contest such as the present campaign it was necessary to consider both the business needs of the country and its moral needs. He asserted that the present policy of the Government toward corporations was wrong, and that it was futile to try to control "big business" with lawsuits.

"It is bad to have a policy of strangling business," he said, "but it is worse to have a policy of a sham strangle."

"Last night President Taft stated," Col. Roosevelt said later, "that those who advocated my policies in regard to the judiciary, 'wish to put an impious hand on the ark of the covenant.'"

He then explained his ideas in regard to the courts, citing several laws which he said the courts had unjustly overturned.

"One of the movements we intend to bring about," he said, "is that instead of two twelve-hour shifts seven days a week for workmen, we have three eight-hour shifts for six days a week."

"I am told," he went on, "that when I insist upon the people having the right to pass upon such laws affecting their welfare, I am 'laying an impious hand upon the ark of the covenant.' My fight is for justice."

After his address, Col. Roosevelt went to the Central High School, where he spoke for a few minutes to a crowd which filled the auditorium. Then he went to the Technical High School. One of Col. Roosevelt's remarks was: "Hardness of heart, bad though it is, isn't a much worse quality than softness of head."

After the meeting he went to his car to leave late at night for Nashua, N. H. The Colonel will spend all day tomorrow in campaigning in New Hampshire.

EXPLODED BOMB IN TAXICAB.

Striking Chauffeurs Suspected of Paris Outrage That Injured Several.

PARIS, April 12.—A bomb exploded in a taxicab in the Rue de Lyon this morning. The force of the explosion shook the greater part of the city and wrecked the motor car. The chauffeur and some pedestrians were injured.

The outrage is believed to have been committed by chauffeurs, many of whom have been on strike for two months.

The taxicab was passing along the Rue de Lyon from the Place de la Bastille to the great railroad station of the Lyons line. Many windows in the vicinity were smashed.

TAFT MEN ATTACK ROOSEVELT BACKER

Recall Record of ex-Senator Flinn of Pittsburgh, Who Supports the ex-President.

COLONEL "STANDS FOR" HIM

Agreement Which Quay Couldn't Approve Cited in Arraignment of Pennsylvania Political Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The campaign on the Republican side is getting hotter and hotter. The old political rule that you can say what you like about the opposition party, but that you must observe decorum in what you say about rivals in your own party, has gone by the board. To-night the Taft headquarters fired the following broadside at Col. Roosevelt:

"Theodore Roosevelt, in his own handwriting, has written his entire approval of the Roosevelt delegates who will be voted for in the Pennsylvania primaries next Saturday. William Flinn of Pittsburgh, the manager of his campaign, has had a fac simile of Mr. Roosevelt's indorsement prepared and sent broadcast over the State at his own expense. This indorsement by Mr. Roosevelt says:

> The cause for which these candidates stand is the cause for which I stand.
> THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"For what cause do the Roosevelt candidates in Pennsylvania stand? The most conspicuous among their number is William Flinn of Pittsburgh. For what does Flinn stand?

"We will let Mr. Flinn tell his own story in his own words. By a remarkable coincidence he, like Mr. Roosevelt, has a habit of putting what he stands for in writing. In 1896, five years before he was driven out of politics by an uprising of the people of Pittsburgh—the same people he and Mr. Roosevelt now purport to represent—Flinn made a proposal to Matthew Stanley Quay, the 'boss' of the State, which even Quay would not and could not stand for. Flinn's proposal is still in existence in his own handwriting, and it reads:

> Memorandum and agreement between M. S. Quay of the first part and J. O. Brown and William Flinn of the second part. The consideration of this agreement being the MUTUAL POLITICAL AND BUSINESS ADVANTAGE which may result therefrom.
> First, the said M. S. Quay is to have the benefit of the influence in all matters in State and National politics of the said parties of the second part, the said parties agreeing that they will secure the election of delegates to the State and National Convention who will be guided in all matters by the wishes of the said party of the first part, and who will also secure the election of members of the State Senate from the Forty-third, Forty-fourth, and Forty-fifth Senatorial Districts, and also secure the election of members of the House of Representatives south of the Monongahela and Ohio Rivers in the County of Allegheny who will be guided by the wishes and request of the said party of the first part during the continuance of this agreement upon all political matters.
> The different candidates for the various positions mentioned shall be elected by the parties of the second part, and all the positions of State and National appointments in this territory mentioned shall be satisfactory to and secure the indorsement of the party of the second part, when the appointment is made either by or through the party of the first part, or his friends or political associates.
> All legislation affecting the parties of the second part and affecting cities of the second class, shall receive the hearty co-operation and assistance of the party of the first part and legislation which may affect their business shall likewise receive the hearty co-operation and help of the party of the first part.
> It being distinctly understood that in the approaching National Convention to be held at St. Louis the delegates from the Twenty-second Congressional District shall neither by voice nor vote do other than what is satisfactory to the party of the first part.
> The party of the first part agrees to use [illegible] and secure the support of his [illegible] political associates to support [illegible] county and city ticket, when [illegible] the cities of Pittsburgh [illegible] the County of Allegheny [illegible] discountenance the factions [illegible] friends and associates [illegible] during the continuance of [illegible].
> This agreement [illegible] be binding upon the parties of [illegible] part when a candidate for any office shall reside in Allegheny County, and shall only be binding if the party of the first part is a candidate for United States Senator to succeed himself as far as this office is concerned.
> In the Forty-third Senatorial District a new Senator shall be elected to succeed Senator Upperman. In the Forty-fifth Senatorial District the party of the first part shall secure the withdrawal of Dr. A. J. Barchfeld and the parties of the second part shall withdraw as a candidate Senator Steel, and the parties of the second part shall secure the election of some party satisfactory to themselves.
> In the Twenty-second Congressional District the candidates for Congress shall be selected by the party of the second part. The term of this agreement to be for —— years from the signing thereof, and shall be binding upon all parties when signed by C. L. Magee.

"'The cause for which these candidates stand is the cause for which I stand,' says Mr. Roosevelt. Of course, this is not the Theodore Roosevelt of the let-the-people-rule club established by William Jennings Bryan, but Theodore Roosevelt the practical man known to E. H. Harriman and others of his intimate friends—when the 'people' are not looking.

"But that is not all of Flinn. Old 'Billy,' as he is known to Roosevelt, and especially by those who hate him and all that he represents in Allegheny County, has a 'practical political' record of substance. The 'substance' is represented by good, round dollars in Flinn's pocket, gained through political contracts.

"From the records of the Allegheny court Flinn's contracts of sixteen years ago have come to light again. Including his concession for a restaurant in the city market and the right held in the family to feed the city prisoners, Flinn cleaned out Pittsburgh during his political career following:

"Previously reported from public contracts, garbage, beans, and doughnuts, $17,294,623.48; contracts from old Allegheny, $2,000,000. Total, $19,294,623.48.

"'The cause for which these candidates stand is the cause for which I stand,' says Mr. Roosevelt. The 'cause' for which 'Old Bill' Flinn stands and for which he has ever stood is the amalgamation of business and politics—for 'Old Billy' Flinn.

"If Mr. Roosevelt is sincere in his protestations, if he means what he says in Pennsylvania, he now 'stands' for exactly the things that he has repeatedly denounced the State of Pennsylvania for 'standing' for. Either he was wrong in the first instance or he is wrong now. The chances are he was 'wrong' both times, but for the purposes of 'political expediency' the 'practical' politician is never consistent. Mr. Roosevelt is, admittedly, never consistent about anything."

To-morrow the Roosevelt members of the Republican happy family will make some kindly remarks about the Tafters.

GOV. HADLEY IS CONFIDENT.

Ignores Rumor of Taft Men's 'Strong-Arm' Intentions in Missouri.

Special to The New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 12.—Gov. Hadley, in regard to the report that it was the intention of the Taft managers in Missouri to control the State Convention by unseating the Kansas City delegation and other Roosevelt delegates, said to-day:

"I am not alarmed over these reports. The Roosevelt supporters will have, in my judgment, 750 delegates of the 1,257 in the State Convention and I expect no serious controvery or difficulty in making up either the temporary or permanent roll of the convention. I have no doubt that there are some among the Taft managers in this State who would be willing to go to any extreme to control this convention. But I am unwilling to believe that men like Mr. Nagel, Mr. Akins, Mr. Walbridge, Congressman Bartholdt, Capt. King and other Taft supporters will permit or resort to 'strong arm' methods to control this convention."

The twelve district delegates are for Taft.

COLONEL HURRIES DOWN EAST

Trip West May Depend on the Result in Pennsylvania To-day.

Confident that he will win a majority of the delegates from Pennsylvania to-day, and full of fight, Col. Roosevelt left at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon to carry his campaign into the New England States.

He repeated his statement that he would not listen to the talk of a compromise candidate, and that he was in the fight to the end, confident that he would get the majority of the delegates at Chicago in June. Whether he will go to Nebraska and other Western States next week is still in doubt. His campaign manager, Senator Dixon, accompanied the Colonel as far as New Haven last night to discuss that matter. He agreed that the outcome of the Pennsylvania primaries to-day might have some effect on the plans for the future.

Others who met the Colonel at the Grand Central Station and consulted with him were William L. Ward, National Committeeman from New York State, and Regis H. Post, former Governor General of Porto Rico. They were both enthusiastic over the results in Illinois and Maine, and expressed every confidence in the voters in Pennsylvania.

Col. Roosevelt spent the morning yesterday at Oyster Bay at work on the addresses he is to deliver on his New England trip. He had hoped to be at The Outlook office for a time in the afternoon, but was just able to motor to town in time to get his train.

Senator Dixon, before leaving, said positively that Col. Roosevelt would win in Pennsylvania. At first, he said, Senator Penrose, the Taft leader, had said Col. Roosevelt would not get more than ten delegates, but was now admitting that he would win fifteen or more.

"And that isn't half the number we will get," said Senator Dixon. "It's going to be another big victory."

TAFT TO FIGHT FOR OHIO.

President Will Contest Michigan Methods in His Own State.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—President Taft determined to-day to take strong action to curb such methods as the Roosevelt people have employed in Michigan, if an attempt should be made to use them in Ohio, his own State. The President has been aroused by the attacks made upon him by his predecessor.

To-day he summoned into conference at the White House several of his leading supporters in his own State, including Senator Burton, National Committeeman Arthur I. Vorys, and Harry M. Daugherty, who would like to be Governor and who is the Taft candidate to succeed State Chairman Walter F. Brown, a Roosevelt man.

The conference was over the probability of a bolt and the organization of a rump convention by the Roosevelt men—in other words, of the adoption of tactics similar to those employed in Michigan. It was decided that if necessary the form of tactics usually known by the name of "strong arm" should be adopted in order to prevent the Roosevelt outfit from organizing a colorable contest to take before the National Committee.

The President is determined to keep his own State. The Taft managers have come to see the significance of the multiplied contests started by the Roosevelt men and the inadvisability of ignoring them.

CARNEGIE DEFENDS TAFT.

Wires Indorsement of President to Convention Candidate in Pittsburgh.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 12.—Dr. John A. Brashear, widely known as a scientist and maker of astronomical instruments, made public through the Taft headquarters to-night a telegram from Andrew Carnegie, in which the ironmaster lauds President Taft for the policies he has pursued while in office, and declares he is eminently entitled to re-election. Dr. Brashear is a candidate in to-morrow's primaries for election as a National delegate favoring Taft.

He was a late selection of the Taft forces, and it will be necessary for the voters to use stickers to elect him. He is popular, and despite the fact that the Roosevelt forces, during the last few days, have been concentrating their power to defeat him, the Taft Club to-night declares confidence in his success. The telegram reads:

> New York, April 12.
> John A. Brashear, Pittsburgh, Penn.
> No man ever occupied the Presidential chair more devoted to the public than the occupant, Judge Taft. Few have equaled him in measures and reforms for the benefit of our country. To deny him a second term would be manifestly unfair.

STATEMENT BY C. P. TAFT.

President's Brother Denounces Attacks Made Upon the Administration.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, brother of the President, who was a guest at the White House to-day, gave out the following statement:

"President Taft is absolutely certain of renomination and he will be re-elected. Democrats everywhere admit that he is the only man they fear. If the attacks upon him were based upon faults of his administration or upon his conduct in office it might be different, but it must beborne in mind that the only real oppostion to him is founded in prejudice and appeals to passion, the most dangerous things to the future of this country since the civil war."

DARK HORSE TALK DECRIED.

Either Roosevelt or Taft, Say President's Campaign Managers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The Taft managers took action to-day on the report that a compromsie candidate is under consideration. They issued statements from a number of public men, pointing out that such a thing is impossible. At the head of the list was Attorney General Wickersham, who said:

"I have never entertained the least doubt as to the nomination of President Taft, and I do not now have any misgivings as to the outcome. There is not the slightest ground for talking of a dark horse. This fight is between two men, and one will win."

"It is either Taft or Roosevelt," Representative Calder of New York said, "and talk of a dark horse will not make headway. The talk that the President cannot be elected is put out to confuse Republican voters and to take strength away from him. Taft will carry New York in November by a big majority."

HITCHCOCK NOT TO RESIGN.

He Wires Contradiction, but Admits Receiving Many Offers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Postmaster General Hitchcock, who is in New York, sent a telegram to the Post Office Department to-day denying positively that he had resigned or intended to do so and directing that a formal notice be sent to the press.

Mr. Hitchcock's telegram was directed to Theodore L. Weed, Director of the Postal Savings System, and outlined what he wanted said. The Postmaster General denounced the statement that he would resign in order to escape the consequences of having promised more patronage to Southern Republicans in the campaign of 1908 than he could deliver, as false. He admitted it was true he had received numerous offers during the year, most of them carrying a salary of more than $25,000.

Mr. Hitchcock was in New York yesterday to attend the luncheon of the Periodical Publishers at the Aldine Association.

Roosevelt's Lead in Illinois.

This summing up of the result of primaries in Illinois was given out yesterday by the managers of Col. Roosevelt's campaign in this city:

"The final returns from Illinois show that Col. Roosevelt received 252,323 votes. The vote for Champ Clark was 211,809, showing that if Clark and Roosevelt were the nominees, Col. Roosevelt would have beaten him by 41,814 votes. If, on the other hand, Mr. Taft should happen to be the candidate, Mr. Clark would have beaten him by 88,831."

Quits Office to Support Colonel.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., April 12.—Postmaster Sewell M. Moore has mailed his resignation to Postmaster General Hitchcock, giving as his reason the fact that he intends to support Col. Roosevelt. Mr. Moore has been Postmaster here thirteen years.

HARMON HAS OVATION IN BRYAN'S STATE

MEETS NEBRASKA LEADERS

Introduced at Omaha Club by Supporter of President Taft—Governor Makes Three Speeches.

OMAHA, Neb., April 12.—Gov. Judson Harmon ended two busy days in Omaha with an address to-night at one of the largest political mass meetings ever held in this city.

During the day he made addresses at the Stock Exchange in South Omaha, and before the Commercial Club, where he was a luncheon guest. The afternoon was spent getting acquainted with several hundred Democrats who came from every part of the State to see the Governor.

The meeting at the Commercial Club was well attended by business and professional men. Gov. Harmon was introduced by John Lee Webster, a leading supporter of President Taft.

"We have too much business in our politics and not enough politics in our business," declared the Governor. "Public affairs should receive the attention of all business men to the end that a few may not profit illegitimately.

"The one great problem that we must meet to-day is the government of our cities, for it is there that the greatest problems of taxation arise and where the Government enters into the daily life of the people."

The meeting to-night was enthusiastic, and the big auditorium was without a vacant seat, many standing in the rear.

Gov. Harmon's Speech.

Gov. Harmon said in part:

"The good people of Ohio will bear me out when I say, as I do, that not in a generation have their affairs been so honestly, fairly, economically, and capably managed as they have been by the present Democratic administration. It has been because Jeffersonian principles were practiced and not merely prated about.

"I am here by the invitation of my good friends in Nebraska, and, while I am always averse to speaking about myself, I feel that it is due to them to speak of some matters of a public nature about which falsehoods have been circulated so wholly unfounded that persistence in them cannot be ascribed to proper motives. It would not be necessary to do this at home.

"There has been no retraction of the published statement that I took part in a sale of Government bonds which occurred months before I entered the Cabinet. And as the facts are matters of public record, making the charge without inquiry was mere wantonness.

"As that is the only attempt at specification under the charge of favoring any interests but those of the public, its complete refutation discredits the charge with every lover of fair play. When one has been in public life as much as I have his conduct affords a better test of him than the assertions of others or his own.

First to Enforce Trust Law.

"Among the many things it was my good fortune to accomplish as Attorney General, the one which is best known, and for which even my Republican successors have commended me, was securing from the Supreme Court the decisions upholding the Sherman anti-trust law. These were not announced until my term had expired, but afterward became the basis of the cases in which that wholesome law was enforced, until the recent ones wherein the idea of reasonableness was introduced. Yet, though these facts are of common knowledge, the false statement is reiterated that I neglected my duty in that regard.

"But my first election as Governor, when Ohio went Republican by almost 70,000 majority, was due to the knowledge of my public services and the belief by the people of Ohio that their continuance would bring about reforms whose need had become urgent.

"One of these related to favoritism and grafting in connection with the deposits in banks of the public money. While I was making the campaign largely on these matters one of my associates on the ticket, as was afterward learned, was trying to better his prospects by promising deposits in case of his election to bankers who would give him support by votes or contributions. This man is now noisily progressive and fabricator-in-chief of a league at whose first meeting the doorkeeper was under indictment for bribery in the Legislature and is now in the penitentiary.

Held Treasurer to His Duty.

"Only the Governor and Treasurer were successful at that election and another member of this league who, I understand, has been stumping in Nebraska, did his best to prevail on the Treasurer to break faith with the people by going on with the practice they had so sharply condemned. I sent for him and threatened to denounce him publicly. It turned out that he had a client who had borrowed $200,000 of State funds from one of the favored banks which had them at 2½ per cent. interest, while it was paying 4 per cent. on all other deposits.

"But the Treasurer kept faith, and under the promised plan of free and fair competition, open to all banks alike, the State has ever since received nearly double the former interest on its funds.

"Are we to nominate for President some one whom the men of business all over the country fear or distrust? The answer depends chiefly on ourselves. There is no sound reason for serious disagreement among Democrats. The wishes and ambitions of individuals have not a feather's weight compared with the interests of the party and its bright prospects.

"The Republican tariff has been the chief breeder of trusts and combinations to suppress competition and raise prices. It has encouraged extravagance as an excuse for high duties. It has aggravated the inequalities in wealth which have spread socialism among the people. Its reform on Democratic principles will accomplish more for the welfare of the country at large than any other single measure."

"MURPHY CASTS THE VOTE."

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, April 12.—In an editorial headed "Murphy Casts the Vote," the Buffalo Enquirer, owned by ex-State Chairman William J. Conners, says:

"As though to insure certain defeat of any honest purpose that democracy might have in mind, the delegates to the New York convention have once more made the party appear ridiculous throughout the land by handing the delegates to the national convention to Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall.

"The unit rule was adopted. No candidate was endorsed. Murphy went to his lair in Fourteenth Street and plans a deal with whoever can offer the most attractive inducement.

"The ninety delegates to the national convention might just as well remain at home. Not one of them can be so foolish as to expect Murphy will consider him of any importance whatever.

"Murphy has been given full power. That's what he wanted, and the poor, misguided and deluded delegates gave the tottering donkey one more stab in the back. If that's the kind of work they think will be relished by respectable Democrats, these assassins of Democratic principles are sadly mistaken. The work is of the coarsest kind and points toward chaos."

HARVEY SEES UNDERWOOD.

Original Wilson Booster Confers with the Aspirant from Alabama.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Col. George Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly and The North American Review, and former chief booster of Woodrow Wilson's candidacy for President, spent most of this afternoon in conference with Representative Oscar W. Underwood, another candidate. Neither Col. Harvey nor Mr. Underwood could be seen after the conference. Col. Harvey is at the New Willard, and his secretary said he intended to return to New York to-morrow, but would give no further information.

Dr. Wilson detached Col. Harvey from the Wilson boom because he believed that the Colonel's connection with certain financial interests in New York would make his support of a radical candidate inadvisable.

This makes more interesting than such consultations would ordinarily be the conference that took place to-day. It is well known that Charles F. Murphy will deliver the ninety votes of New York.

If New York delivers its votes to Underwood, things may happen in Baltimore which will upset all previous political calculations.

THEFT STOPS WILSON VOTE.

Hold-Up of Chairman Breaks Up Hudson County Democratic Meeting.

A meeting of the Hudson County Democratic Committee in the Davis Clubhouse, Jersey City, broke up in excitement last night after Chairman James Hennessey declared that he had been attacked by roughs on his way to the clubhouse and the roll book stolen from him. Hennessey had gone to City Hall to get the book that a vote by roll call might be taken on Frank Hague's resolution to reconsider the indorsement of Gov. Wilson as a Presidential candidate adopted two weeks ago. The resolution was worded so that the two delegates to the National Convention would go unpledged.

There was a wordy war between the various factions in the meeting while Hennessey was gone for the book and when he burst into the hall with the tale of assault and theft there was so much excitement that he adjourned the meeting rather than take a rising vote on the Hague resolution.

HARMONY IN TENNESSEE.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 12.—War in the Democratic party that has been carried on unceasingly since the party split on the liquor question five years ago, was settled to all appearances to-day. The committee of regulars by a vote of 13 to 6 adopted the plan of the 105 editors of the State, and agreed to join with the independent State Committee and have a convention on May 15 to select delegates to the National Convention.

Harmony as to National affairs may be the means of drawing the party together on State issues.

The agreement seems to favor the chances of Underwood over any candidate now contesting for the Tennessee vote, but Speaker Clark may now get into the fight with party harmony accomplished.

GEORGE'S BOOK IN CAMPAIGN.

Million Copies of "Protection or Free Trade" to be Circulated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A first edition of a reprint of 100,000 copies of Henry George's famous book on "Protection or Free Trade" is being sent through the mails under the frank of his son, Representative Henry George, Jr., of the Seventeenth District of New York, and other Congressmen. Before the close of the Democratic campaign 1,000,000 copies will have been thus distributed. This is a repetition of what was done twenty years ago, when 1,000,000 copies of The Congressional Record edition of the same book was sent through the mails in the campaign in which the Democratic landslide landed Grover Cleveland in the White House for a second term.

The book got into The Record in 1892 when Tom L. Johnson of Ohio, and five of his colleagues in the House, among them William J. Stone, now Senator from Missouri, obtained leave to print various sections of the book with their remarks. The work had been ripped apart into six nearly equal sections, and in the segregated way got into The Congressional Record.

Henry George, Jr., says its present distribution will be one of the most potential influences in this campaign.

"Private subscriptions have been made to meet the first cost," he says. "It is very likely that a large distribution is probably to be also made in Canada. The Western Grain Growers' Association, which is the Grange of Canada, through its official organ, has taken up the matter, and is now raising subscriptions to pay for the circulation of the books to officials and prominent members in the organization from Winnipeg west.

"The work of distribution is being handled under the auspices of the Fels Fund Commission of Cincinnati, of which Daniel Kiefer is President. The Fels Fund receives orders for the book at the cost price of 5 cents for two copies."

STAGE RIOT FOR SUFFRAGE.

The Mob Scene at a Benefit Supplemented by Tableaux.

The Woman's Political Union had its big benefit matinée yesterday afternoon at the Republic Theatre with "A Dream of Brave Women," "A Militant Meeting in Trafalgar Square," an English Suffragette act, and dancing and music.

Everything went as planned except the horses. Two prancing steeds were featured for the tableaux. They were to be prancing in appearance only, for they were beautiful wooden horses from the harness makers, and they made the finest appearance imaginable at the dress rehearsal. But something happened between the dress rehearsal and the play, for there was not a single horse in sight yesterday. There was something better than that, however, in two real English "bobbies," with helmets and straps, looking the real thing.

The "bobbies" were scheduled for the mob scene only, but as people came out of the theatre they found both "bobbies" distributing slips inviting men and women to march in the big woman suffrage parade on May 4. They were R. C. Beadle and F. Friedman, two of the biggest men in the Men's League for Woman Suffrage.

A large number of men took part in the tableaux and in the mob scene. In the latter Mary Shaw, Mary Keegan, and Irene Malvesyn were the suffragettes and Oswald Yorke was as an English workman. Harold Broan and Harold Camp were dudes, Albert Meyer a drunken man, Harold Herts a conspicuous "man in the crowd," H. C. Jackson and O. A. Rogers art students, and Rheta Childe Dorr and Anna Friedman sold papers. Mrs. M. B. Guilford was a delightful Irish woman.

In the "Dream of Brave Women," the tableaux which most interested the audience, both in picture and verse, were those of Ida Lewis. Lightening flashes in the picture revealed a beautiful young girl in a boat on the crest of a wave. One of the verses was:

When she hauls them spent and breathless from out the strangling foam, Say they with chill politeness, "Woman's place is in the home?"
Or tell her through their gasping as she pulls them in the boat,
That woman's too hysterical to be allowed to vote?
Do they sing with Mr. Kipling as she fights against the gale,
"The female of the species is more deadly than the male?"

The rhymes for the "Dream of Brave Women" were written by Emily Sargent Lewis, and were read yesterday by Mrs. Otis Skinner. Many well-known women took part and acted as patronesses. The closing tableaux, "Woman Enfranchised," showed Miss Inez Milholland, with two children beside her, (little Fredericka Watrous and Willie Chanler, son of William Astor Chanler,) and a woman in rich crimson at her side.

This afternoon the Woman's Political Union will take a tally-ho ride to advertise the parade of May 4.

NAVY WANTS CONTROL OF PANAMA CANAL

Congress Will Be Told That Plan Will Increase Naval Efficiency 30 Per Cent.

HONOR FOR THE OLD OREGON

Proposal That Famous Battleship Be the First to Pass Through the Canal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—An effort is to be made to get the consideration by Congress of the navy's proposal that the practical operation of the Panama Canal after its completion be in the hands of navy officers. It is urged that if this be done the efficiency of the navy will be increased 30 per cent. The aim is not to obtain for the navy the entire control of the canal zone and the administration of affairs in that territory. There will no doubt be a strong desire to have a military Government for the zone, probably headed by an army officer or a distinguished civilian with army officers in charge of the details of administration.

But it is urged that naval officers should have the operation of the canal, the handling of vessels, and charge of coaling facilities, repairing, and supplies. These are operations strictly in the navy's line and for which its officers have been in training all their lives. The army will have a large part of the responsibility for the canal in preparing and maintaining its defense, and it is expected that a large garrison will be kept there permanently.

As the canal was built as a military measure for the quick transfer of the fleet from one ocean to the other in time of war, the claim of the navy is believed to be especially strong. Secretary Meyer has discussed the matter with the President, and in due time Mr. Taft will lay the matter before Congres.

There is also a movement in the navy which has the approval of the President and Secretary Meyer to give the old battleship Oregon the honor of being the first vessel to pass through the Panama Canal when the thoroughfare is finished and ceremonially opened to the commerce of the world. The old ship is now in reserve with her sister ships, the Indiana, Massachusetts, and Iowa. For several years she has done duty in the Naval Academy Squadron. But for the advance in big ships and the heavier ordnance of to-day she would still be regarded as a powerful fighting ship. Her tonnage is 10,288, and she carries four 13-inch guns six 8-inch, and twelve 3-inch. She was built at the Union Iron Works, San Francisco. Her keel was laid in May, 1891, and she was commissioned in July, 1896. Her cost was $3,222,810.

The voyage of the Oregon around Cape Horn in 1898, when the war with Spain was declared, was one of the great events of that memorable struggle. She proved to be a good sailor and was in at the fight at Santiago and gave a good account of herself there. When the time comes to issue the orders for the old ship to make the trip through the canal she will be sent to San Francisco and will remain there during the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

The President has selected, at the request of the Directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, Brig. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, Chief of the Bureau of Consular Affairs; John Hays Hammond, and Rear Admiral Sidney A. Staunton, members of the Navy General Board, as a special commission to visit the various countries of Europe in the interest of the exposition. Their mission is more ceremonial than commercial. The task of obtaining exhibits and organizing a representative expression of the civilization and progres of the nations of the earth has long been in progress under the management of specialists.

The special commission will devote itself to establishing cordial relations with the countries of Europe visited and endeavor to bring them into a hearty accord with the spirit of the United States in promoting the exposition.

SLAIN IN NANKING MUTINY.

Rebellious Troops Quelled in Outbreak That Cost Many Lives.

NANKING, April 12.—A mutiny of 1,500 troops started suddenly at midnight here last night. The soldiers marched in bodies north and south and looted and burned a belt of villages in the suburbs, extending more than two miles.

The sky was bright from the reflection of the blazing fires, and there was heard cnstantly the sound of rifle firing. No damage was done foreigners or their property.

Early this morning the troops drove back most of the mutineers to their barracks and disarmed them. At noon 10,000 troops surrounded the disturbed area, and during the afternoon a severe fight took lace between them and 500 of the mutineers.

A large number of the mutineers were killed. The others escaped and are still at large.

PEKING, April 12.—The British representative of the Belgian financial syndicate signed at Shanghai yesterday a contract for the loan of a further 2,000,000 taels (approximately $1,400,000) as an advance on the projected loan to the Chinese Government.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen will soon succeed Yuan Shi-Kai as President of the Chinese Republic, according to L. Bergholz, United States Consul at Canton, who arrived yesterday from the Orient.

Mr. Bergholz, who is on his way to his home in New York, said that while Yuan was acceptable to the Chinese north of the Yangtse River, the south was loyal to Dr. Sun, and since he was popular in the north also, it was certain he would lead the Government before long.

LIMITS BRANDT CASE BRIEFS.

Appellate Division Denies Application of Mr. Schiff's Counsel.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court denied yesterday the application of De Lancey Nicoll and Paul D. Cravath, counsel for Mortimer L. Schiff, for permission to file as friends of the court briefs appealing from Supreme Court Justice Gerard's decision granting a writ of habeas corpus to Foulke Engel Brandt. The appeal will be argued May 3. In the application Messrs. Nicoll and Cravath, who desired to support District Attorney Hogue of Clinton County in his attack on the writ, called the attention of the court to statements made by District Attorney Whitman and Attorney General Carmody.

"In this court the people are represented by public officers, two of whom have asserted that the indictment of the prisoner was illegal, his conviction was illegal, and his sentence was illegal, both of whom assert that they are taking this appeal simply because they conceive it their duty to do so.

"We conceive therefore that the circumstances are pre-eminently such as will justify the court in receiving a brief in support of that presented by the District Attorney of Clinton County from amici curiae, who do not believe that the indictment was illegal, that the conviction was illegal, or that the sentence was illegal; who do not believe that the affidavit of Fischer-Hansen was properly received in the habeas corpus proceeding, and who do believe that it was the duty of the nominal opponents of the said proceeding, when that affidavit was received, to seek the evidence that was available to contradict it, and who believe they will be able to demonstrate to this court even upon the record presented that there was no illegality either in the plea or the sentence, and that the judgment of conviction is not only immune from attack upon a writ of habeas corpus, but that it would have been valid as against a reasonable appeal."

Messrs. Cravath and Nicoll objected also to the appeal presented by Messrs. Carmody and Whitman in these words:

"The record as it is presented to the court by the consent of those who have appeared in formal opposition to the application has been so framed as to inject a suggestion of fraud in the procurement of the plea, and so as to pillory the counsel who appeared for the complaining witness without giving him any opportunity in this court to defend his reputation by a refutation of the charges."

An affidavit of Howard S. Gans, the attorney referred to, in which he denied the insinuations of Brandt and his lawyer, was attached to the application.

ARKANSAS LEVEE BREAKS.

Two Counties Flooded When Dike Gives Way at Panther Forest.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 12.—The levee on the Mississippi River at Panther Forest, Ark., broke this afternoon, flooding Chicot and Desha Counties. At least eight Louisiana parishes will be inundated. This is the most serious break in any of the levees in the flooded region. Loss of life is feared, although none is yet reported. The inhabitants near the break are fleeing for safety.

Lake Village is almost depopulated. The break in the levee at 5 o'clock this afternoon was 100 feet wide, and it is predicted that it will be much wider to-morrow. Telephone and telegraph communication is shut off from Lake Village. The levee at Panther Forest was thirty-two feet high, and the place that broke was considered exceptionaly strong until sloughing developed this morning. Several hundred square miles will be flooded by the break.

A party of citizens from Greenville, Miss., left there to-night with steamboats for the stricken district to bring back the refugees.

A message to-night from J. T. McClelland, President of the Levee Board at Tallulah, La., says the levee at Dogtail Landing, in East Carroll Parish, near Roosevelt, broke this afternoon. This will flood the greater part of Madison Parish. Messages were received to-night from O. N. Killough, President of the St. Francis levee district; Mayor Dean of Luxora, Ark.; Mayor Ledbetter of Blytheville, Ark., and others to the effect that the engineers had given up the fight and that the levees were in imminent danger of breaking. Should they give way there will be great loss of life as well as property.

They reported that the resources of the Levee Board were exhausted and that the levee engineers are worn out, leaving the citizens to cope with the situation. They urged that United States engineers at Memphis send experienced men to assist in the work. The river at Memphis is still falling and conditions are improving.

CAIRO, Ill., April 12.—The Mississippi River has fallen two-tenths of a foot since yesterday, marking 53.5 to-night. The Mobile & Ohio Railroad, the first to resume passenger traffic, will begin business north to-morrow. Traffic to the South will not be resumed for several days.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 12.—The first crevasse in the main line of the Louisiana levees occurred this afternoon. It was at Alsatia, forty miles north of Vicksburg. At almost the same time news was received here of a break in the Arkansas levee at Mill's Bend. This bend is just north of the northern part of the Tensas basin, and to-night streams from both breaks are rushing madly inland, where they will unite in a vast lake. Conservative predictions to-night are that the break will be the most disastrous in that section of the State. Thousands of cattle are trapped and almost certainly will perish. There are rumors of life loss, but these are unconfirmed.

By morning it is thought Roosevelt, built upon very low ground, will be practically wiped out. The town has some four hundred inhabitants. Tallulah, much larger, promises to suffer severely. Numerous other prosperous little places are in the direct line of the waters. No effort was made to close the breach and much more of the levee is expected to go out.

THE TRUTH ABOUT MEMPHIS.

Mayor Crump Asks The Times to Deny Reports of Inundation.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 12.—The report that Memphis is flooded is absolutely false and utterly absurd. There are not more than eight blocks in the northern part of the city, on Bayou Gayoso, affected by the high water from the Mississippi River. Memphis proper is on a high bluff 100 feet above the river now. In view of the misleading reports a great injustice has been done to our city. I am going to ask that you be kind enough to give this message publicity.

E. H. CRUMP, Mayor of Memphis.

DIVORCED FROM HALF SISTER

Mother of Ruch Children of Cincinnati Had Not Told Them of Relationship.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 12.—A strange story which resulted in John P. Ruch, Jr., aged 22, being divorced from his half-sister, Helen Hoffmann Ruch, 24, was related in the Insolvency Court here to-day. The half brother and sister were married Oct. 25, 1910, neither at the time knowing of the blood relationship between them. The discovery of the relationship was disclosed a few weeks ago, and the action for a divorce followed.

It was explained to the court that the mistake had been possible because the mother, for a private reason, had hidden from the children the fact that they were half brother and sister, allowing them to believe that the girl was only an adopted child.

The husband received the custody of the two children. The youngest is only a few months old.

The petition for divorce, filed by the husband, was upon the formal ground of neglect. The divorce was obtained upon that ground for the purpose of protecting the young couple, so far as possible, in the record.

The father and mother of the young couple were not in court when the hearing was held.

The relationship of the Ruchs was disclosed to the young husband and wife by Judge William Lueders of the Probate Court a few weeks ago in the presence of their mother, Mrs. John P. Ruch.

Neighbors of the Ruch family informed Judge Lueders that they believed the couple were half-brother and half-sister. He learned after investigation that the two had grown up together under the belief that the girl was only an adopted daughter of Mrs. Ruch.

"They have two children," said the Judge in granting the divorce. "They still love each other and love their children. I explained to them that although they might be able to keep the secret for years, there will come a time as surely as anything human can be certain, when some one will have discovered it and it will be exposed possibly in their declining years. Or if the disclosure were to come not until after their death it would be left as a heritage to their children.

"Now they can come into court honestly to explain an honest mistake and do the only thing in their power to rectify that mistake."

FIND RICH LOOT OF MUSEUM THIEF

MAN ESCAPES BY WINDOW

Art Treasures of Great Value Are Discovered and Tools That Prove the Thief's Business.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 12.—A regular museum of art treasures was discovered at Villaines yesterday by the police in the apartment of a man named Ferrand, who is suspected of being concerned in the stealing of "Mona Lisa" from the Louvre. Ferrand escaped by a window as the police got into his flat, but a very beautiful girl named Mermaine, with whom he shared the apartments, was arrested.

The detectives found a number of valuable porcelain plaques, plates stolen last month from the Nevers Museum, a magnificent Chinese cloisonne wine and incense dish, some old Sevres Louis XVI. candlesticks, also a collection of skeleton keys and tools for forcing glass cases. Besides these there were photographs of treasures in the principal museums and churches of France and a number of guide books.

MR. MORGAN ANNOYED.

Resents Intimation That He Would Deal with "Mona Lisa" Thieves.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

FLORENCE, April 12.—J. Pierpont Morgan is much annoyed over the unfounded report, communicated to him to-day, that any one had offered to sell him "Mona Lisa."

He declared that nothing of the kind had happened, and that nobody had offered him anything. He resented even that it should be imagined that he would have any relations with persons offering to sell stolen goods. He expressed a desire that he be left in peace like other citizens, to enjoy a rest, without being the target for stupid inventions.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 12.—A petition, containing over 100,000 signatures, praying the Home Secretary to reprieve Frederick Seddon, who is under sentence of death for the murder of Miss Barrow, was presented to-day.

Mr. McKenna's decision is expected Tuesday, the execution being fixed for Thursday.

NAMED 3 SONS "WILLIAM."

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 12.—William Harris, widely known as the "Sausage King," died to-day, thus removing one of the most picturesque figures in Smithfield Market.

He was well known for his openhearted charity, and also for his eccentricities. For instance, he named all three of his sons William, distinguishing them as William I., William II., and William III.

VICTORIA MONUMENT AT NICE.

Dedication Is the First of a Series of Franco-British Fetes.

NICE, April 12.—A series of Franco-British festivities signifying, according to the French press, another powerful demonstration of the vitality of the friendship between the two countries, began here to-day, when an imposing monument was dedicated to Queen Victoria.

The British and French fleets were anchored in the bay, while 10,000 British and French marines and soldiers marched through the streets of the city and were reviewed by the French Premier, Raymond Poincaré. Sir Francis Bertie, British Ambassador to France; Theophile Delcassé, French Minister of Marine; Alexandre Millerand, French Minister of War; the King of Sweden, and a large number of Princes and Princesses were present.

To-morrow a statue of the late King Edward is to be unveiled at Cannes.

Record Price Drop in English Coal.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 12.—The price of coal was reduced 10s. ($2.40) a ton on the London Coal Exchange to-day, bringing the best coal down to 34s ($8.16) a ton. This was the largest drop in price ever recorded at one time.

Notes of Foreign News.

HAMBURG, April 12.—The German Naval Court decided that the Peninsular and Oriental liner Oceana was responsible for the collision with the German vessel Pisagua in the English Channel on March 16, when seven passengers lost their lives. The collision was attributed by the court to the careless watch kept on the Oceana.

PARIS SALON TURNS AWAY FROM FREAKS

Refreshing Change Seen in Great Art Show—Police Exclude Offensive Statuary.

AMERICAN WORKS NOTABLE

Problem Pictures and Nudes Conspicuously Absent and Trend Is Strongly Toward Old-Time Methods.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 12.—The same conventionality as usual, both in treatment and subject, is the distinguishing note of this year's Beaux Arts Salon, which President Fallières inaugurated at the Grand Palace to-day.

After the eccentricities of the Autumn Salon, the Futurists, and the Independents, this exhibition of some 2,800 works by the most distinguished artists, French and foreign, comes as a refreshing change. Here are no pictures of which the subjects are mysteries, or which might have been executed by the aid of a long course of opium or absinthe.

The pictures this year fall into two main divisions—portraiture, which, for the most part, is extremely well done, and landscapes. A remarkable change this time is the comparative absence of nudes.

An incident which has caused a great sensation in Paris has been the unusual step taken by the Prefect of Police, M. Lépine, in refusing to allow the exhibition of three statuary groups by distinguished sculptors on the ground that their artistic realism had been carried beyond the extreme limit. The works in question were "Les Damnés," by Arnold Reichberg, presenting Paolo and Francesca in the inferno, clasped in each other's arms; "La Messaline," by Dutheil, and "Increase and Multiply," another group of a man and a woman embracing, by Zouza Briano, an Argentine.

Some indignation has been expressed among the censored artists' colleagues, and there is talk of a demonstration. Others, however, see in this step the dawn of a new feeling in France with regard to the nude in statuary, and the act of the authorities finds many supporters among those who think that artists have had rather too much freedom in subject matter in late years.

High Level of American Works.

American exhibitors are numerous, and nothing is more gratifying than the extremely high merit of their works, which show a great improvement over those of last season. For the last year or two American art has been rather marking time in Paris, but there is plenty of evidence at this Salon that its exponents have suddenly taken a great step forward, and, indeed, a large number of those pictures which show special originality and freshness in handling and grouping, without mere eccentricity, turn out, on examination, to be the work of Americans.

Special mention must be made of Myron Barlow's three delicately executed pictures, "The Choice," "The Toilette," and "A Girl Reading," which are as good as anything in the exhibition; also, F. C. Frieseke's paintings, one of which is a nude, are, for brilliancy of handling, really astonishing pieces of work.

Alexander Harrison has not departed from his well-known style. He shows four seascapes—"Bathers in Moonshine" is of unusual delicacy—while Eugene P. Ullman continues to impart striking atmosphere and freshness to his pictures.

Florence Upton has two remarkable portraits of the wives of two English statesmen, Mrs. Gerald Balfour and Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton.

Roy Brown shows three of his curiously colored outdoor scenes, and Grace Ravlin two good paintings of Oriental life.

Elizabeth Nourse's six canvases are of the high level of excellence which has gained her a place among the more appreciated foreign painters in Paris.

Canvases That Cause a Stir.

Speaking of the exhibition as a whole, one notices the lack of any problem picture, such as in former seasons almost monopolized the attention of the public. However, there are a few of a somewhat sensational character, among which may be mentioned three large canvases by Zuloaga, the Spanish artist, two of which are typical studies of Spanish life, and the third, a "Crucifixion," treated in his well-known extraordinary style.

Also, many will gather around the fearful picture by Guméry, representing wounded horses and bulls dying outside the Plaza del Toros of Madrid. For daring coloring a work by Dagnan-Bouveret will be hard to equal, and a picture which will be widely discussed is Karl Nys's "La Stigmatisée," representing a woman showing on her own body the wounds of Christ, from which blood flows, while behind her is a huge stained-glass window depicting the crucifixion. An inscription underneath, which runs "Perpetually sacrificed, I bleed from all the wounds of Christ," is giving rise to a good deal of speculation.

Several celebrities of the musical world have portraits in this Salon. The well-known pianist, Emil Sauer, is well portrayed by Albert Resnard, one of the Vice Presidents of the Société des Beaux Arts, while Henry Morisset exhibits an excellent portrait of Raoul Pugno.

Lina Cavalieri, dressed in old gold and a Chantilly black lace harem skirt, is so magnificently portrayed by La Gandara that she seems about to step out of the frame. The artist took over a year to finish the portrait, which can be said to be the only one of La Cavalieri that, instead of flattering her, renders even the slight irregularities of her features with marvelous fidelity.

Easily recognizable in her flimsy drapery of the second act of "Thaïs," Mary Garden appears, holding a small Tanagra statuette, which has caused F. des Moulin, the painter, to give the name "La Tanagra" to the picture, while the name of the singer is not mentioned.

Of actuality only one picture has any trace, and that is Cazin's "Between Dog and Wolf," a striking scene of smugglers on the Belgian frontier. The smugglers lately have been giving great trouble to both the French and Belgian Governments.

Richer's "Rheingold" is a canvas of some 5 feet by 4, giving a beautiful interpretation of Wagner's idea of the daughters of the Rhine guarding the sunken treasure of the Nibelungs, and has, perhaps, more romantic feeling than any other on the walls.

There are several enormous decorative pictures, hardly any of which, however, can be said to possess any great merit. A vast panel by Maujian, commissioned by the State, for the new amphitheatre of the Sorbonne, and called "The Elements," will, it is to be hoped, look better when placed in position than it does at present. Among the largest pictures are also the historical canvases by Gillot, of more size than value, representing King George at the Spithead naval review, last June, and the scene of the Provençal poet, Mistral, being acclaimed by a huge multitude in the Arles Amphitheatre, by José Bélon. This was also commissioned by the Government. Also by Gillot is a curious painting, entitled "Modern Landscape," depicting the most brutal sides of industrial activity, evidently with the object of striking the greatest possible contrast with the peaceful landscapes favored by the older school of painters.

Freaks Are Few.

One of the most remarkable features of this Salon, however, is the general tendency to return to more conservative methods. Indeed, in some instances, such as illustrated by Armand Point and Gustave Courtois, there is an attempt to follow almost slavishly the methods of the old masters both in fidelity of drawing and in coloring.

One looks in vain for the freak pictures which were noticeable last year; in fact, the Société des Beaux Arts, which was founded twenty-two years ago for the express purpose of breaking away from academic traditions, seems now to have literally lost its character.

Among the portraitists, Boldini and La Gandara are both at their best, the former still following his usual style, in grayish tints, while the latter has his unequaled qualities of vivaciousness and brilliancy of coloring.

Carolus-Duran, the Director of the Villa Medici, at Rome, has five of his strikingly fine portraits. Of singular beauty are the portraits by Henri Rondel—all of marvelous sharpness and lifelikeness.

J. J. Weerts has also an admirable series, while among the English J. J. Shannon presents an excellent picture of his daughter Kitty. Other English work shown this year follows the general rule and is better than it has been for some seasons, notably that of Harold Sheed, who has two portraits and a classical scene, "Apollo and Daphne." The portraits of Mrs. Dibon and Anthony Hope, by Hugh de T. Glazebrook, are among the best work of this kind in the Salon.

A strong sense of character and atmosphere distinguishes Rupert Bunny's four imaginative compositions, and the interiors by Philip Fox and Beatrice How are also worthy of special mention.

As usual, a large number of foreigners are represented in the exhibition. The Spaniard Zubiaurre has striking Basque scenes, and Tade Styka, the Pole, has two astonishingly lifelike portraits, which will bear comparison with anything else in the Salon. The portrait of the Duchesse de Baeyens, by Philip Laszlo, the Hungarian, who has made a reputation in London, is also very fine.

It would be impossible to give a good idea of the innumerable landscapes exhibited which present the average of merit—too equal to allow many to be singled out—but Bastien Lepage's beautiful outdoor scenes are certain to attract much notice, as is also the fine coloring of Alfred Smith, who, despite his name, is a Frenchman.

Among the best decorative work are the large and clearly lighted scenes of Aublet, the nudes of Caro Delvaille, and Auburtin's romantic canvases in the style of Puvis de Chavannes.

With the exception of Jean Veber, whose well-known satiric and ironic gift is displayed in pictures, the humorists are conspicuous by their absence.

Some Striking Sculpture.

In the department of sculpture the most striking works are those of Injalbert, whose design for a fountain is an effort of titanic force and size. Albert Bartholomé has a bust—Madame B.—and Bourdelle the figure of Penelope and the bust of a Russian lady.

Most Americans exhibiting sculpture are women. Miss Alice Wright, who at present is serving a sentence in London for window-smashing, is represented by two fine pieces—"The Flesh and the Spirit" and "Star of the Sea." Sara Morris Greene's bronze Bacchante is an admirable group, and Gertrude Whitney's "Pagism Immortal," in marble, has special qualities. Other Americans exhibiting in this department are Alice Laborde Brereton, Melvina Hoffman, Cecil Howard, William Jewitt, Alonzo Robinson, and Eugénie Stannard.

An interesting feature of this year's Salon is the creation of a new section of garden sculpture and stone work, which is arranged in the open air in one of the small parterres surrounding the Grand Palace. Only a few pieces are comprised in this section. Among them is a marble by Robin.

Other sections are the decorative arts, architecture, and drawings, which do not call for special notice, and the engravings, of which the best are those of Emile Friant, with their marvelous shading.

PREACHER SLAYS HIS WIFE.

Samuel Henry, Who Caused Commons Lobby Scene, Tries Suicide.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 12.—A tragic sequel of the recent revolver incident in the lobby of the House of Commons, as related in a NEW YORK TIMES dispatch, occurred to-day, when Samuel Henry, the central figure in the incident, was found shot in the head in his residence at Moreton Lodge, Leominster, with his wife lying dead in an adjoining room with her throat cut. Although Henry has two bullets in his head, there are hopes of his recovery.

Medical examination showed that Mrs. Henry's wounds were not self-inflicted. The police believe that Henry killed his wife and then attempted suicide.

Henry, who is a lay preacher, is the author of several pamphlets of Socialistic character on Church and politics. It was on the evening of Feb. 26 that he fired a revolver in the lobby of the House of Commons in order, he said, to bring to public notice his book, "Tolstoi on the Messiah," which he said the Government had suppressed.

Later a magistrate bound him over to keep the peace for twelve months.

The Kaiser Digs in Corfu.

CORFU, April 12.—The Kaiser spent the afternoon digging at the foot of the bank of St. Euphemia Convent, where excavations are in progress. The Crown Princess of Greece was present, and the Kaiser seemed in great spirits.

IRELAND UNSTIRRED BY HOME RULE BILL

ORANGEMEN HELD IN LEASH

Fear Is Strong That Serious Outbreaks Are Certain as the Debate on the Measure Proceeds.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, April 13.—It is difficult to obtain from the London papers an impartial account of how the Home Rule bill has been received in Ireland.

The Unionist papers represent the Dublinites as generally indifferent and showing no perceptible enthusiasm. The Daily Mail's Dublin correspondent says:

"The most enthusiastic commendation of the Home Rule bill that I heard to-day is that it provides temporarily an alternative subject of conversation to the Marconi 'boom.' Even at that it has not been very effective, for one hears more frequent mention of Marconi than of Asquith, and there is more eager discussion of the financial outlook for wireless telegraphy in space than of the financial condition of autonomy in Ireland.

"Dublin is, as they say, 'up to its neck in Marconi,' and as to the relations between the two sister islands, it is chiefly concerned with the thought that it has been making fabulous bull profits at the expense of the bears of the London Stock Exchange."

The same paper's Belfast correspondent says:

"Orders have been issued to all the Orange lodges that public disturbances must be suppressed for the present, but nobody in touch with the Orangemen has a doubt that eventually there will be rioting and bloodshed.

"Arrangements are being made by the Unionist organizers for special meetings a fortnight hence to formulate methods for keeping the peace during the early stages of the bill and for organizing a campaign of resistance, at first of passive resistance against the possible eventuality of the bill becoming an act.

"In the meanwhile the organization is so perfect that it is hoped all riots will be avoided. The danger lies in the burning of provocative bonfires by Roman Catholics within the range of the Protestant line."

Redmond Greatly Pleased.

John Redmond, who is much pleased over the general reception given to the bill, says:

"The bill is splendid. There is now what was lacking in 1886 and 1893, namely, absolute unanimity in the ranks of the Liberals. That is one of the features that must have impressed any one who was present during the debate which followed the Prime Minister's speech. There was no sign of dissension. The Liberals evidently welcomed the bill.

"Another noteworthy point was that the opposition discussed the matter as they would discuss any ordinary measure. That represents a marked advance upon their position in 1886 or 1893.

"I detected a very great difference in the tone and temper of the discussion, and that difference, of course, is entirely in favor of the bill. There was no such wave of passion as that which swept over the House when the first of Gladstone's bills was introduced. Altogether, the bill had a reception which was quite satisfactory to myself and my colleagues."

Mr. Redmond undoubtedly speaks for the whole of his followers. Some of them said yesterday that they were thoroughly satisfied with the general demeanor of the House toward the Prime Minister's proposals, and see no reason why the bill should not go through the House of Commons with a series of large majorities and eventually, under the operations of Parliament act, become the law of the land.

Irish Papers Praise Measure.

The Nationalist journals in Ireland welcome the main outlines of the bill as a means of settlement of the great problem. The Freeman's Journal of Dublin says:

"The bill is not only the third but the greatest and boldest and most generous of the three. Public opinion and public information with regard to Irish demands have widened since Gladstone brought forward the question in 1886, and this advance in sympathy and knowledge has enabled the Prime Minister and his colleagues to go far beyond the limits of Gladstone's first proposal."

The Cork Examiner says:

"The bill has been designed to bring prosperity and contentment to this country and replace the strife that for so long has existed between Great Britain and Ireland by peace and mutual good-will."

The Irish News says:

"The bill confers on this country more freedom of action within its own borders than was provided for in the other predecessors. The measure offers great and unparalleled opportunities to an Ireland which will soon be a self-respecting, self-relying, self-advancing nation within the empire."

Attacked in Belfast.

The strongest Irish comments against the bill come, of course, from Belfast. The Unionist Northern Whig, for instance, says:

"The bill is illogical. It is more complicated than Gladstone's bill, and where it differs from the earlier proposals it differs for the worse. The scheme was conceived in fraud and carried out by trickery. It can have no moral sanction. Asquith has had fair warning that we in North Ireland will ignore the very existence of the Parliament."

The Irish Daily Telegraph says:

"The bill is not the resultant of intellectual conviction, but the product of a political conspiracy for a mean motive, the lust of office. Its finances are a swindle on the British public and its safeguards are a sham and fraud, because in the Imperial Parliament the Nationalists would still be able in a Government dilemma to bargain their votes for the removal of all restrictions and guarantees."

LONDON, April 12.—The adjournment of the home rule debate in the House of Commons until Tuesday has given an interval in which the opinion of prominent men of all parties is being sought.

On the Stock Exchange to-day the introduction of the bill had no effect. Consols rose slightly, but Irish bank and land stock prices did not change. According to the Unionist view, the failure of the measure to affect prices was the outcome of a belief among bankers and financiers that the bill will never become a law.

The exemption of Ireland from any contribution to the army, navy, diplomatic service, etc., also is severely criticised, while it is predicted that such a scheme of dual government as the bill proposes would lead to constant friction between theImperial and Irish Parliaments, since the imperial Parliament, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and the Privy Council each would possess the power of veto over the Irish Parliament.

The Man in the Tower Finds a $25 Suit

Had seen a number of them coming from the big tailor shops—all the much-sought, expressive, twilight shade.

Weber and Heilbroner's stock was searched—and an exact duplicate of this high-priced gray was found.

A roughish cheviot, either patch pockets or plain, and a soft lapel buttoning to one, two or three buttons.

Skeleton lining of fine custom tailors' mohair.

The price was $25.

Extravagant desires do not always lead to disappointment.

Haberdashery—another story told in almost the same words.

HEART BLOOD CLOT KILLED GEN. GRANT

Physicians Make No Mention of Cancerous Growth—Left St. Luke's Much Improved.

BURIAL AT WEST POINT

Funeral to Await Arrival of Princess Cantacuzene, His Daughter, Who Is Hastening Here.

A clot of blood on the heart, it was declared yesterday by the physicians who attended Major Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, in his last moments, was the immediate cause of his sudden death in the Hotel Buckingham about midnight Thursday. No mention was made in regard to the report that has been persistent both in the army and elsewhere for the last few weeks that Gen. Grant's decline was the result of cancer.

It is generally understood that Gen. Grant was operated upon in St. Luke's Hospital as long as three weeks ago, for a cancerous growth in his throat, and that a radium treatment was resorted to in the effort to restore him to health. For a time he appeared to be gradually improving, and when he was moved from St. Luke's to the Buckingham, those close to him believed that he had more than a fighting chance to ward off death for some years to come.

Gen. Grant's body will be taken from the Buckingham to Governors Island some time to-day, but the funeral probably will not be held for ten days, as Mrs. Grant and her son, Capt. Ulysses S. Grant, 3d, Corps of Engineers, wanted it postponed until the arrival in this country of the Princess Cantacuzene of Russia, who was Gen. Grant's only daughter. The Princess is now on the way to the coast and will sail on the first available fast liner that she can catch.

Hundreds of telegrams were received by Mrs. Grant yesterday from persons in every part of the United States, expressing sympathy for her in her bereavement. Among them were President Taft, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Major Gen. Wood, Chief of the General Staff in Washington; Secretary of War Stimson, Admiral Dewey, Miss Helen Gould, and many other well-known people.

Died Earlier Than First Reported.

In the death notice given to the newspapers by Lieut. Howze yesterday it was stated that the time of Gen. Grant's death was 11:30 o'clock Thursday night. It had been generally understood that the time of death was 12:17 o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Grant's worry and excitement that followed the sudden turn for the worse that ended in Gen. Grant's death kept the fact from being known for more than a half hour.

The secrecy with which Gen. Grant's whereabouts and the nature of his illness had been guarded since the day he left Governors Island, several weeks ago, caused Capt. Grant to issue a statement through Lieut. Howze yesterday afternoon.

"The apparent mystery," the statement read, "connected with Gen. Grant's illness has been due only to the fact that it was hoped by withholding his address from publication to protect him from the worry incident to the receipt of mail, transaction of business, and similar intrusions."

Capt. Grant arrived from Washington yesterday. At the Buckingham he assumed charge, with Lieut. Howze, of the arrangements for the transfer of his father's body to Governors Island, and he received the messages that were coming in all day from various parts of the Union. Hundreds of New York friends called at the Buckingham, and either left cards or personaly expressed their condolences.

Before the announcement was made that a clot of blood on the heart was the immediate cause of Gen. Grant's death, all manner of rumors were afloat as to the malady that afflicted him.

Neither Dr. Robert Abbe nor Dr. Edward B. Dench, the latter a throat and cancer specialist, who were the physicians who attended Gen. Grant in his last moments would discuss his illness beyond the brief mention in the death certificate made out by Dr. Abbe in which the cause of death was given as "cardiac thrombosis" or a clot of blood on the heart.

Capt. Grant conferred with Brig. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, now acting commander of the Eastern division; Col. George Andrews, Adjutant General of the division; Capt. Fenton, an aid on Gen. Grant's staff, and Lieut. Howze in reference to the funeral arrangements.

After that conference it was announced that the body would be removed to Governors Island to-day and there placed in the Chapel of St. Cornelius the Centurion to remain until the arrival in New York of the Princess Cantacuzene. There will be no ceremonies connected with the removal of the body.

From the moment the body is placed in the chapel until it is taken away for burial it will be constantly under guard of a detachment of soldiers from the Twenty-ninth United States Infantry, the garrisoning command on Governors Island. It has been decided to bury Gen. Grant in the army cemetery at West Point instead of in the Arlington National Cemetery at Washington. Gen. Grant is a West Pointer of the class of 1871. Only officers who are graduates of the United States Military Academy are buried in the cemetery at West Point.

It is understood the funeral will be an imposing one, although no announcement to that effect has been made. The body will probably be taken to West Point on one of the Government's vessels. At the ceremonies in this city all of the regular commands in and near New York will participate as well as the National Guard and the Grand Army of the Republic.

The General's Last Moments.

U. S. Grant Post of the Grand Army of the Republic in Brooklyn will bear a prominent part in the last honors to the dead General. At West Point the Corps of Cadets will have the place of honor and will be the escort of the body to the grave.

W. A. Purrington, for many years Gen. Grant's personal attorney, and one of his closest friends, was one of the few who talked yesterday of Gen. Grant's last moments. He said that he received a hurry telephone call and arrived at the hotel a few minutes before Gen. Grant breathed his last. Mr. Purrington said that Gen. Grant found great difficulty in breathing Thursday evening, and that suddenly his condition became so alarming that Mrs. Grant and the nurse tried to lift him from the bed and get him to a window in hope that the fresh air would revive him.

When Mrs. Grant and the nurse found that they could not lift the General one of them ran to the telephone and called the office. A bell boy hurried to the apartment, and when he saw the condition of Gen. Grant, ran back to the office and gave the alarm.

Mr. Purrington also said that the cause of death was a blood clot on the heart.

Here follow a few of the hundreds of messages received by Mrs. Grant yesterday. The first is from the President. It read:

> Mrs. Taft and I extend to you our heartfelt sympathy in your great sorrow. We mourn with you and cherish the memory of him that is gone, and of a long friendship for him. He rendered a loyal service to the country.

Ex-President and Mrs. Roosevelt sent the following:

> We are inexpressibly shocked and grieved. You know what an affection we had felt for for you both.

Secretary of War Stimson telegraphed:

> I am deeply shocked to learn of Gen. Grant's death. Mrs. Stimson and I send you our deepest sympathy in your sorrow.

This was from Admiral Dewey:

> Mildred and I send heartfelt sympathy, and share in your great sorrow.

Gen. Bliss, Acting Commander of the Eastern Division on Governors Island, and the staff officers there sent this expression of sympathy:

> Officers of the Division Staff join me in expression of deepest sympathy with you in your great bereavement in the loss of your beloved husband and our esteemed commander. We desire to assure you of our own devotion to yourself and to his memory. Pray command us for any service we can render now or in the future.

From Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul:

> Am sorely grieved in hearing of death of Gen. Grant, and beg leave to offer to you in your great bereavement the tribute of my deep sympathy. The army loses a most loyal and an efficient soldier.

Senator Root, who is the father-in-law of Capt. U. S. Grant, 3d, sent this dispatch:

> Believe in my deep sorrow and sincere and affectionate sympathy.

This was from Gen. Wood, the chief of the General Staff:

> Please accept sincerest and deepest sympathy in your great loss and sorrow. The army has lost an excellent officer and the country one of its best citizens.

Vice President Sherman telegraphed the sympathies of himself and Mrs. Sherman. There were scores of others, at least half of which neither Capt. Grant nor Lieut. Howze had time to open yesterday. Every one will be answered, and it was said that the messages have proved a source of great comfort for Mrs. Grant.

Ex-Supreme Court Justice Roger A. Pryor, who was a Brigadier General of the Confederacy, paid this tribute to Gen. Grant yesterday:

"The memory of the late Gen. Frederick Dent Grant is peculiarly dear to former Confederate soldiers. One thing they will remember of him is that, when the body of Mrs. Jefferson Davis was sent to Richmond for burial Gen. Grant detailed a company of his troops to escort her remains to the railroad station, and as they marched the military band played 'I'se Gwine Back to Dixie.' As they passed my house, Mrs. Pryor, who was then living, and myself, were melted to tears, it was so touching and beautiful a tribute."

THE NEW MAJOR GENERAL.

Probabilities Favor Wotherspoon, Though Funston Heads List.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—There is some speculation as to who will succeed to the vacancy in the list of Major Generals made by the death of Gen. Grant, with the probabilities in favor of Brig. Gen. Wotherspoon, who is now fifth on the list of Brigadier Generals. He will retire Nov. 16, 1914. Gen. Funston is first on the list of Brigadiers, but he has seventeen years of service before him yet before he will retire for age, and there is doubt if the President will promote him.

Doubt is expressed as to the selection of Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, for two reasons. One is gossip to the effect that, owing to his damaging testimony against Major Ray, the President would be indifferent to him. The other is that being an artilleryman, and there being but one Major General from the infantry arm, he would be out of it. The same consideration would stand against six or seven other Brigadiers, leaving Gen. R. K. Evans, now Chief of the Division of Militia Affairs, as a most eligible choice, and, in fact, there is a strong presumption that he will be the man. Gen. Pershing, commanding the Department of Mindanao, with headquarters at Zamboanga, had a very close call on his confirmation as Brigadier, although he is a son-in-law of Senator Warren, then Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, and it is thought unlikely that he would allow his name to be used as a candidate.

It is likely that Major Gen. Carter, now Assistant Chief of Staff, will be assigned to the command of the Eastern Division.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 12.—A private dispatch said to have been sent by an official of the War Department at Washington was received at Fort D. A. Russell to-night declaring that Senior Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston would succeed to the vacancy in the list of Major Generals caused by the death of Gen. Frederick D. Grant, and that Brig. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, Chief of the Insular Bureau, would succeed Funston as Brigadier General of the line.

U. S. GRANT, JR., IN ILL HEALTH.

Does Not Expect to Come from San Diego for the Funeral.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 12.—U. S Grant, Jr, for years a resident of thi city, denied himself to all visitors early to-day when he received news of the death of his elder brother, Major Gen. Frederick D. Grant. It was learned that probably neither Mr. Grant nor any member of his family would go East to attend the General's funeral. Mr. Grant's health has been unsatisfactory of late.

PORTRAYS DICKENS FOLK.

Mortimer Kaphan in Costumed Characters—Novelist's Son Interred.

The American Dickens League gave a Dickens memorial festival last night in Carnegie Hall. Because of the rain there was only a small attendance, but all were ardent Dickens admirers.

Mortimer Kaphan in costume portrayed Wilkens Micawber and Uriah Heep from "David Copperfield," the Grandfather from the "Old Curiosity Shop," and Fagin from "Oliver Twist." There were additional character portrayals in the form of moving pictures.

Baroness von Schomberg, who is Madame Morris E. Howlett, gave impressionistic dances. There was nothing of a distinctive Dickens nature about this part of the festival, but the dancer was showered with flowers, and her dancing was appreciated.

Interspersed were tributes to Charles Dickens by the Rev. William Carter, the Rev. Gustave Hausman, the Rev. Dr. James B. Wasson, and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman. Dr. Silverman named Shakespeare, Milton, and Dickens as the three greatest geniuses in the world's history. He saw in Dickens the most wonderful imaginative writer that ever lived, but objected seriously to certain characters in "Oliver Twist."

The body of Alfred Tennyson Dickens, son of Charles Dickens, and godson of Alfred Tennyson, the poet, was removed yesterday from the receiving vault in Trinity Cemetery, Amsterdam Avenue and 153d Street, to a grave in a plot donated by the Trinity Corporation. The casket, bearing many floral offerings from different branches of the Dickens family, was committed to the grave after the Episcopal burial service had been read by the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church. The honorary pall bearers were ex-Senator William A. Clark, H. H. Cammann, Henry Clews, Elihu Chauncey, Lee Keedick, and William C. Glass.

French Opera Company for the Lyric.

The attraction at the Lyric Theatre, following the engagement there of "Little Boy Blue," will be Jules Layolle's French Grand Opera Ccompany from the French Opera House, New Orleans, opening on Monday evening, April 22. The company will offer a répertoire including "La Bohème," "Manon," "Madama Butterfly," and similar pieces. Following the season of opera will come the revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience," under the direction of the Shuberts and William A. Brady.

WANTS TO REASSURE AMERICANS IN MEXICO

Burleson Will Show Taft Letters Saying Our Citizens Seek British Protection.

ANSWERS WILSON'S DENIAL

American Engineers Quit Railways Through Rebel Attacks—Orozco Won't Recognize Consul.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Representative Burleson of Texas, whose constituents now in Mexico are considerably alarmed over conditions in that country and concerned about their safety while looking after their property interests, was to-day shown a press dispatch from Mexico City in which Ambassador Wilson is reported as denouncing as "wholly untrue" and "undoubtedly malicious" the statements said to be contained in letters to Mr. Burleson to the effect that many Americans have enrolled their names with the British Legation, "expecting to obtain a measure of protection which they could not obtain from the embassy."

Mr. Burleson said:

"If there is anything wrong with the dispatch as published in The Dallas News it is that it is much milder than the statements in the letter to which the dispatch refers."

While Representative Burleson declines to give the names of his constituents who have written to him on the Mexican situation, or to make public any part of the communications that might disclose the identity of the writers, he gave extracts from two letters that bear on the subject to which Ambassador Wilson's statement refers. One extract reads:

"I wrote —— in my last letter that in case of trouble of a serious nature, to ask protection from the British Ambassador, as the English Government never lets anything stand in the way of protecting their people abroad."

An extract from another letter read by Representative Burleson reads:

"What decent Government would issue Taft's proclamation to Americans in Mexico telling them to leave and put their property in the care of the United States Consulates if intervention is not intended? When I went to the Consulate here to register my property I was told: 'We have read that order, but have received no instructions from the Department of State in Washington to act in the matter, so we can do nothing for you in the matter.' There were many mining men and others in the corridors trying, as I was, to register their properties, and all were given the same answer. A perfect panic has taken the Americans all over Mexico."

Mr. Burleson has not yet laid the correspondence before President Taft, as he intends to do at the earliest opportunity, but has taken the matter up with Senator Culberson.

President Madero is arming his navy and army with equipment purchased in this country under exceptions to the American proclamation forbidding the exportation of war material to Mexico. President Taft authorized the Mexican Government to-day to export from this country a large box of miscellaneous fittings for the guns of Mexican warships. The President also permitted the exportation of 2,000 boxes of dynamite for industrial concerns.

Two passenger trains in the State of Sonora were wrecked and fired on by rebels within the last two days, according to State Department advices to-day. A train running out of Guaymas was attacked Wednesday about thirty miles south of that city, one being killed and two wounded. The next day another train was wrecked at the same place, two people being killed and several injured.

In Southwestern Mexico, operation of the railway has been suspended south of San Blas, Sinaloa, while wire communication between Nogales and Mazatlan has again been cut.

Special to The New York Times.

LAREDO, Texas, April 12.—After being fired at by rebels for four nights in succession, American engineers of passenger trains of the National Railway of Mexico have given up their jobs and the night passenger traffic between the City of Mexico and points to the south and east coast is suspended. Joseph Greig, who learned his trade in the Harriman shops and roads in Texas is among those who have left the Mexican service, and has returned to this city "until after the war."

Greig was badly scalded last Tuesday night when a volley of rifle bullets crashed through his cab, broke the water gauge and wounded his Mexican fireman. News of these night attacks was not permitted to get out of Mexico by Madero's censors and his story on his arrival here to-day is the first information coming to the United States. Greig says the Zapata rebels are swarming throughout the districts south of Mexico City and are apparently harassing the American railroad employes in an effort to force intervention by the United States. No concerted attacks are made by Zapata on Madero outposts, he says, and the insurrectos are apparently unable to make a crushing blow at any point. Likewise the Madero troops are unable to put down the rebellion. His account of conditions throughout the south is in line with Orozco's operations along the Texas border and in Chihuahua.

The rebel leaders apparently are out of funds and ammunition, and hope to save themselves by forcing the United States to take a hand.

Special to The New York Times.

CHIHUAHUA, April 12.—Gen. Pascual Orozco, in a public statement made here to-day, declares that he will no longer recognize Marion Letcher as American Consul at this point. He gave as his reason that Letcher's language in a communication relative to the Consul's complaint that his (Orozco's) detectives had taken official documents from the mails was offensive to him. He admits that his detectives had taken from Americans en route to the United States certain letters and documents addressed to United States officials, but declares that this was done because the mail bore American stamps, which he asserts is a direct violation of Mexican postal laws.

Orozco says he is willing to recognize Mr. Letcher as soon as the United States Government recognizes the belligerency of the Liberal Party in Mexico, but in the meantime he will be compelled to treat the Consul like all other foreigners in the territory held by the rebels.

JIMINEZ, Mexico, April 12.—Capt. Silvestre Melendez and a small detachment of liberal troops were ordered to-day to occupy Sierra Mojada.

No resistance is expected. Large properties of the American Smelting and Refining Company are located there. The general situation is unchanged.

TUCSON, Ariz., April 12.—The Federal garrison of 400 at Culiacan, capital of the State of Sinaloa, was reported in a dispatch received here last night as being ready to evacuate upon the demand of a superior number of rebels under Gen. Franco.

The rebels agreed, the dispatch stated, to enter the capital without bloodshed if given 25,000 pesos. This amount was quickly raised by the citizens and turned over to the rebel leader, who is reported as being very popular in Culiacan and vicinity.

Whether the actual occupation of the city by the rebels occurred is not stated.

An American writing from Mexico City says:

"The citizens of the United States resident in Mexico City have made all arrangements for protection from mob violence or other form of attack in case the rebels take the city, or of intervention by the United States.

"We have a section in Colonia Rovia set aside as a demarcation, in which we have the Hotel Geneve and eleven rented houses, all within two squares of the United States Embassy. We have $30,000 of provisions stored in the houses and have 1,000 Krag-Jorgensen rifles and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition which have been sent from the United States with the knowledge and consent of the constituted Government, and are all to be here to-morrow, coming up from Vera Cruz under guard of Federal troops.

"There are ample sanitary supplies and medical and surgical supplies within our demarcation, and out of the Americans' force it is said by one of the committee that 800 have had military service. So if the event occurs we can make a fair account of ourselves. I am assigned to the squad under Capt. Darr, U. S. A., who lives at our hotel."

Newlin Trainer; Vestrymen—George Bowen Smith, Mervyn Wentworth Palmer, Charles P. Benns, Charles R. Wager, Charles R. Bissell, Francis B. Stedman, Dr. William Gaudineer, and Herman W. Holtzhauser.

DOROTHY WATERS SECRETLY WEDDED

Young Debutante Becomes Bride of B. F. Gatins, Despite Parents' Opposition.

NOW ON THEIR HONEYMOON.

Gatins Followed Her When Her Family Sent Her Abroad—Mrs. Waters Denied Engagement.

Mrs. Joseph Francis Gatins of 71 Central Park West confirmed last night the report that her son, Benjamin Kiely Gatins, had been married to Miss Dorothy Philips Waters of 274 Madison Avenue. Mrs. Gatins said that the marriage was performed at the rectory of the Roman Catholic Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Broadway and Seventy-first Street, on Wednesday by the Rev. Father Gilmartin. Her son and his wife are now out of the city on their honeymoon.

The marriage followed a romantic courtship which included a pursuit of the bride to France. Miss Waters, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Jason Waters, left her home on Wednesday morning, with only a handbag containing her jewels, met Mr. Gatins, and about 10:30 they procured a marriage license. In the application she gave her age as 21 years. This is said to be at least three years older than she is commonly believed to be. Mr. Gatins gave his age as 23 years. After getting the license the young people hurried to the rectory to comply with the canonical requirement of the Catholic Church that a wedding must take place before noon. The Rev. Father Mathew A. Taylor, rector of the church, was out, and the marriage was performed by his assistant, Father Gilmartin.

The engagement of Mr. Gatins and Miss Waters had been rumored all Winter in society, but was denied by Mrs. Waters. Soon after New Year's Day, Miss Waters and her sister Ruth were sent abroad to visit their aunt, the Baroness Meyeronet Jacques de St. Marck, at Nice, who was Miss Ellen Wain of Philadelphia. It was reported that the trip was taken because of the wish of the Waters family to break off the intimacy which had led to the engagement rumors. Soon after their arrival in Nice Mr. Gatins put in an appearance, and the Waters girls were recalled home.

Mr. Gatins's mother would not tell his whereabouts last night. It is known, however, that he had his motor cars and polo ponies sent to Atlanta a few days ago. He and his brother own Gregorian Terrace, a hotel in that city, given to them by his father. Mrs. Gatins and her sister, Miss Ruth Waters, made their début in Philadelphia society the past Winter at a tea given by their parents at 1,823 Walnut Street. They made their entrance into New York society soon afterward.

REFINERS FOR FREE SUGAR.

Producers Want Tariff to Keep Up the Price, Says F. C. Lowry.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Frank C. Lowry, representing the Federal Refining Company of New York, resumed his testimony to-day before the Senate Finance Committee in advocacy of the House Free Sugar bill.

He denied that the refiners would derive all the benefit from the importation of free sugar, and declared that sugar manufacturers were asking for the retention of the tariff to keep up the cost of sugar to the consumer.

CUBANS NOW PAY HONORS TO KNOX

SPEECH AROUSES COMMENT

Described in Some Papers as "Another Warning to Cuba"—Others See Only Good Will in It.

HAVANA, April 12.—The Cuban Government, which had been reproached for not receiving Secretary of State Knox with the honors due his high office, answered their critics to-night by making Mr. and Mrs. Knox the guest of honor at the most magnificent ball they have attended during their trip through the Latin-American republics.

The ball was held in the Ministry of State, which formerly was the palace of the General commanding the engineers of the Spanish forces, a splendid building, which adjoins the Ministry of the Interior and overlooks the harbor directly opposite Cabanas fortress. It was aglow with 12,000 colored electric lights.

The dancing took place on the stone terrace, over which was erected a bower of American Beauty roses. The entire building also was decorated with flowers, and three bands of music, totaling 200 pieces, were stationed, respectively, on the terrace and in the courtyard and supper room. The guests numbered over 2,000, and included the members of the Diplomatic Corps, Government and State officials, and society generally. It was the greatest turnout of beautifully gowned women Mr. and Mrs. Knox have seen during the tour.

Gen. Sanguily, Secretary of State, and Senora Sanguily received the guests, and as each diplomat entered a band played the national anthem of his country. Secretary Knox was much gratified over the function.

Throughout the day there have been heated discussions of yesterday's attitude of the Cuban Government in receiving Mr. Knox, especially among the members of the colony, who were divided in their opinions on the subject. The yall, however, deeply regretted the seeming apathy of the greeting extended the American Secretary. It seems that the American colony desired to take the initiative in the welcoming demonstration, but received an intimation from Washington not to do so, as it would be more proper that it should be taken by the Cubans.

One faction of the Americans insisted that the absence of decorations, music, and a guard of honor to greet Mr. Knox was an intentional slight, or due to stupidity. The other faction replied that the Cubans showed their feelings in a splendid manifestation at the burial of the battleship Maine, and in the present case chose a dignified course of formal functions without hurrahs and a brass band accompaniment.

At any rate, though yesterday's reception of the American Secretary unquestionably surprised and puzzled the Americans in Cuba, to-night's ball was all that could be desired.

The Secretary and his party took a motor car excursion in the morning to the Merceditas sugar plantation, near Cabanas. The party sails for the United States on the cruiser Washington on Saturday night.

To-day's papers devote much space to the visit of the Secretary of State. All make a feature of a part of his last night's speech, which is described as "Another Warning to Cuba," but the interpretation of his remarks is made on party lines. The Government papers say that the Secretary of State warned all factions to be good and unite in support of the Government. The opposition papers declare that Mr. Knox's reference to those who make a business of the politics of their country was intended for those who sat nearest him at table. It was noticeable that while Mr. Knox's compliments to Cuba were applauded, his advice was received silently.

The Post, a Government paper, in its news story, says: "Mr. Knox made a left-handed but none the less pregnant declaration of what, in his opinion, Cuba must do to be saved. Sifted down to a sentence, the Secretary of State declared that the people and not the politicians must rule. Most of his remarks were of the complimentary nature, which is supposed to be especially pleasant for Latin-American consumption. Only when his remarks turned to political conditions and civic necessities in countries whose people have been liberated from oppressive tyranny did they savor of criticism. Then, indeed, his hearers pricked up their ears and looked at each other significantly. He touched on Cuba only by intimation, but the intimation was so strong that it could not be misunderstood."

An editorial in The Post is addressed "especially to the newspaper men" of Mr. Knox's party, and warns them against taking stock in gossip-inviting intervention. It continues:

"It is to be feared that the stage was set somewhat favorably for the preliminary success of the campaign of the Annexationists. Secretary Knox and his party did not find ranking officials of the Government to welcome them, although formalities were all carefully observed.

"Neither was the city decorated with American colors, nor were any appreciably obvious cheering throngs to be seen. In fact, Cuba acted in a perfectly normal way, rendering only due honor to the visiting statesman. It was not hysterical, and there were no meaningless folderols. Neither were there any bombs beneath the railroad track. Frankly, Cuba will treat Secretary Knox in the manner suggested by international courtesy and dignity and full appreciation of his position and of the friendliness existing between the two nations.

"In the reception of Mr. Knox Cuba is not in competition with other countries, is not a supplicant for royal or republican favor, and is content in the assurance of President Taft, reiterated by Secretary Knox, that the intentions of the United States are only those of a beneficent protector, ready to issue a friendly warning when danger threatens and by kind counsel to maintain the independence of a nation of its own creation. There is no occasion for intervention, and no excuse or pretext for annexation."

The newspapers say that three or four anarchists are reported to have landed recently, and that Mr. Knox is closely guarded by Secret Service men. If that is so the guard is not conspicuous.

The evening newspapers Ultima Mora and La Prensa comment in terms of highest appreciation on the sentiments of friendship expressed by Secretary Knox. They say they coincided with the patriotic utterances and assurances of affectionate accord between the two nations as expressed in the response of Secretary Sanguily. The unanimity of views of both the orators is regarded by these newspapers as an assurance that the two republics under their respective flags will march arm in arm along the path of progress.

To-morrow the American Club will keep open house and the city of Havana will give a garden party in honor of Secretary Knox and his party.

ROW OVER WOMAN LOBBYIST.

Mann Says Indian Committee Chairman Lets Her Shape Legislation.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A scathing denunciation of members of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department was delivered to-day on the House floor by Mr. Mann of Illinois, the minority leader. He charged that Mr. Graham of Illinois, Chairman of the committee, had permitted a woman lobbyist, known by him to be in the employ of persons pressing claims before the committee, to shape legislation.

Mrs. Helen Pierce Gray of Minnesota was the woman named by Mr. Mann, and he charged that for three months she had occupied a desk in the office of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs on the strength of her relations with the House committee. In that time, said Mr. Mann, Mrs. Gray had solicited and received fees amounting to several hundred dollars from Indian claimants before the Government. Mr. Mann said that a dissatisfied Indian had filed a protest with Chairman Graham and that he had told the woman to "keep the money."

Mrs. Gray in 1908 brought charges against Indian Agent Reynolds, alleging that while she was on the Crow Indian Reservation writing syndicate articles she had been thrown into jail and threatened with incarceration in a cell with a male Indian. The charges were aired for a number of weeks before the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs.

The storm broke in the House to-day when Representative Graham's committee asked for the adoption of a resolution providing for an Indian investigation in New Mexico. In opposing it Mr. Mann said:

"The Democratic investigations have cost the Government more than $100,000." He shook his clenched fists at the Democratic side as he added, "They have not disclosed any scandal so great as that of a committee of the House retaining within its scope a person who solicits and receives money to use his or her influence in forcing legislation through for the benefit of clients." Mr. Mann demanded that Mrs. Gray be summarily shut out from the committee and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Representative Hill of Connecticut, Republican, also protested against the appropriation of any money for a further inquiry into Indian affairs. He denounced the proposed trip to New Mexico as a forerunner of others, "until 100 or 150 sub-committees of investigation are wandering around the country, training their olfactory sense in trying to smell out something to investigate."

Mr. Graham made no reply to Mr. Mann's charges, and the resolution was adopted, 64 to 41.

$100,700,000 FOR NAVY.

House Committee to Report Bill—New Battleships to be Considered.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The House Naval Affairs Committee agreed to-day to report a bill carrying appropriations aggregating $100,700,000 for the maintenance of the navy for the coming year.

The appropriation bill contains no provision for new battleships, in accordance with the twice declared decision of the Democratic caucus, but appropriations will be provided for auxiliaries, colliers, torpedo boats, and torpedo boat destroyers. The committee will determine the number of vessels, and the money that will be added to the $100,700,000 appropriation.

Consideration of the question of an appropriation for new battleships has been deferred until next Thursday.

The Senate to-day passed the Army Appropriation bill carrying $95,314,710, or $7,537,453 more than when it passed the House and $2,726,925 more than last year's bill. Senator Warren said the increase had been made necessary by the economy wave which swept over Congress last year and caused unwarranted reductions.

PAID STRANGER $100 FOR BABY'S RETURN

But the Bills Were Marked and Go-Between Is Held for Extortion.

THEN MOTHER TURNS UP

With the Child, Whom Father Takes Home, but His Wife Goes Her Way.

When Louis Schwartz, janitor of an apartment house at 6 Gramercy Park West, accepted $100 from John Konig, a well-to-do ice dealer of 112 Butler Street, Brooklyn, in the Eighteenth Street station of the Subway last Thursday night, he did not known that the bills were marked and that two detectives stood beside Konig. For the $100, Konig alleged, his missing 3-year-old son, William, was to be returned to him by Schwartz.

Konig is 52 years old, and his wife, Elizabeth, is 30. The couple have been married nine years, and with them live several grown-up children of Konig by a former marriage. On the evening of March 18 last Konig went to the theatre with a friend. His wife slipped quietly from the house, taking with her baby William. She left behind her 6-year-old son, Leonard. At the same time that Mrs. Konig disappeared from home a young man, Joseph Hurley of 463 West Avenue, Brooklyn, who had been paying her attention, disappeared, too.

When Mrs. Konig failed to return home with the baby her husband did not report her disappearance to the police as he wished to avoid publicity. He believed he could himself learn her whereabouts.

Konig received a letter last Monday from Schwartz, who was a stranger to him. The letter requested Konig to call, assuring him that he would hear something to his advantage. On the following day he called on Schwartz, who told him that he was a friend of a man who knew where the child was, and that this man wanted $100 for the return of the child. Konig said he told Schwartz he could not give him $100 at the time, but offered to pay him $25 and the balance later. Schwartz, according to Konig, told him he could not accept the terms until he had seen the man who knew where the child was. He asked Konig to telephone him the following day.

Konig then decided to tell the police. He was advised by Detectives Gomeringer and Downs to make an appointment to meet Schwartz and to hand him ten ten-dollar bills which the detectives marked for identification.

When Konig handed the money to Schwartz in the Subway station Konig declares Schwartz remarked, "You will have your child by 10 o'clock to-night." Konig then walked to Gramercy Park with Schwartz followed by Gomeringer and Downs. On reaching the park the detectives arrested Schwartz. On being placed under arrest Schwartz exclaimed to Konig, "Now you will never get your child back," the detectives say.

Konig and the detectives afterward returned to Brooklyn and spent the rest of Thursday night trying to locate Mrs. Konig and little William. Late yesterday afternoon Konig received a telephone message from his wife, telling him that if she would meet him at Sumner Avenue and Fulton Street she would return William to him. When Konig when there he found his wife and the baby awaiting him. On seeing his father William ran joyously to him. Konig embraced William and with his wife boarded a trolley car. They parted ten blocks from his home, the husband taking the child.

Konig said last night that his wife told him she was with friends in a house in De Kalb Avenue. She had left home, she said, because she found conditions there did not suit her.

"She is not to return here," he said.

Schwartz is charged with extortion. He was committed to the Tombs in default of $1,000 bail for examination to-day in the Yorkville Court. The police are looking for Hurley, with whom, Mrs. Konig maintained, she did not run away.

NEW HARVESTER PLAN READY

Wickersham Approves and Trust Is to Pass Upon It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—After three separate efforts through prolonged conferences a plan for the dissolution of the Harvester Trust has been evolved. Edwin Bancroft, the general attorney for the Harvester Trust, left Washington for Chicago to-day to submit the conditions laid down by the Department of Justice as an ultimatum to the Directors of the trust.

Twice heretofore Mr. Bancroft has gone from Washington to Chicago with carefully elaborated plans for readjusting the business of the trust only to be obliged to return to seek more favorable terms. The trust Directors profess to be entirely willing to dissolve if they can do so without destroying their several properties and doing injury to stockholders.

The present negotiations have been in progress for a few weeks and have had the direct personal attention of Attorney General Wickersham. It is understood that the Secretary of the Interror, Mr. Fisher, has also shared in some of the conferences. None of the Government lawyers who have been involved in the case is willing to discuss the final plan which has received the approval of the Attorney General. It is understood, however, that Mr. Wickersham has endeavored to avoid the method of dissolution adopted in the American Tobacco and Standard Oil cases. As nearly as possible the effort has been to restore the component companies to a competitive basis. No attempt has been made to return to the status quo ante, that being regarded as practically impossible.

CHILD LABOR BILL IN HOUSE.

New Measure Sets Fourteen Years as Minimum Prohibited Age.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The child labor bill prepared by the Commission on Uniformity of State Laws was introduced in the House to-day by Representative Cox of Ohio.

The bill, which is to apply to the District of Columbia, would prohibit employment of children under 14 years in any capacity, and of children under 16 in work about any machinery or hazardous process. No employer would be permitted to work any child who cannot speak and read English. A child must also have had at least five years of school.

The bill would prohibit employment of any one under 21 years where liquor is made or sold or as messenger after 10 o'clock at night, or employment of any child for more than six days of eight hour each in any week. News boys and girls under 12 would be absolutely prohibited, and no boy under 14 would be permitted to black boots.

Children under 16 could not be employed without certificates of age, health, and conduct issued by the Superintendent of Schools, who would be authorized to employ Inspectors to enforce the law. Employers who violate the act would be fined from $5 to $50 for the first offense, to $200 for the second offense, and imprisonment for sixty days for the third offense. The children would be dealt with by a juvenile court.

REFUSE ALL NAMES IN WINDSOR THEFT

President Will Not Say Who Had Access to Paying Teller's Cage.

AN OFFICIAL MENTIONED

Employes Ask for Publicity of $29,647 Loss, Saying Suspicion Is Hurting Them.

Disturbed because of the inability of the officers and Directors of the Windsor Trust Company at Cedar and Nassau Streets to fix the responsibility for the theft of $29,467 from the paying teller's cage a month ago, employes of the bank commenced an agitation yesterday in favor of publicity and the publication of the names of those who had access to the cage on the day the theft occurred.

The employes urged that so long as the responsibility for the theft remained unfixed, suspicion rested upon every man in the bank, and this made it very awkward, not only so far as the bank itself was concerned, but in their contact with others in the financial district.

One version of the manner of the money's disappearance that reached the public without full verification was to the effect that the money was placed by Paying Teller Orie R. Kelly on the morning of March 16 in a box near a card index in his cage. There were in the box twenty-nine $1,000 bills and a few smaller bills.

The paying teller, it was said, did not miss the money until he attempted to strike a balance on the day's work at closing time. He then reported it to his superiors, and detectives of the Burns Agency were called in. They questioned Kelly for three hours, and became convinced that he was innocent. Kelly is said to have given the Burns operatives the name of an official in the bank who was in the cage during the day looking over the card index.

Clerks in the bank also declared to the detectives, it is asserted, that they had seen this official in the paying teller's cage during the day and saw him remain there looking over the card index while the paying teller left the cage for a moment on bank business.

Clark Williams, President of the bank, was asked by a TIMES reporter at his home, at 293 Madison Avenue, last night if he did not think that in justice to the others the name of the official said to have been looking over the card index should be made public?

"Positively, I do not," Mr. Williams replied with considerable emphasis.

"And would you be willing to give out the names of all those having access to the paying teller's cage?"

"I am sorry," said Mr. Williams, "but I cannot help you out in any discussion of this affair. Under no conditions would I name the bank officials you ask about. Positively every word I have to say on the subject was said in THE TIMES of last Sunday."

In the statement referred to, Mr. Williams verified rumors that $29,467 had disappeared from the bank's funds and stated that this amount ha dbeen charged off from the undivided profits and surplus. The official whose name the clerks wish made public is said to be still at the bank daily, as he has been since the theft was first discovered.

Have Won a Warm Welcome

They have cut down the expenditure of the man who usually gives $22 to $25 for his Spring Suit or Overcoat, by $5.50 to $8.50.

Or, looking at it from the other angle, they enhance the buying power of a man's $16.50 by the same margin.

Pleasant, isn't it, while the season is still so young?

Several good-looking models among the SUITS, including the narrow-shouldered, soft-lapel type. Blues, plain and fancy, also browns, grays and mixtures.

The OVERCOATS are Chesterfields, in black, and dark and light Oxford gray. Fully silk-lined, with cloth or silk lapels. For dress or business wear.

$16.50 is the price; with most of the offering of the $25 grade, and $22 as the minimum. Fourth Floor

Books at Macy's

We sell books, as we sell everything else, at lower prices than any other store. The Book Trust has not driven us out of business. Our twelve-year-old fight with the Book Trust has been made in the interest of the public as much as in the interest of our customers. It is a fight to maintain the principle of freedom to sell at our own prices. Owing to this fight, we still have difficulty in obtaining books, particularly new fiction. Therefore, to make our regular profit, we cannot afford to undersell other stores to a greater extent than 10% on these books.

But on other merchandise, which we have as great or greater facilities than other stores for obtaining, the Macy Saving often mounts up to 20% and 25%.

Below is a list of new fiction, giving Macy prices and prices elsewhere.

GYPSY BRIDE YIELDS TO HER WANDERLUST

Wooed and Won by Port Chester Constable in Real, Rapid Motion Picture Style.

THEN THE LONG ROAD CALLS

And Though Her Converted Husband Offers to Follow It, She Vanishes Without Him.

It was two years ago that the Bill Cooper band of gypsies from England settled down in Port Chester, N. Y., the women folk telling fortunes and the men trading horses with the townspeople. Their gaudy wagons and their gaudier raiment, their twinkling campfires at night, and the beauty of some of the gypsy girls had all Port Chester visiting the camp.

Big Frank Bell, the constable, was as frequent a visitor as any. As a horse trader—the business by which he made his living—Bell refused to concede that even a gypsy could get the better of him. He dickered with the best of them, and in half a dozen trades found that he could at least hold his own.

But it was the strangely brilliant black eyes of an olive-skinned, black-haired young gypsy that drew Bell again and again to the camp, and on every visit Bell had her read his palm. She was the daughter of Eli Bass, leader of a famous band of gypsies in England, she told him, and in her own camp she had been Queen. And then she confessed that in her own band she had been married. Three small children that played about the wagon were hers, but their father was in England still. Him she had deserted for a handsome young gypsy, who came just then to interrupt her conversation with the constable and to order her roughly to prepare his supper.

Bell left the camp, angry and disappointed. It had been on his tongue to ask the gypsy girl to leave her band and become his wife. He strode slowly toward the town, and had almost reached it when the gypsy girl, flying along the road as fast as she could run, overtook him. She had been beaten cruelly, and she had determined to apply for the arrest of the man who struck her. It was contrary to the gypsy code, but she had been a Queen in her own band, and the man she had left it for had raised his hand against her.

Bell, enraged by her recital, went with her to Justice of the Peace Wilcox. He issued a warrant for the arrest of Herbert Smith, the gypsy with whom the one-time queen had eloped, and Bell received it gladly to serve. He yanked the young gypsy from his camp, regardless of his protests, and the threats of others of the band, and produced him before Justice Wilcox.

Cast Out by Gypsies, She Weds.

The story was soon told, and the Justice gave Smith his choice of serving a term in jail or of leaving the country immediately. Smith chose the latter alternative, and the next day sailed for England. The girl and the three small children stayed behind, but no longer with the gypsy band. She had brought the police upon them and the band would have none of her. Such of her belongings as she could carry away she brought into Portchester and began the task of earning a living for herself and her children by weaving and selling fancy baskets.

And then, one day, Bell's family received word from him that he had eloped to Old Lyme, Conn., with the gypsy girl, and there they had been married. Her desertion of her first husband and her abandonment by her second constituted all the divorce which is necessary under the gypsy law, Bell told his folks, and he was legally married.

But the Bell family could not see it in the same light. They gave Bell the chance of abandoning his wife or being disowned. He gave up his family and redoubled his efforts at horse trading. He prospered, and when the baby, Frances, was born, eleven months ago, Bell and his family had a nice home at 14 Pearl Street, Portchester, and he had a business which was growing daily.

It was not until last Christmas that there came the first trouble to disturb Bell's happiness. His wife became silent and then sad. She did not complain, but when Bell taxed her with it she admitted that she was longing for the old times on the road. The days of traveling in the circus-like wagons and the nights spent in them or under the stars if the season and the weather permitted—it was for these she yearned, she told Bell, and instantly he decided.

"If your people can make a living trading horses on the road, why can't I?" he demanded. "I know a horse better than any gypsy that ever lived. We will build a wagon and start on the road. I will give up my business here."

And Bell gave orders for the construction of a wagon, more complete and more gaudy than any gypsy wagon that ever was built. His wife brightened at once. Nightly when he returned from his work they talked of the wagon and of the trips they would take. Bell became consoled to the idea himself, and looked forward almost as much as his wife to the days and nights on the road. They were waiting only for warmer and settled weather to make their start, and then, yesterday, Bell returned from Mount Kisco, where he had traded a horse, to find his wife and the children missing.

Will Birdsall, a stable hand, told him that his wife had stopped in at noon and had asked him to say good-bye for her to her husband.

"We are going, I and the children, and we are never coming back. Give Frank our love and tell him good-by," she had told Birdsall.

It was 4 o'clock then, and Bell rushed to the station. The agent remembered that his wife and the children had taken the 12:15 train for New York. Bell [illegible] next train and reached here [illegible] 5 o'clock.

He went to Police Headquarters and told Lieut. Murphy of his courtship, his marriage, and finally of his desertion. His wife was homesick, he told the Lieutenant, and she probably meant to return to her parents in England. He had looked up the steamers, and suspected that she would sail on the Olympic at 3 o'clock to-day. The police promised to search for her, and Bell almost in tears over his trouble, left Headquarters, saying that he was going to search the hotels along the water front.

"I think I'll find her there," he said, "and I think if I can talk to her a moment she'll come home to me. I hope so, but if I find them I shan't return anyway without Baby Frances."

ENDING GRADE CROSSINGS.

Service Board Has Crossings Listed and Money to Eliminate Them.

Grade crossings will be eliminated on the railroads running through the city this year at a cost of $1,400,000. The Legislature, which has just adjourned, appropriated for this purpose $300,000, which must be divided equally between the territories of the up-State and the city commissions. This gives the city a State grant of $350,000, and as the city must supply an equal amount of money and the railroads concerned double as much the amount available for the Public Service Commission of the First District is $1,400,000.

This sum will be expended on the removal of these grade crossings:

Main Line of the Long Island Railroad, Borough of Queens—Crossing at Hamilton Street. Total estimated cost, $25,000.

Staten Island Railway, Borough of Richmond—Crossing at Clove Avenue and discontinuance of crossings at Sheridan Avenue, Grassmere Avenue, Garretson Place, and Parkinson Avenue. Total estimated cost, $150,000.

The commission is also considering the elimination of grade crossings on the Ozone Park line of the Long Island Railroad at Grafton Avenue, Broadway, Belmont Avenue, Liberty Avenue, and Rockaway Plank Road, and also on the Far Rockaway branch of the Long Island Railroad at Atlantic Avenue, Park Avenue, Smith Street, Carnaga Avenue, Hollywood Avenue, Sea View Avenue, Mott Avenue, Carlton Avenue, McNeil Avenue, and Clark Street.

$4,000 FOR JADE MOUNTAIN.

Western Collector Buys Sculptured Mass from Chinese Emperor's Palace.

T. B. Springer, a collector from the Northwest, paid the highest price at the Squiers sale at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, $4,000 for the wonderful jade mountain which was a feature of the collection, and which is said to be the largest mass of sculptured jade in existence. It came originally from the Summer palace of the Chinese Emperor, near Peking. It weighs 640 pounds, is 23 inches high, and 38½ by 18½ in width. It forms a typical Chinese mountain landscape, smooth peaks with trees set sparsely here and there in sheltered nooks, and houses and pavilions.

On the face of the mountain, over a pavilion, is inscribed, in fine characters, the "Lan Ting Hsu," which means Epidendrum Pavilion Essay, composed by Wang Hi'che, A. D. 321-379. This celebrates the meetings of a Fourth Century Literary Club, whose members gathered on the banks of a mountain stream, to compose, undisturbed, their poems.

Ogden Mills yesterday paid $1,250 for an ancient bronze sacrificial wine vessel in the form of the sacred ox, and S. Putnam $2,000 for an imperial cloisonne enamel vase from the palace of the Empress at Peking. This was 41 inches high, and the phoenix bird supports were set with semi-precious stones. Three imperial palace tables of lacquer went to C. L. Dewing for, respectively, $1,000, $975, and $650.

The returns for the afternoon were $37,882, and for the entire sale, which was concluded yesterday, $118,699.

GRAVES ART BRINGS $59,954.

Snuff Boxes and Antique Busts Bought at Concluding Sale.

The sale of the John L. Graves collection of East Indian jewelry, porcelains, and pictures, and other art objects was concluded last evening at the Anderson Galleries, bringing a total for the week of $59,954. The lot of snuff boxes sold last evening brought $605. One of agate with emerald and green white jade top went to Kaldenberg for $34, and another of sage green and yellow agate and jade top to the same buyer for $37. Edgar Perera and M. F. Hammond bought other boxes.

A red lacquer box went to G. B. Wheeler for $210; three elaborately carved ivory tusks to S. M. Schaser for $250; R. Johnson paid $175 for an antique bust of a first century Roman matron and $250 for an antique bust of Hermes. W. S. Maxwell paid $155 for a bust of Germanicus Caesar, exhumed in the Island of Cyprus, and $270 for an old Flemish tapestry. The Lans Curiosity Company gave $105 for a fine old Colonial sideboard. The returns for the evening were $3,534.

WHITE SLAVER CONVICTED.

Mrs. Mercury Found Guilty of Keeping Niece in Disorderly Resort.

Rebecca Mercury of 161 Manhattan Avenue was convicted on a white slavery charge yesterday before Judge Crain in General Sessions after the jury had been out for twenty minutes. Mrs. Mercury enticed her niece, Jennie Johnson, 19 years old, of Bergenfield, to her home, which was a disorderly resort, and kept her there.

The testimony showed that Miss Johnson bore a good reputation before she met her aunt, and that she had been detained in the house against her will. Mrs. Mercury will be sentenced Monday.

FAIL TO FIND GIRL AND STOLEN BABY

Hannah Boyorsky, Whose Crazes Are Infants and Flowers, Sought in City's Parks.

DEMENTED BY SUFFERING

Not the First Child Carried Off by the 17-Year-Old Girl, According to the Police.

Hannah Boyorsky, the seventeen-year-old girl who carried of a ten-month-old baby, Ruth, the daughter of Abraham Fleischman of 1,437 Madison Avenue, on Thursday, has aroused sympathy as well as keen anxiety in the police and others interested in the finding of the child.

The baby was taken by the girl from her carriage in front of the 100th Street entrance to Mount Sinai Hospital. All day yesterday a force of detectives under Capt. Werzansky of the East 104th Street station searched for Hannah and the baby. The police have learned that two years ago illness affected the mind of the girl, and since then she has been consumed by two passions—for flowers and for children. So the police searched yesterday every park and botanical garden in the city. Up to a late hour last night their search had been without success.

The girl, who lives with her mother at 397 Wyona Street, Brooklyn, had suffered first from appendicitis, and later from an abscess of the stomach, and had been operated upon several times.

When Mrs. Fleischman went to the hospital Thursday afternoon with her sister Rose, who is ill, and her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Rappaport, the baby was left outside in charge of Annie Meyers, a sixteen-year-old nurse of 61 East 104th Street. In the reception room of the hospital Mrs. Rappaport met Hannah Boyorsky, who was there for treatment. The girl, who has dark hair, was without a hat, and wore a blue sweater, black top coat, checked skirt, and black shoes and stockings. She sat down beside Rose and her mother, and began to talk incoherently of her ailment. She told them her name, and said she had come all the way from Brooklyn to be treated, and the doctors had told her another serious operation was necessary.

"Oh, how I love babies," she confided to those in the reception room, apropos of nothing.

When the doctors told Mrs. Rappaport that Rose would have to undergo an operation, and asked her to sign a paper, she became somewhat excited. Annie Meyers left her little charge alone and came in to bid the other girl good-bye. While she was doing this Hannah Boyorsky left the room.

When Annie got back to the baby carriage she screamed that the baby was gone. Hannah Boyorsky had left in the carriage a bundle containing her corsets.

According to the police, the girl carried away another child several months ago. This was never reported to the police, they say, for after keeping the child out all night she brought it home the next evening.

Capt. Werzansky said he believed that the baby would receive the best of care from the girl, and that lack of money would drive her into the hands of the police.

The hospital books show that the girl under the name of Anna Cohen had applied for treatment. She said she lived at 338 East 100th Street. Later she returned and gave her address as Wyona Street, Brooklyn. Mrs. Gussie Boyorsky, her mother, is a widow. Her husband, it is said, was killed in the Kishinev massacre. The family is very poor.

Abraham Fleischman is a designer of women's waists for Schwartz & Zietman, in Greene Street. All day long at his home the parents waited, hoping that each ring at the bell announced a detective bringing them word that the baby had been found.

Missouri Jury Frees Woman.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 12.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Annie Hunning, on trial at Hillsboro, Mo., on a charge of complicity in the murder of her husband, Martin Hunning, failed to agree to-day, and was discharged after being out twenty-one hours. According to a juror the final ballot was 11 to 1 for acquittal. Joseph Seidl was recently convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for killing Hunning.

NEARLY 100 SUITS AND DRESSES in misses' and juniors' sizes, the sample line of a good manufacturer, will form today one of the exceptional Sales that have made the Loeser Store for Feminine Apparel famous.

These are all well made in strict accordance with the ideas of excellence that have become known as "Loeser Standard." They include Suits of whipcord, serge, diagonals, fancy mixtures, plain colors, checks, stripes, white, navy, tan, gray, etc. They embody practically all the distinctive Parisian ideas that are making apparel for the youthful so attractive this Spring. The tailoring is high class, the trimmings are fine, all the lines are good. There are plenty of the always popular white and navy.

Nearly all of them are of wholesale values greater than the price at which we sell them all today—$12.98.

Women's $1 to $1.50 Vests, 79c Of Lisle Thread. Pretty Styles

ONE OF THE LARGEST WHOLESALERS had a number of odd groups of fine Vests, a few dozen of one style and a few dozen of another, etc., and because they interfered with his regular lines we were able to buy them at a special price.

This lot at 79c. is one of the good values secured. They are of superior lisle thread with elaborate hand crocheted tops in a number of pretty designs, and all are finished in the very best manner possible.

$1 Silk Plaited Vests at 69c.

Women's $1 Combination Suits for 69c.

We have had several lots of Combination Suits to sell at this price, but this we consider the best value. They are of lisle thread, in the new three-piece effect; some wide at knee, trimmed with lace; others tight at knee and trimmed with lace.

Second Floor.

Imported, All Silk, 42 Inches Wide.

These fine Silks were imported from France to sell at $1.50 a yard. They were delayed in transit and arrived just a little too late for the merchant ordering them. We thus secured the lot at a reduction that enables us to make a Sale at the very little price of $1 a yard.

They are of good weight, a beautiful weave, all silk, and are printed in neat designs on the best color grounds and jacquarded. The quality is excellent and the width is full 42 inches. At $1 instead of $1.50 a yard, we think that an extraordinary value is in store for the early shopper today.

BANK'S LOSS LIKELY TO REACH $250,000

CONTROLLED ITS AFFAIRS

Lavishly Entertained Musicians and Actors, and Aided Young Men—Exposure Due to Alleged Blackmailer.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., April 12.—Frank T. Arnold, until Saturday last the cashier of the National Bank of New Berlin, has confessed to Arthur W. Morse, attorney for the bank, and to members of the Board of Directors, that he is a defaulter to a bond shortage in the bank of more than $90,000, and to a shortage on certificates of deposit for more than $100,000. It is reasonably certain that the total sum of the defalcations will approach $250,000. This confession, it is understood, was made on Thursday evening, but it was known on Monday last that the bank was disastrously involved and that it must close its doors.

Arnold for more than thirty years had been the head of the bank in every way. He had grown up with the institution, and as he developed good qualities he was advanced from time to time as opportunity offered until he became cashier. It appears that the Directors were little more than figureheads, as the cashier had full general control and dominated the Directorate in every way. He held fifty-one shares of the bank stock and had obtained proxies of 400 shares held by others. Everybody had complete confidence in him, and he became the banker and advisor for the merchants and farmers throughout a considerable section of Chenango and Otsego Counties. He lived a most exemplary life and for years there was no suspicion that he was spending more money than his salary.

Some twelve years ago his wife died. Mrs. Arnold was the daughter of William Harrison of Fond-du-Lac, Wis., and some time after her death Arnold reported that an invention which her father had been engaged in had turned out a great success, and that Arnold's share brought him in an income of $12,000 a year. He had previously purchased a fine residence in New Berlin known as Stone Manor, and after the supposed fortune came to him Arnold furnished it in a most elaborate manner, spending more money in alterations than the house originally cost, and devoting a fortune to its appointments. He brought his niece and nephew, children of a deceased sister, to live with him, and he has educated them well.

It was his custom to bring to his home in chartered coaches a number of musicians and actors with whom he became acquainted in the metropolis, and for weeks at a time he would entertain them in lavish style. If he took a fancy to any particular person he could not do enough for him, and he made the most costly and expensive gifts he could obtain.

All his life he had been connected with St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in the village, and he gave with a liberal hand toward its maintenance. He took great interest in its music and assisted in many ways to promote the efficiency of the choir. A year or two ago he gave the larger part of the cost of a splendid stone vestry, choir room, and parlors for the church. He has aided a number of young men to obtain university educations and was especially ready to assist those who were endeavoring to gain musical knowledge. A year ago he built upon his manor grounds a bungalow that cost $20,000, and when the exposure came it was there that he went, and he now lies there in a precarious condition.

The probability is that Arnold would have continued to spend the funds of the bank and of his neighbors for some years had not a man who called himself Charles H. Holland of New York obtained two letters which Arnold had written to some of his friends in that city describing their escapades at his palatial home. Holland went to Arnold and threatened to make the letters public. Arnold paid him a sum of money for silence and the ease with which he obtained it encouraged Holland to make a further demand of $10,000. Then Arnold took a lawyer into his confidence, and an appointment was made with Holland, who was arrested for blackmail. He is now under bail. The arrest started rumors of trouble at the bank, and the Directors finally plucked up courage to demand an examination of the books. In the meantime many depositors had withdrawn their money, and others were becoming anxious. Two representatives of the Treasury Department, E. L. Rorebeck and L. E. Norris, are now in charge of the affairs of the bank. It is said that it cannot resume business, and that, the defalcation will seriously embarrass a number of the stockholders.

It was reported this evening that Arnold is not expected to live through the night.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The First National Bank of New Berlin, N. Y., which closed its doors yesterday, is over $200,000 short in funds, according to an estimate of the new cashier of the institution, transmitted to Currency Controller Murray to-day by National Bank Examiner Rorebeck.

The National Bank Examiner said he believed the institution was insolvent.

Basing his figures upon a conference with the new cashier, Mr. Rorebeck said the bank apparently held "dummy" notes amounting to $57,000 in bills receivable; the bond account was out probably $100,000, and there were $100,000 in certificates of deposit outstanding not on the books of the bank. Only one individual deposit, he added, had been tampered with.

Mr. Rorebeck has telegraphed all correspondent banks to withhold payment on outstanding drafts of the New Berlin institution.

When notified of the situation Controller Murray expressed the conviction that it fairly justified his request that the Directors of National Banks certify in Federal examinations to the genuineness of the signatures to notes discounted. Practically every recent failure, he added, has been due to forged paper.

TORONTO BANKER ARRESTED.

Charged with Misappropriating Bank Funds—Loss May Be $250,000.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, former President of the Farmers' National Bank of Toronto, Canada, is in the custody of the United States Government here to-night awaiting extradition on the charge of misappropriation of the funds of the bank, resulting, it is said, in the ruin of the institution.

Dr. Nesbitt was taken to the county jail late to-day after a hearing before United States Commisisoner Foote. The extradition laws do not permit of bail. His hearing was continued to April 26. Nesbitt's alleged defalcations are estimated at a quarter of a million dollars.

The former banker's attorneys, William K. Pattison and William H. Holly, would not state what their course of action would be, but it is said that Nesbitt will fight all attempts to extradite him.

Nesbitt at first denied his identity. A number of Toronto school teachers attending a convention here positively identified him, however, and later his attorneys gave out a statement admitting him to be the former Canadian bank President, but denying he was guilty of any offense.

Attorney Pattison caused surprise by declaring that to his own knowledge Nesbitt had been in Chicago for more than a year, and frequently had dined with him at a downtown hotel.

"The President of a bank in Canada merely is a nominal figure," said Mr. Pattison. "The cashier and other officers have most of the power. The charge of forgery is not extraditable in any event. Mr. Nesbitt, moreover, did not forge anything. He merely signed a false statement which resulted in wrecking the bank."

The charges against Nesbitt, as made known to-day, are making false returns to the Government of Canada under the banking laws of 1907; conspiring to exchange certificates from the Treasury Board under the banking laws; and conspiracy to steal $300,000 by means of forgeries.

The hearing before Commissioner Foote was on a warrant charging Nesbitt with forgery under the "banking laws and with making a false report to the Canadian Minister of Finance." The warrant was issued at the request of Chicago detectives acting under authority from the Canadian Government.

Nesbitt has refused to talk except to say that he would plead not guilty, and that the charge was "a monstrous mistake." He is an alumnus of the University of Toronto. According to persons who knew him in Toronto, his appearance is greatly changed.

$75,000,000 CHECK IN COURT.

Exhibit Made While T. W. Lawson Told of Organizing "Amalgamated."

BOSTON, April 12.—A check for $75,000,000, which is supposed to have figured in the organization of the Amalgamated Copper Company, was produced in court to-day, during a hearing before Gen. Charles K. Darling, acting as a United States Commissioner.

Thomas W. Lawson was giving a deposition to be used in the suit of Louis Foss and others against the Parrott Silver and Copper Mining Company and the Anaconda Mining Company, which is to be tried in Butte. To an inquiry regarding the purchase of a block of 115,000 shares of Parrott stock, Lawson said he could not recall the date or to whom the stock was delivered.

District Attorney, Asa P. French then produced the check for $75,000,000, which purported to be signed by William G. Rockefeller, and was payable to William S. Bogert. The District Attorney said Mr. Rockefeller had failed to recognize the check. Lawson said that he knew nothing of it. The bearing of the check on the subject was not shown.

During his deposition Mr. Lawson told of the founding of "Amalgamated," how he made the original suggestion to Henry H. Rogers, William G. Rockefeller, and A. C. Burrage; how stock in several companies was bought for the combination at $47,000,000 and later capitalized for $75,000,000, and how he agreed with the three other financiers whereby each was to receive 25 per cent. of the profits.

It is the contention of the plaintiff that control of the Parrott Copper Company was gained by Anaconda interests in violation of the Sherman law, and that the assets of the Parrott Company were unlawfully depreciated. A dissolution of the alleged control by the Anaconda interests over the Parrott Company is sought.

BANKER THORNE POLICE HEAD

He Doubles Millbrook Force, Paying the New Man Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 12.—Millbrook, where Oakleigh Thorne, a New York banker, has a country home, is to have two policemen instead of one. Mr. Thorne is to pay the new policeman's salary. The new man will do night duty, so that Jerry Donahue, who has been the Police Department of the village for a decade, may get some sleep. Jerry, who has enjoyed the title of "Chief" ever since his appointment, will retain the title.

When Mr. Thorne told the members of the Village Board that the town should have better protection and volunteered to pay for another man, a Police Board was created and Mr. Thorne was named as President by the village officers.

LEAPS TO DEATH IN SUBWAY.

Philip Joseph, a Leather Merchant, Had Planned to Wed Soon.

Philip Joseph, a leather merchant of 93 Crosby Street, whose friends say he had been in financial difficulties recently, killed himself yesterday morning by jumping in front of a Subway train from the uptown Worth Street platform.

Two cars passed over his body, and traffic was delayed fifteen minutes while his body was being removed. He lived at 207 Henry Street with his widowed mother, and was engaged to be married soon to Miss Ida Schiff of Brooklyn.

MRS. GAGE BLAMES ALL ON MRS. GRACIE

Court Adjourns to Give District Attorney Time to Find Missing Witness.

C. J. BELL STILL NERVOUS

Banker Insists Upon Mrs. Gage Being Returned to the Asylum for Fear of a Tragedy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Mrs. Mary E. Gage, a wealthy widow, recently arrested for threatening to kill Banker Charles J. Bell, took the stand to-day at the hearing in the District Supreme Court, and after admitting that she had made a mistake in placing too much credence in the statements made to her by Mrs. Gracie, was recommitted to the Government Hospital for the Insane, to give the alienists additional time to observe her mental traits and to give the District Attorney another chance to hale Mrs. Gracie into court.

Upon Mrs. Gracie's testimony depends largely the outcome of the case. When Mr. Bell on March 11 had Mrs. Gage arrested for threatening his life, Mrs. Gage said that the banker and his friends had built a barrier about her which prevented her daughter and herself from entering Washington society. Mrs. Gracie, she said, was one of those who had told her this.

"Mrs. Gage, it's a crime and a shame for you to keep that girl—your daughter—in Washington, as she will have an awful time, a terrible time, ever doing anything, socially or otherwise, and you should take her back to New York," is the statement attributed to Mrs. Gracie by Mrs. Gage. Mr. Bell was the stumbling stone in her path mentioned by Mrs. Gracie, according to Mrs. Gage.

Miss Margaret C. Gage, the daughter, also has stated that Mrs. Gracie was responsible for the feelings which her mother entertained toward Mr. Bell. Last December Mrs. Gracie said, according to Miss Gage, that Mr. Bell never would let the couple get into Washington society.

On the theory that Mrs. Gracie will deny this testimony, she was subpoenaed by the Government attorneys, but she has failed to put in an appearance at the hearings. Now, that Mrs. Gage has placed the whole responsibility upon her, it is deemed imperative that Mrs. Gracie testify. An attorney representing Col. and Mrs. Gracie was in court to-day looking after the latter's interests, a writ of attachment for her having been threatened. The hearing was adjourned this afternoon until next Wednesday. A rumor was current this afternoon that Mrs. Gracie will voluntarily appear next Wednesday, and will at least modify the statement attributed to her.

Mr. Bell, whose appearance indicates him to be a typical financier of the upper social world, was at the trial to-day and occupied a front seat.

"This is a serious matter for Mr. Bell," A. S. Worthington, the latter's private attorney, told the court, "and it is natural that he should be the most interested party here."

This declaration was made when Mr. Worthington, as attorney for the banker, wanted to cross-question witnesses. The Judge announced that Mr. Worthington was appearing as "a friend of the court," and as such had a perfect right to question witnesses.

Mrs. Gage, when she took the stand, admitted that she had put too much credence in the statements of Mrs. Gracie. "I know now that I was mistaken about Mr. Bell using his influence against me," she continued.

She said that Mrs. Gracie had asked her, in "a most insinuating manner," whether or not her daughter was engaged to marry a Japanese. This question worried her very much, she said, and later she found that it had been circulated largely, and later found its way into the pages of a Washington society magazine. Mr. Bell was responsible for this, Mrs. Gracie is said to have told Mrs. Gage.

Referring to the threats which she is charged with having made against Mr. Bell, Mrs. Gage admitted she had told her friends she would horsewhip the banker. She denied emphatically, however, that she ever said she would kill him. She also said she modified her threat to horsewhip Mr. Bell by saying that she would do it if he did not stop persecuting her family.

Unfairness in her arrest was charged by Mrs. Gage, who said she was not given an opportunity to get bond before she was hurried away in a taxicab to St. Elizabeth's, the Government hospital for the insane. She was returned to the asylum to-day, an application for her release on bond being denied by the court, at the urgent request of counsel for Mr. Bell, who said he feared a tragedy might result.

INDICT EXPRESS CONCERNS.

Overcharging by American and Adams Companies Charged.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 12.—Two indictments, one containing ten counts against the American Express Company, and one containing five counts against the Adams Express Company, were returned this afternoon, when the Federal Grand Jury made its final report to Judge John R. Hazel. The indictment against the American charges that company with overcharging in ten specific cases on shipments originating at Aliquippa, Penn., and passing through this district. The maximum penalty is a fine of $5,000 for each offense.

The five counts against the Adams Express Company charge that a rebate was allowed shippers at Arcade, N. Y., in return for bringing their goods to the company's station. Such a rebate has been held legal, but it is alleged that the company failed to publish a tariff showing the rebate. The penalty is a fine of not less than $1,000 nor greater than $20,000.

The defendants will plead to the indictments on Tuesday, and John Lord O'Brien, United States Attorney, who presented the cases, will move them for trial in the United States District Court at Rochester on May 7.

WARDEN FREES LIFE CONVICT.

Sends Him 200 Miles, Unguarded, to Plead for Pardon.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., April 12.—Warden Tynan of the State Penitentiary gave permission to E. B. Parrott, a convict sentenced to life for murder, to come to Denver, two hundred miles, without guard, to appear before the Board of Pardons to-day. It is said to be the first time that a convict sentenced for life has been released under similar circumstances.

Parrott has been at a convict road camp and the Warden had such faith in him that he designated him as the only camp guard with authority to carry arms. Parrott is 45 and unmarried. In 1891, at Ouray, he became infatuated with a woman who, during his absence, married another. Parrott shot her dead when she refused to admit him to her home.

BEACH COMING BACK; ASKS SPEEDY TRIAL

Accused Broker Cables to Aiken Counsel That He Will Return Next Week.

CITY ASKS AID OF STATE

Contingent Fund May Be Drawn On by Prosecution to Meet Array of Defense Lawyers.

Special to The New York Times.

AIKEN, S. C., April 12.—That Frederick O. Beach, who is accused of cutting Mrs. Beach's throat and is under bond for assault and battery with intent to kill, is anxious that the charges shall have a speedy hearing is indicated by a cablegram received from Paris to-day by his Aiken lawyers, the Hendersons. It reads:

"Am returning next week. Have trial soon as possible."

Plans are already making for a legal battle which promises to be the most interesting ever held in Aiken. To-day Mr. Beach's lawyers began laying the groundwork of the defense against the evidence which has been gathered by Special Agent Baughn. T. S. Fuller of the New York law firm of Nicolls, Annable, Lindsay & Fuller, which has been retained by Mr. Beach, came to Aiken and held a conference with D. S. Henderson of the Hendersons, who, with J. B. Salley, were retained by Mr. Beach after the attack was made upon Mrs. Beach.

To an interviewer Mr. Fuller said he had come down to look over the situation, in order that there might be co-operation between the Aiken and New York lawyers.

Mr. Henderson declared to-day that the charges against Mr. Beach were worked up by Mr. Baughn, who was lured on by the attractive reward. Asked directly whether Mr. Baughn was employed by the city to make the investigation, Mr. Henderson said he was not, but that Baughn was working on his own initiative.

Mayor Gyles, however, stated positively that the city had employed Mr. Baughn and that the Council held an executive session Monday night to pay him for his services. Solicitor Gunter verified the statement. He added that he had asked Gov. Blease to allow the prosecution to draw on the Governor's contingent fund in order that the State may carry on its investigations, and possibly obtain other attorneys to meet the array of counsel who will defend Mr. Beach.

"I have not heard from the Governor," he said, "but I am hopeful that he will grant my request."

Unless the Governor consents to have part of his contingent fund used in this manner, or unless a solicitor from another circuit is sent to assist Mr. Gunter in the prosecution of the case, the State will be without funds to provide help unless the city makes an appropriation. Mayor Gyles said this afternoon that the city had already spent much money for Mr. Baughn's investigation, and he did not know how a proposition of that kind would be received by the Council. He did not care to state whether Baughn would be sent to New York to continue his investigations.

LESS IDLENESS DUE TO LABOR DISPUTES

Larger Here Than Elsewhere—Figures of 188 Unions Show Idleness Affected Industries Generally.

ALBANY, April 12.—The percentages of unemployment in New York State were higher at the end of each month in 1911 than in 1910 with the exception of October, according to the quarterly bulletin issued to-day by the State Department of Labor. This statement is based mainly on statistics received from 188 representative unions with a membership of 115,000, which, however, report much less idleness on account of labor disputes in the last half of 1911 as compared with 1910.

The course of unemployment (idleness other than that due to disability or labor disputes among organized wage earners is indicated by the accompanying chart. The unions named represent one-fourth of the total number of organized wage earners in the State.

Although in both the first and last half the percentages of unemployment were higher at the end of each month in 1911 than in 1910, except October, and higher than the mean percentages for the years 1904-10 excepting September and October, the difference between 1911 and 1910 is generally less in the last half of the year than in the first half. Thus the mean percentage from January to June was 22.2 in 1911 as against 14.3 in 1910, while the mean for July to December was 15.1 for 1911 as against 13.0 in 1910. On the other hand, the largest difference in the last six months is found in December, when the percentage stood at 31.9 as against 25.6 in 1910.

The percentages of idleness in different groups of trades indicate that the greater unemployment in the later months of 1911 as compared with 1910 was very general in the different industries represented in the returns. Thus the mean percentage for the last six months of the year was higher in 1911 in eight out of twelve groups, including all but one of the five leading groups, namely, building, transportation, metals and printing, and the percentage for the end of December was higher in nine of the twelve including all five of the leading groups, that is, clothing in addition to the four just named. The returns show a slightly higher percentage of idleness in New York City at the end of December than in the remainder of the State.

The returns from representative unions would indicate much less idleness on account of labor disputes in the last half of 1911 as compared with 1910. The returns as to all strikes and lockouts collected by the Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration show clearly that the last three months of 1911 were much less disturbed by industrial disputes than the corresponding months of 1910. Thus only 29 disputes involving but 9,822 employes were recorded for that quarter of 1911 as compared with 57 disputes and 27,968 employes in 1910. Disputes were also less numerous and much less extensive than in 1909. In the last three months of 1911 the Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration intervened in ten disputes, in seven of which conferences of the parties were arranged and in seven settlements were directly effected.

The corresponding figures for 1910 were sixteen interventions, seven conferences arranged and four settlements. The bulletin recounts also the intervention of the Bureau in the New York City Steam Laundry Workers' strike in January of this year in connection with which a public investigation was held. This is the first investigation of this kind since the investigation of the Paper Makers' strike in 1910, prior to which no such investigation had been made since 1900.

IS A FRONT STOOP A HOUSE?

Whatever Court Decides, Fort Totten Will Not Go Thirsty.

Is a house a house when only the front stoop is in position, and can a liquor license be granted for a building which is only partly constructed? These questions must be answered by Supreme Court Justice Crane to decide a battle that has been raging since last January at the gateway to Fort Totten, Willets Point, L. I.

Just outside the entrance to the fort is a little building which has been the first and last hope for the six or seven hundred soldiers. Here they can get their first refreshment on their way out and their last on their way in.

Shirley J. Green was the proprietor of this place up to last January and the holder of the liquor license, and Daniel A. Skinnell of Whitestone was the owner of the building. Skinnell refused last January to renew the lease. Thereupon Green began the erection of a small building on Bell Avenue, just around the corner. Green made application to have his license transferred from the Skinnell building to his building under construction. But Skinnell protested on the ground that there was a dwelling within ninety feet of the new house.

Green had not noticed any dwelling the night before, but when he went back he found a stoop there with a man sitting on it. The man said he was John B. Harris, and that he was going to live there. Sections of a building began coming on trucks. Mr. Skinnell was the owner of a building on the Willets Point Road at Whitestone which was known to the soldier boys and other as "Kane's Fort." It had been a refreshment emporium at one time. When the emergency arose of having a dwelling on Bell Avenue in record time Mr. Skinnell made a contract with a truckman to take the "fort" down in sections and move it to the new site.

Green then stopped work on his own building and took his case to court, contending that the protest was made when only the front stoop of the house was in position.

UVALDE CO. NOT INVOLVED.

Man Who Trapped Former Mayor Packer Not Their Representative.

FREEHOLD, N. J., April 12.—The Uvalde Asphalt Paving Company of New York and Jersey City has taken objection to the use of its name in connection with the trapping of former Mayor Packer of Long Branch. Mayor Packer on Tuesday pleaded non vult to an indictment charging that he accepted a gift of $100 from Joseph Williams in return for his influence in obtaining a contract for repaving some streets in Long Branch. It appears that Williams did not represent the Uvalde Company, although in his negotiations with Mayor Packer he said he did.

The Uvalde Company has repudiated him, and General Supt. W. T. S. Crichfield is authority for the statement that "the Uvalde Asphalt Paving Company has never at any time, had a representative call on the Mayor of Long Branch, or any other official of that town, and has never had in its employ, directly or indirectly, in any capacity whatsoever, any man by the name of Joseph Williams."

MANY POWER TRUCKS FOR ANNUAL PARADE

Five Hundred Commercial Vehicles Entered for To-day's Business Display.

With nearly five hundred trucks entered and the prospects of many more by the time the formation of the line is complete, the second annual motor truck parade of the Motor Truck Club to-day will be the greatest display of commercial vehicles ever witnessed. Every type of motor truck and delivery wagon will be represented, including big and little trucks, utility cars, semi-trailers, and the so-called "motor horse." A large share of the city's business houses using motor trucks will be represented, and it will be the best opportunity ever afforded business men to study motor transportation in actual operation under load.

While lacking some of the spectacular features that frequently attach to parades, the procession will be replete with interest not only for the business man, but for the general public, who have little idea of the immense strides made by motor trucks in a comparatively few months. These trucks will very generally be on actual duty, carrying the merchandise of their owners and actually delivering it to customers at the close of the parade. There will be little of the gala day aspect to it, but lots of genuine vigor that marks the motor truck as a great traffic agency.

The parade will form at the Battery, between 12:30 and 1 o'clock, and will move at 1:30 promptly, directly up Broadway to 125th Street, save for a slight detour around the matinée district, passing through Twenty-second Street, Fourth Avenue, Twenty-seventh Street, Fifth Avenue, and Forty-eighth Street, at which point Broadway will be rejoined. The chief marshal will be stationed at Bowling Green, and entrants will be assigned places in line upon reporting to him on arrival at the starting point.

E. W. Curtis, Jr., is chief marshal, with C. W. Fletcher and T. A. Aspell as his chiefs of division. They will be assisted by a corps of aids numbering probably twenty-five and scattered through the line, each in charge of his division. At the head of the line will move mounted police, then a big Fifth Avenue bus carrying the band. Next will ride the officers of the Motor Truck Club and the press cars will follow.

The trucks will be arranged alphabetically, according to the alphabetical list of the entrants, and broken into three general divisions. Ample police regulation has been secured to keep the line well closed and to avoid traffic complications at street crossings. It is probable that the line will cover a stretch of something more than three miles—probably the most powerful traffic display and the most valuable ever shown in this or any other city.

BAN LIFTED ON NEW JERSEY.

Massachusetts Extends Auto License Privilege to Tourists.

BOSTON, April 12.—The State Highway Commission to-day rescinded its action of two years ago in barring residents of New Jersey from driving their automobiles in Massachusetts under the non-resident free touring privilege. Hereafter New Jersey motorists, as well as those of other States, may tour Massachusetts for ten days in a calendar year without taking out a Massachusetts registration certificate.

They were deprived of the privilege because their State refused to grant reciprocal touring rights to motorists from Massachusetts. On April 2 last, however, a law was enacted granting these concessions to residents of all States which gave similar privileges to residents of New Jersey.

RABBIS IN CONFERENCE.

Meet to Discuss Questions of Faith and Race.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 12.—Expressing the conviction that Judaism will survive despite the inroads of Modernism, Socialism, and the New Thought, and prophesying that all men will soon acknowledge that through Israel alone is "the voice of the Lord with power," Rabbi Harry H. Mayer of Kansas City, Mo., delivered an address at the opening services to-night in Madison Avenue Temple of the twenty-third annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. This is the second time the conference has met in Baltimore, the first occasion being twenty-three years ago.

Dr. Adolph Guttmacher welcomed the visitors on the part of the local rabbis. Rabbi Marcus Salzman of Wilkesbarre, Penn., made the opening prayer. Rabbi Schulman of New York will, it is said, be re-elected President of the conference, this being his first term. The conference sermon will be preached to-morrow by Rabbi Henry Berkowitz of Philadelphia.

Nearly all of the seventy-five visiting rabbis are being entertained at the various homes of leading Baltimore Jewish families. The attitude of Judaism toward the Christian Science cult will be one of the most important matters before the conference.

Among the subjects named for discussion
Among the subjects named for discussion are "The Interests of American Jewry in the Judaism of Distant Lands," by Rabbi G. Deutsch of Cincinnati, Ohio; "Civil and Religious Marriage Laws," by Rabbi J. L. Levy of Pittsburgh, Penn, and a paper on "Jewish Views of Marriage and Divorce."

The Rev. Dr. William Friedman of Denver will present a report condemning the alleged misrepresentation of Jews in modern vaudeville and other stage productions and the false notions children receive from the study of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" in schools.

Immigration problems also will be discussed. The Central Conference of Rabbis for a long time has deplored the congestion of immigrants in large cities, and has worked steadily for the scattering of the immigrants over the country, particularly in rural sections.

To-night's meeting was entirely religious, as also will be that of to-morrow. The business meetings will not begin until Sunday.

"TAKE A STAMP, LEAVE A BIT"

Rawhide's First Post Office the Simplest Ever

'YOU HAD TO BE HONEST

But Men Who Had Picked "Tuxedo" Could Be Trusted

Anybody could have gathered it up and run off with it under his arm, post office, flag pole and all.

Simple?—well it was that and then some.

They put it up in Rawhide, Nevada, in the early days of the mining boom there. And it's still in existence, a highly treasured souvenir, in a certain

TO RAWHIDE 1 MILE

"RAWHIDE'S FIRST POST OFFICE"

This post office, set up by the roadside in 1897, and serving among other purposes to point the way into Rawhide, consisted of an upright stick surmounted by a swivel flag pole bearing a white flag. When the flag was up, the water wagon man knew that he was to make a delivery of water. Near the top of the stick was a "Tuxedo" tobacco tin containing a book of postage stamps, and a notice which ran thus: "Take a stamp and leave a bit for the stage driver"—a "bit," it may be necessary to inform unenlightened Eastern readers, being a quarter. A stamp having been affixed, the letter was dropped into a sixteen ounce seal box of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company, which was fastened underneath, and from which the mail driver made collection.

The authenticity of this interesting relic is certified to by C. C. Dunning, who had the mail contract at the time. Dunning knows. He found the "bits" and humped in the stage.

Was everybody honest? Well, they had to be, as there might have been trouble. But nobody expected anything but honesty. It was the fashion among these pioneers. And smoking an honest tobacco was a big start. They surely liked the smoke in that green tin!

The accompanying sketch was made from a photograph taken while the post office was still in operation.

"SMOKERS CATCH ON"

A Successful Broker's Experience in Planting and Selling Tobacco

"I tell you, growing really fine tobacco is a big game and a mighty difficult game," said an old tobacco planter—twenty-three years at the business of coaxing the best tobacco out of the soil—since embarked in the other business of tobacco brokerage.

"People are very particular about their tobacco now-a-days. One thing I found out early. It paid me to turn ...t the finest Burley that could be ...n, because I could sell it to the P...erson Company for more ... any one else would pay. ...ok all I could grow that was ...p to the top notch, for their ... I knew they sold their to... to smokers for the same price ... were charging, but they were ... willing to pay more them... and did pay more, for the leaf ...co. No wonder that Tuxedo stands so high.

"Well, one of the results of my planting experience and selling experience is that when I got to be a broker myself I just naturally specialized in the Patterson tobacco. I know how good it is. I know how carefully it is gathered and made, and I've had my biggest success as a dealer with Tuxedo.

Hit by pitcher—By Schardt, (Merkle.) Hits—Off Knetzer, 5 in 6 innings, (at bat 24;) off Schardt, 2 in 2 innings, (at bat 6.) Umpires—Messrs. Klem and Bush. Time of game—Two hours and ten minutes.

Because the Giants' infield was as porous as the top story of a peek-a-boo shirtwaist, several slaps which came from the Brooklyn bats in the game at Washington Park yesterday rolled away unmolested, and the Dodgers won the game, 4 to 2. The brace of New York counts were not the result of the Giants' brilliant play, but were presented to them in a gold-plated tureen like a plate of rare soup. Both runs were forced in by Dodger pitchers when the Giants had the bases full.

Brooklyn played faster ball than the Giants, and ripped off three fast double plays, which were corkers. They did everything well except bat, and reached Jeff Tesreau for only three hits, but the St. Vitus fielding of Tilly Shafer offset all the good pitching that the bear hunter from the Ozarks uncorked. Shafer had three chances. Two grounders went through him like a fish through water, and on his other chance he threw the ball to first and dug a big hole in Mr. Ebbets's lawn.

Three times the Giants had the bases full of runners, and once a base on balls from Knetzer forced a runner home. Again, when Schardt hit Merkle, another run was presented to the Giants. But they could not score on their own hook. Not a chance. Knetzer and Schardt pitched just as well as the men behind them played. The Baron showed signs of weakening in the seventh, but he was yanked out before he spilled the beans.

The Dodgers got busy in the first inning. Moran slapped a hit along the third base line, which carromed off the bag and bounced into right field, going for a two-base hit. Moran went to third base on Daubert's out and scored when Shafer foozled Smith's grounder. The Giants had a chance to do something in the second inning. Merkle was safe on Smith's error, and Herzog walked. Shafer got a life when Stark lost his grasser, and the bases were choked. Chief Meyers at least swung promisingly, but did not connect and fanned. Big Tesreau jammed a terrific liner straight at Hummel, who doubled up Shafer at second and extinguished the Giants' hopes.

Tesreau got a bit wild in the third inning, and while he was tottering Brooklyn harvested three runs and the game. Again it was Shafer who gave them their chance. He let Daubert's grounder whizz through him without even touching it. Smith walked. Northen's sacrifice sent them along a base. Zach Wheat brought the Brooklyn crowd to its feet by spanking out a single to left, which scored Daubert and Smith. Downs, who had succeeded Hummel at second after Silent John got a split finger struck out, Stark followed with a safe crash to centre, which scored Wheat.

Opportunity again knocked at the Giants' door in the fourth, but refused to break in with burglars' tools. After Smith had chucked Merkle out at first, Herzog's grounder wiggled ludicrously through Stark. Herzog going to second. Shafer, by a dazzling outburst of speed, beat out an infield tap, Herzog going to third. Meyers cracked a grounder which Knetzer knocked down, and Herzog was nipped between third and the goal. Tesreau jauntily ambled, filling the bases. Knetzer missed the plate by half a mile and walked Devore, forcing in Shafer with the Giants' first run.

Herzog and Shafer opened the skirmishing in the sixth with a couple of singles, and Meyers promptly hit into a fast double play, Stark to Downs to Daubert.

Still again in the seventh it looked as if the oracles were plotting to turn the trick New York's way. The chance was there all ready to grab and they missed it by a block.

Knetzer walked Devore and Doyle plowed a grounder through second. Stark dashed for it, speared the ball and jumped into second to head off Devore. It was a close race, and Umpire Bush said "Safe." Stark—so early in the season, too—doubted the new umpire's word. He talked fast and said much, so Mr. Bush ordered him out of the game. Manager Dahlen warmed up to the oratory also in preparation of being exiled.

Snodgrass walked, filling the bases. Knetzer was too wobbly to be trusted any more, so Dahlen sent for Schardt. Murray hit a liner to Tooley. Merkle was nipped on the funny bone of his elbow with a Schardt twister, and forced Devore in with the Giants' second run. Up came Dahlen with a loud kick. He argued that Merkle got in the way of the ball. Umpire Klem pulled out his watch to get his clock out to see that he disappeared within the time limit.

The situation was ticklish for Schardt, but he was big enough for the job. Herzog rammed the ball to him on the floor. Schardt threw it to Erwin, and retired Doyle coming from third, and Erwin got it to Daubert in time to double Herzog at first in as fast a double as you'd care to see.

Schardt was a great puzzle in the eighth, and fanned three of the Giants, Shafer, then Becker, who batted for Tesreau, and Devore. Sandwiched in between was a hit by Meyers, but it went for naught. It was too dark to play any more, and an April shower had made its appearance, so Umpire Klem called the game.

CALM AFTER THE STORM.

No riot yesterday. The crowd included those who couldn't get in Thursday. There were about 5,000 of them.

President Ebbets wasn't around smiling and didn't make a speech.

It got so dark that the bleacherites lighted paper torches so the players could see. The fire signals were taken up by the deadheads on the roofs of the adjoining tenements. Dangerous joke.

"Bad Bill" Dahlen got his first warm-up for the trip from the bench to the clubhouse, which he will take many times before the season is over.

Umpire Bush is a regular big league umpire now. He fired Stark out of the game, dismissing him with a word, and taking no back guff.

President Ebbets was prepared for another riot. Two battleships lay ready for action in the Gowanus Canal, and in case any one walked out on the field the militia were ready to be called out.

Cosmopolitan fans in Brooklyn. One Chinaman deserted the laundry and rooted for the Superbas. When he realized that Brooklyn had won he thought that he was in a bunk "hitting the pipe."

Tesreau's interception of Snodgrass's long throw to the plate in the third gave Brooklyn a run, for the ball was coming directly to Meyers, who could have nailed Wheat coming home. Meyers said something in a strange Indian tongue.

Somebody will be presenting Shafer with a basket of thorns if he plays shortstop like that any more.

Tesreau has curves which bend like barrel hoops, and speed like lightning. He's just the kind of a strong man McGraw has been looking for.

Well, for once in the season Brooklyn is tied with the Giants in the standing, anyway.

BOSTON, April 12.—Philadelphia fought hard to avert defeat to-day, but Boston won again, 4 to 2. Bunched hits in the fourth and eighth innings gave the locals their runs, while Tyler held Philadelphia to a lone tally until the last inning. Then two passes and a single by Luderus filled the bases and Walsh singled, sending Paskert home. With none out and the bases still filled, Doolan hit into a double play and Graham fanned. Killifer was forced to retire in the fourth inning with a badly injured hand. The score:

McIntire Weakens in Tenth.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 12.—Pitcher McIntire weakened after nine grueling innings, and by allowing three hits in the tenth permitted Cincinnati to win the second game of the series with Chicago here to-day, 3 to 2. Benton was hit harder earlier in the contest, but kept the safeties well scattered. A base on balls, a sacrifice, and a single in the fourth gave Chicago their first run. Cincinnati tied it with Bescher's triple and Bates's sacrifice. Three singles in the sixth gave the visitors another, but again Cincinnati tied it with a double, a force out, and a single. In the tenth singles by Benton, Bescher, and Hoblitzell brought home the winning run. With the exception of Tinker all the players fielded well. The score:

Double-Header at Lenox Oval.

The opening attraction to-morrow at Lenox Oval, 145th Street and Lenox Avenue, will be a double-header beginning at 1:30 P. M. In the opening game the Poughkeepsie Club will clash with the Metropolitans. The second game will bring the Mets into action with Lindemann's Stars. The Mets will have a stronger team than last season. Many former big league stars are in the line-up this year. Sammy Smith, formerly of the Toronto team, will pitch one of the games for the Mets. Lindemann will pitch for his team.

Sunday School Baseball Tourney.

The Sunday School Athletic League baseball tournament will start May 4, all games to be played at the Parade Grounds, Prospect Park, Brooklyn. Games will be played every Tuesday afternoon and Saturday morning. According to the rules no player shall participate in a league game whose name does not appear on the entry blank, unless he shall submit the name of such players to the official representative of the tournament previous to the starting of the game.

The Boston Red Sox bunched hits off Russell Ford just where bingles did the most good at the Hilltop yesterday, and walked away with the second game against the Yankees, 5 to 2. The Sox picked up a trio of counters in the opening frame by unloading a double and a home run with a pair of passes by Ford, and this collection was enough to decide the game. However, the Yankees began to look dangerous in the seventh inning, and in the eighth the Red Sox bunched another double with two singles. The Yankees came across with some loose playing at this stage, helping the visitors to their final brace of runs.

Buck O'Brien, the strike-out king of the Western League last season, was picked to oppose the Yankees' start pitcher, and his work was much superior to that of the home artist. Buck did not shine in his strike-out specialty, chasing only two of the Yankees back to the bench by the fan route, but he scattered New York's six hits through five different innings and showed splendid control. In the ninth inning he showed signs of wavering, and a relief pitcher was hurried out to warm up, but Buck came through safely and finished the game.

The Red Sox hit Ford effectively in only two innings, but in these two chapters they landed on the Hilltopper in clever fashion. Tris Speaker, the third man up in the opening chapter, sounded the Yankee death knell with a terrific punch to the fence in right centre field for a home run, chasing home Hooper, who had reached first base on a pass. Another pass was followed by a solid smash by Duffy Lewis, which sailed over Bert Daniel's attic and rolled to the centre field bleachers. Throughout the game the Sox hit the ball hard, and some fast fielding by the Yankee outfielders saved the team from a more decisive defeat. Ford faded from the scene in the eighth inning to give George Simmons a chance to start a rally, and Simmons fell victim to O'Brien's slants.

Manager Wolverton showed in the ninth inning that he does not intend to confine his duties to the bench and the coaching line by electing himself to the pinch hit division. With Dolan on first base Wolverton sauntered up to the plate to bat for Earl Gardner. He let the first ball go by while Cozy Dolan hustled along to second base for a clean steal, and he took a crack at the next one. The old batting eye which gained Wolverton the healthy average of .295 in 153 games on the coast last season was still on the job and the ball took a ride, high and far away, to deep left centre field. But Tris Speaker glued his talons on it, and the game was over.

Jake Stahl had a most profitable afternoon with the willow and gave strong evidence that his one-year absence from the pastime has not dimmed his slugging optics. He faced Ford four times and Jack Warhop once, collecting on his five visits a base on balls and four successive singles. In the first inning before he drew the pass Stahl put all the strength in his broad back behind a swing, and lifted one of Russ Ford's speeders over the left field bulwarks. The drive was foul by several feet, but it was a wonderful wallop, nevertheless. The four hits which followed whistled from the time they left Jake's bat, and were fine samples of clean hitting.

The Red Sox lost no time sewing up the game. Hooper worked Ford for a pass, Yerkes followed with a solid smash into Cree's hands, and then Tris Speaker unloaded the first extra-base hit of the year on the Hilltop—a home run to the right centre field fence. Stahl also walked, but was forced at second base when Larry Gardner hit to Ford. Lewis hit to the outfield bleachers for two bases and Gardner finished the circuit. Wagner ended the inning with a fly to Earl Gardner.

Wolter started the Yankees off with a triple to centre field, and hurried home while Yerkes was throwing Daniels out at first base. Chase and Cree were easy outs. The Sox did nothing in the second inning, failing to get a runner to first base. Hartzell opened for the Yanks with a single, advanced on Dolan's sacrifice, and was stranded while Gardner and Street were flying out.

Boston bunched a hit with an error by Hartzell in the third inning, but caused no trouble, as Earl Gardner picked up Speaker's grounder with his foot on second base and threw to Chase for a double play. In the fourth, and again in the sixth inning Boston opened with a hit, but the next three batsmen went out in order. The Yankees sent Dolan around to third base in the fifth inning on his single, Gardner's sacrifice, and an out, but Street lofted a high foul to Carrigan. The last New York run arrived in the seventh inning, when Cree opened with a triple—his first hit of the season—and Hartzell followed with a solid drive to right field.

The Red Sox made victory secure in the eighth. With two out, Stahl singled to left and reached third on Larry Gardner's double to right field. Lewis hit a slow bounder along the first-base line, but the ball fooled Chase and rolled into right field, both runners scoring. Hartzell fumbled Wagner's grounder, and then threw over Chase's head, sending Lewis to third base and Wagner to second. Ford hit Bill Carrigan in the head, and Bill dropped, but was soon able to gallop to first base, filling the corners. O'Brien grounded to Chase, who fumbled, but threw the runner out at first base. In the ninth the Sox collected two hits off Warhop, but failed to score.

Tigers Lose Again to Naps.

CLEVELAND, April 12.—Cleveland defeated Detroit to-day, 4 to 2. Delehanty was put out of the game for arguing with Umpire Perrine. In the third inning Easterly was safe on Bush's error, stole second, and came home on Butcher's single. In the sixth Jackson doubled. Lajoie was passed purposely, and Ryan singled, scoring Jackson. In the eighth Olson singled, Jackson doubled, and Lajoie singled, producing two runs. Detroit's first run was the result of hits by Gainer, Stanage, and Vitt. The other was scored by Perry on his double, a passed ball, and Gainer's fly. The score:

Morgan Gives Senators One Hit.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—Morgan pitched wonderful ball against Washington this afternoon and Philadelphia won by 3 to 1. Only one hit, a single by Moeller, which Barry held in the infield, was made off Morgan. The latter struck out eleven batsmen, fanning the side in the fifth and eighth sessions. Philadelphia won by bunching hits in the fourth inning. Score:

Giant Recruits for Buffalo.

Manager McGraw has started to turn his surplus baseball talent loose, and last night released Stock and Bues, infielders, and Pitcher Munsel to the Buffalo Club of the International League. Bues led the Northwestern League last season and is a hard-hitting youngster, who has every indication of developing into a big leaguer. Munsel needs more seasoning also before he is ready to remain in major league company. The youngsters will help to strengthen the Bisons, who are managed by George Stallings, formerly leader of the Yankees.

McGinnity's Team Wins at Home.

Joe McGinnity's Redmen trimmed the Worthingtons of the Manufacturers' League, 5 to 1 in a game at Newark yesterday. The pump works representatives although beaten, were not disgraced as they played splendid ball; first baseman Guenup excepted. Lefty Hipfel pitched good ball against the International League bunch.

Harvard Athletes in Track Games.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 12.—On a heavy track to-day, the Harvard athletes held their annual track and field handicap games. There was no class competition and as a rule the performers did not amount to much. However, there were several good times made, P. R. Withington winning the two mile race from scratch in 9:54, and H. M. Warren, who has been Harvard's best half-miler, running the mile from the 15-yard mark in 4:31 1-5, which was a good performance. In the 100 yards dash, R. Tower, a freshman, won the final heat in 10 1-5 seconds, while both of the hurdle events were taken by Gardner, Harvard's intercollegiate point winner, who is in the graduate school. The performances in the field events also were ordinary, those in the broad jump being exceptons. T. Cable, '13, cleared 21 feet 4 inches in the broad jump, as did A. W. A. Allen, '14; and J. S. King, '13, jumped 21 feet 1½ inches.

Harvard Athletes en Route South.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 12.—To-day was getaway day for the Harvard College baseball, lacrosse and soccer teams, which start on their Spring trip to play colleges in other States. The baseball squad will remain away ten days, opening its Southern trip with a game at Baltimore to-morrow against Johns Hopkins University. Georgetown, the Catholic University at Washington, Baltimore of the International League, and Annapolis, are other teams to be played before April 19, when Harvard will play Columbia at New York on the return trip. The lacrosse team plays three games at Baltimore and the soccer team meets Columbia in New York to-morrow for the concluding match of the season.

Dawson to Coach Union Athletics.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 12.—The Athletic Board of Union College has elected F. T. Dawson, Princeton '10, as athletic coach. He has signed a contract for two years to coach the football, baseball, and basket ball teams. Dawson was a successful athlete while at Princeton, having been a 'Varsity man for three years on the football and baseball teams. In his senior year he was Captain of the baseball team.

Bulldog Matches at Gregorian.

Charles G. Hopton will be the judge to-night at the first of the semi-monthly matches planned by the Bulldog Breeders' Association, to be held at the Hotel Gregorian. Two matches have been arranged, one of which will be for a wager of $100 a side. It is expected that others will be made during to-night's session, at which all questions in connection with the breed will be discussed. The committee in charge of the matches is composed of Messrs. Watt, Rost, and Halley.

DARTMOUTH NINE DEFEATS COLUMBIA

Hanoverians Bunch Hits in Third Inning and Score All Their Runs.

Dartmouth's baseball nine repeated its feat of last year by defeating the Columbia team on South Field yesterday afternoon by one run, the final score being 3 to 2. Bunched hits in the third inning off Rothwell enabled Dartmouth to pack away the game, for throughout the rest of the contest the Morningside Heights collegians could not add to the two runs that they gained in the first and second innings. Columbia played an errorless game and scored eight hits to the five made off of Rothwell, but they could not connect at the right time.

Two errors made by Bennett, Dartmouth's first baseman, started Columbia's scoring when Sanders took first base on his error and on his wild throw to second reached third base. Kiendl's hit scored him. In the second inning Ferguson singled and crossed the plate on Casuso's sacrifice fly. This gave Columbia a two-run lead, but lost it in the third. Rollins, Exstrom, and Spillane all got to Rothwell for singles in a row, and Daley brought Spillane home on a sacrifice fly.

Columbia had a chance to win in the fourth inning that brought the spectators to their feet. Fredericks, who had made two hits out of two times a bat, fanned, but Casuso followed with the only two-base hit of the game. Lee then batted for Rothwell, but his home run getting seemed to have ebbed, and he and then Sanders, the next man up, was called out on strikes. The score:

Big Score for Mt. St. Mary's.

Special to The New York Times.

EMMITSBURG, Md., April 12.—By heavy hitting and clever base running Mount St. Mary's defeated William and Mary of Virginia here to-day by a score of 18 to 3. Letters, a young southpaw, did the twirling for the Mountaineers and allowed only one hit during his six innings of work. Rice made his first appearance of the year in right field and proved to be at home. He made four hits. Shier's fielding was the feature for the Virginians. The all-around work of the locals showed improvement over the previous games. Score by innings:

Mount St. Mary's........5 2 0 1 4 6 0—18

Manhattan Wins in South.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 12.—Pitcher O'Connor was too clever for the Mount St. Joseph College team to-day, and the Manhattan College nine won by 4 to 2. It was a pitcher's duel, in which the New Yorks had the better of it. Morisette, St. Joseph's crack moist ball pitcher, did well, but was not as strong in the pinches as his opponent. The score:

Merritt to Coach at Penn Charter.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 12.—Henry N. Merritt of Nyack, N. Y., Captain of the Yale baseball team, has been appointed coach of the football and baseball teams of the Penn Charter School at Philadelphia to fill the position recently vacated by Dr. Albert H. Sharpe, 1902. The coaches at Penn Charter for the last twelve years have been Yale graduates. Dr. Sharpe has accepted a position as coach of the football, baseball, and basket ball teams at Cornell. Capt. Merritt will be graduated from Yale in June.

American Rifle Team Picked.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The rifle team which will represent the United States at the Pan-American shooting tournament in Buenos Aires, Argentina, next month will be composed of the following, who in the trials held at Winthrop, Md., during the last three days made these averages out of a possible 2,400: Capt. Stuart W. Wise, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, 1,796; Corp. John Kneubel, Seventy-fourth N. Y. N. G., 1792; Capt. W. P. Hyde, Tennessee, N. G., 1,783; Sergt. C. L. Schriver, U. S. M. C., 1,775; Sergt. C. A. Lloyd, U. S. M. C., 1,771; John W. Hessian, Bridgeport, Conn., 1,758, and Lieut. William C. Stoll, Twenty-ninth United States Infantry, 1,727. The last two will act as alternates. Col. Charles D. Gaither of the Maryland National Guard will be Captain of the team, and Capt. J. A. Moss of the General Staff of the Army, Adjutant. The team will sail from New York April 20.

Paulist A. C. Games To-night.

With an entry list numbering 325 athletes, some of whom will compete in more than one event, making the total entries 400, the sixth annual games of the Paulist A. C. to-night at the Twelfth Regiment Armory promise to excel any previous series of the organization. The special prizes which will be awarded in the various events have been an incentive to bring out nearly every metropolitan athlete of note. In the one-mile novice run, for which the prize will be a diamond ring, a record entry numbering seventy-five has been received. Nine teams have been nominated for the Catholic Athletic League relay and five teams will contest for the honors in the Parochial School relay. In the individual events each will find either record holders or metropolitan champions as the back markers.

WELLS AND McFARLAND

Matched to Fight in Madison Square Garden on April 26.

The Garden A. C., the latest boxing club to receive a license from the State Athletic Commission, and which will hold forth at Madison Square Garden, has completed arrangements for its opening show, which will bring together Matt Wells, the English champion, and Packey McFarland of Chicago for ten rounds on Friday evening, April 26.

Negotiations were completed yesterday at the Marlborough Hotel between the managers of both principals and Tim Hurst, manager of the club. The men have agreed to make 135 pounds at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the contest, with George McDonald, manager of Wells, accepting 50 per cent. of the gross gate and moving-picture receipts, of which sum McFarland is to get $10,000 for his share.

Speculation was rife in local circles as to the probability of the match ever being made, owing to the peculiar connections of both boxers. McFarland has in the past always lent his services to the Fairmont A. C., in view of his close affiliations with Billy Gibson, its manager, while it was known that Wells was under contract to Hurst.

Cross Would Fight Wolgast.

Sam Wallach, the manager of the "Fighting" Cross family, writes that if Leach Cross is successful in defeating Tommy Murphy when they come together on April 17 at the Madison A. C., he will immediately post $1,000 as part of a $2,500 forfeit for Leach to fight Ad Wolgast at 133 pounds, ringside, for any number of rounds and at any place. As soon as Wolgast shows his willingness to make the match, the remainder of the forfeit will be forthcoming. Wallach also wants to assure the public that from a spectator's standpoint this contest will not be a disappointment, as the men are evenly matched and at present fighting their best. The boxers are rivals, and each realizes that he must win decisively or lose a lot of prestige, which is further assurance of what may be expected. They are to make 135 pounds, ringside, and neither will experience any difficulty in doing so. The preliminary card is well balanced, consisting of two ten-rounders between Paddy Sullivan and Benny Franklin and Phil Cross and Young Hickey.

Local Boxing Bouts To-night.

There will be no dearth of boxing at the local clubs to-night, as the National Athletic Club of Brooklyn, Sharkey Athletic Club, and the Fairmont Athletic Club have each scheduled the usual week-end attractions. The latter organization offers in the main event a ten-round affair in which Harlem Tommy Hopkins and Eddie Gallagher will mix matters. Steve Kennedy and Buck (Twin) Sullivan will come together in a ten-round semi-final, while Joe Malone and Joe Brady will travel a similar distance. In the six-round bouts the following are the nominations: Special Delivery Hirsch vs. Babe Davis, and either Kid Dodo or Young Lavinge vs. Red Wilson.

McGoorty and "Kid" George to Box.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 12.—Eddie McGoorty, the Wisconsin boxer, who is contending for the middleweight title, and "Kid" George, a Pacific Coast contender, have been matched to box ten rounds here April 24.

Langford and Jeannette Matched.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 12.—Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette, it is announced, have been matched for the last week in July by promoter McCarey of the Pacific Athletic Club. The negroes will fight twenty rounds at catch weights. The terms upon which the match was made are not made public, but it is understood that the men will box on a percentage basis.

Two Champions in A. A. U. Bouts.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 12.—Elimination contests at the Cleveland Athletic Club last night marked Arthur Strawbacker as champion of the 115 pound class and Bernie Black champion of the 158 pound class in the Central Association of the Amateur Athletic Union. Both are Cleveland lads.

Dr. Harris Wins with Cue.

BOSTON, April 12.—Chicago won to-night from Boston for the second time in the April series of the National Billiard League three-cushion competition, when Dr. Harris defeated Dr. Hudson, 50 to 49. Each man made a high run of 4. The Chicago player's average was 57 and the local player's 55.

Columbia vs. Harvard in Soccer.

The Columbia soccer team will play the Harvard eleven on South Field this afternoon and a close contest is expected. The recent victory of the Blue and White aggregation over Cornell has given them confidence and they will line up against the Cambridge team ready for a hard struggle. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

Close Matches in Pinehurst Golf.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 12.—Close matches ruled in to-day's play of the annual mid-April golf tournament, two match rounds eliminating half the field. In to-morrow's morning semi-final E. E. Wilbar of Alpine plays Chisholm Beach of Fox Hills and N. W. Dean of Oakley plays S. D. Wyatt of Fond du Lac.

Motor Cycle Race To-morrow.

The Bidwell Trophy motor cycle race will be held to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock over a seventeen-mile course on the Long Island Motor Parkway, from Great Neck to Bethpage. This is the first event of its kind to be run in this country, and will be conducted like the famous Tourist Trophy race in England. Entries have been received from practically all of the most prominent motor cycle drivers, including Frank Hart, amateur champion of America; J. A. Constant, "Joe" Buckingham, "Leo" Schwartz, M. Costello, Louis Goldsmith, and "Al" Cocchi.

Novice Fencing Tournament To-day.

The third annual novice fencing competition for the Clemens medal will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Seventh Regiment Armory, in which twenty-four foilsmen, representing twelve institutions, will compete. The contests will be decided on three strips with three judges officiating at each, among whom are the best officials of the sport. The entries for the event are as follows: Yale—John F. O'Fallon, R. C. Hilliard, S. A. Cook. Columbia—Louis B. Mouquin, W. R. Gwathmey, C. A. Manning. Cornell—Vedder White, F. E. Burton. Crescent Athletic Club—C. A. Kelly, W. F. Strankamp, G. Kistler. Cornwall Military Academy—M. Hirsch. New York Turn Verein—B. Morrison. French Y. M. C. A.—J. Bresson. New Rochelle Y. M. C. A.—H. A. Coffin, W. Giffing. Wesley House—John Reidel, Sidney Montgomery, Salvator Bosco. Murray's Fencing Studio—Robert Ingersoll-Brown. Polytechnic Preparatory School—James May, Walter Tyler, Cyrus Smith. Fakirs' Club—G. Bladen.

N. Y. U. vs. Swarthmore To-day.

New York University plays its second home game of the season against Swarthmore College this afternoon at Ohio Field. The local nine is traveling at a fast clip and should have little trouble in defeating the Pennsylvania team. The New York line-up will be: Brown, Sinnott, pitchers; Elliffe, catcher; Brennan, first base; Ahneman, second base; McNally, shortstop; Lynch, third base; Nixon, left field; Hamilton, centre field; Ayres, right field.

NORWAY INVITES AMERICAN ATHLETES

Olympic Team May Compete in That Country After Stockholm Games.

The American Olympic Fund was increased yesterday by $2,500 contributed by the New York Athletic Club and the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, the first named sending to Julian W. Curtiss, the Treasurer of the American Olympic Committee, $1,500, which was subscribed by the members of the Winged Foot organization. The committee is highly gratified with the response from the general public and expresses the hope that the subscription may be truly National, as is the cause.

That the prowess of the United States team, which is to be sent to the Fifth Olympiad at Stockholm is well known in countries where track and field athletics are in their infancy, and where competitors of such individual and group excellence have never been seen, is evidenced by the desire of the Norwegian athletic authorities that Uncle Sam's boys give a competitive demonstration of their abilities immediately after the Olympic games.

In a letter to James E. Sullivan, the Secretary of the American Committee, and the recently appointed Commissioner to look after United States interests at the sports, Charles F. Erickson, formerly of the Norwegian Turn Society of this city, who is now training the Norwegian athletes for the world's championships, writes as follows:

> At a meeting of the Norwegian Olympic Committee I broached the question of possibility of American athletes competing at some games held here in Norway and arranged for that purpose to take place immediately after the Olympic games in Stockholm. Captain Sverre, President of the Committee assured me that I could write and express the hope that you could come here and that you would be very welcome.
> At the last yearly meeting of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union I had a talk with Frederick W. Rubein about the same matter. Your athletes exhibiting here would have a stimulating effect for the interest of athletics and the boys would have a chance to see this beautiful country. It is so close by and the cost, considering the opportunity of seeing the Midnight Sun or perhaps taking some mountain climbs, is nominal.
> In such a case an exhibition here in Kristiana and one in Bergen could be arranged, scratch or handicap. The trip to Bergen, which is the next largest city here, takes one day across the western coast, and when there the Fjords are near at hand and the journey north for a peek at the Midnight Sun will be the other consideration.
> I see that Ernie Hjertberg picks United States first, England second and Sweden third for the Olympics. He has certainly come down some, but the Finns are dangerous for the third position and other European nations may upset his calculations.

In discussing the letter Mr. Sullivan acknowledged the possibility of American athletes taking the Norwegian trip, as they will have three days in which to go there before the Finland leaves for the States after the conclusion of the Olympic games.

Lawson Robertson, the trainer of the Irish-American A. C., who has been named as the probable assistant to Mike Murphy as coach of the American Olympic team, is extremely anxious that some of the members of the invading party be entered in the English championships which are scheduled to take place in London three days before the team's arrival at Antwerp, Belgium, which would give them plenty of time to journey to the scene of the games and carry away some of the athletic honors of the "Tight little Isle."

OBJECT TO TRACK PLANS.

Olympic Club Wants Changes Made at Golden Gate Stadium.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—The municipal authorities of this city have appropriated $2,700 in an effort to provide for a new cinder track at the Golden Gate Stadium, which will be used for the Pacific Coast try-outs for places on the Olympic team which is to represent the United States in Stockholm this Summer. The Stadium Committee appointed by the Olympic Club has petitioned John Elliott of the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union to call a meeting of all interested parties to confer over the plans offered by the local athletic authorities as to the correct layout of the runway at the Stadium.

John Elliott and Walter Christie, the well-known trainer, have submitted their ideas to the Superintendent, John McLaren, but these, it is said, do not meet with the approval of the Olympic Club leaders.

The committee appointed by the Olympic Club consists of William H. McCarthy, George James, Joseph R. Hickey, Philip Wand, Stephen Cassidy, John Hammersmith, Frank O'Kane, Albert Hampton, and Peter C. Gerhardt.

In reviewing the latest plan, the Winged "O" Committee is of the opinion that the 100-yard straightaway can be placed so as to be nearer the spectators. They further desire to have the quarter mile finish and the furlong straightaway on the north side of the track, instead of on the south side, as now named in the plans before Supt. McLaren.

Toronto to See Our Athletes.

Arrangements have been made for the competitive appearance of a dozen New York athletes at the annual games of the Eaton Athletic Association to be held at Hanlon's Point, Toronto, June 1, by Thomas P. Douglas, Secretary-Treasurer of the Eaton Athletic Association. As in the past when the metropolitan track and field performers have shown at these games high-class work seems sure to ensue. The association awards generous prizes to the respective winners and placed men, and altogether a gala occasion is looked for.

EXPLORER TO SPEAK ON SOUTH AMERICA

OUR ENGINEERS NEEDED

But Our Salesmen Should Cease Trying to Sell Derby Hats to Ranchmen.

Charles Wellington Furlong, the explorer and writer, and the leader of the first American expedition into Tierra del Fuego, came to this city yesterday for the purpose of delivering the first of a series of six lectures on South America at the Brooklyn Institute.

Mr. Furlong, who only recently returned from exploring the forests of Dutch Guiana, the Orinoco, and Apure Rivers and the Venezuelan llanos, told a TIMES reporter at the Salmagundi Club yesterday afternoon that the business possibilities which South America offered to American enterprise were still very great, but that Germany was getting away ahead of this country in the ingenuity with which it was acquiring the South American business fields.

"If there is any idea left in the American mind that the United States may ultimately annex any South American countries it had better be forgotten permanently," said Mr. Furlong. "Annexation would not be desirable for either side. We can easily retain all the commercal benefits of association with these countries without assuming new territorial responsibilities. The good-will of the South Americans is worth a good deal to us. They are not like the Mexicans or the Filipinos, or even the Central Americans. They are a proud people. And their culture—a fact which is usually forgotten but which is very important in understanding the situation—is much older than ours. There were universities in South America long before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. Twenty-five per cent. of the population can read and write. They are not barbaric and they don't need 'uplifting.' If the United States ever tries to 'uplift' them by annexation they will ally themselves with Germany or some other European country. In many States of Brazil the legal forms used are already those of Germany.

"South America has become a great cosmopolitan country, in which the republican forms of government exist everywhere. In most of the countries there is an established Christian Church. But this leads not to a narrow, bigotted viewpoint, but to a broad and tolerant one on the part of the majority of the people.

"South America should be carefully distinguished from Central America. The notion that South America has frequent revolutions, like Central America has, is a false idea. Central America is less civilized and doesn't come in contact with the outside world so much. The South American republics were, many of them, started twenty years after ours was, and their Constitutions were modeled after ours. Most of the alleged revolutions which we have heard about in South America have in reality been nothing but 'strikes,' less serious than our own labor strikes.

Americans Should Enter the Race.

"What we Americans should strive for in South America is commercial conquest. The natural resources of the South American Continent are enormous, as every one knows. Argentina exported more wheat than the United States did two years ago, and is the second largest wool exporter of all the countries of the world. All the best land, of course, in Argentina is now taken up. You can travel all the way across Argentina to Chile on the Transcontinental Railroad without being at any time out of sight of grazing cattle or sheep. Wire fencing is strung 600 miles across the country without a break. The quebracho forests, from which railroad ties are made and tannin extracted, and the trees of which live for 1,000 years, are also all taken up.

"There is a big demand all over the Argentine just now for engineers. There are a lot of engineering contracts just now open for bidders. The railway systems of the country are still undeveloped. In the cities themselves there are many safe and profitable electric lighting, rapid transit, and power contracts. There are opportunities for young Americans who speak Spanish in the South American business houses. But there are especial opportunities for young Americans who mix readily to travel through South America, introducing new lines of goods and getting a share of the old lines which the German business houses have secured control of through better business methods.

Must Change Our Methods.

"But, if American business men are going to handle trade in South America in competition with the Germans they must adopt different business methods than they have adopted heretofore. South American business firms like rather long credit—ninety days. The business houses there have been established just as long as ours have, and are perfectly safe. Where the German and English importers have the upper hand of our American firms in South America is that they are in control of the banks, and can thus find out about whose credit is good and whose credit isn't. There are practically no American bankers in South America, but the German bankers go so far as to let representatives of German business firms actually copy the invoices of American goods which pass through them. Soon after the copies of these American invoices have reached Germany out come a lot of courteous, sociable German salesmen with samples of goods just like the American goods only a little better or cheaper.

"The trouble with the methods of the American business firms operating in South America just now is that they are trying to make the South Americans take things that they don't want, instead of studying their needs as the Germans do. The American salesmen, for example, will try to make the ranchmen buy derbies; the German on the other hand, send agents through the country picking out sombreros and other things which South Americans like to wear. These are taken back to Germany and improved upon until the ranchmen and the rest of the population are more pleased than ever before. The German salesmen, too, are more suited in their manners to do business with the South Americans. They are especially good mixers, and they don't try to hustle too much.

"The American way of 'putting it across quick and beating it off by the next steamer' doesn't go in South America. The South Americans, if they like a man well enough to do business with him, want to have them visit their country places, meet their families, and be sociable. Then they give an order which often opens the salesman's eyes. There is a lot of the old caballero spirit in them, and the winning of their regard is the greatest business asset a salesman can have."

The Oriental Question.

There is a big colony of Chinese and Japanese on the west coast in Peru, not very far from the Panma Canal, Mr. Furlong said, but there is no danger of the Japanese establishing a coaling station there, as the South Americans don't take kindly to Orientals. The South Americans are much better fighters than we think, according to Mr. Furlong, and are so much in earnest in perfecting their martial strength, that, when the Rivadavia, the biggest dreadnaught in the world, was made for Argentina a commission was appointed by that Government to test every single rivet in the vessel.

Mr. Furlong said that he had seen the famous Zevalles art collection while in Lima, and that the article describing it, which THE TIMES published in its Sunday edition some time ago, did not exaggerate the value of the collection in the slightest. The Zevalles family is trying to sell the famous collection for $400,000.

NEW COURT CALENDAR PLAN.

There Will Be Two Instead of One for Trial Terms, Beginning April 22.

The new system of preparing the calendars of the Trial Terms of the Supreme Court, which will go into effect on April 22, was announced yesterday. Hereafter, there will be two general calendars instead of one. The first will list tort and railroad cases, the second contract cases. Six thousand cases now awaiting trial will be divided between the two calendars.

At the beginning of the May term the cases will be apportioned among the seventeen trial parts, thus abolishing the system of a general calendar from which cases are sent to Justices in other parts. Each Justice will have charge of his own calendar. Many delays will be avoided by this method, it is hoped.

The preparation of separate trial calendars is also expected to expedite litigation by giving lawyers more accurate notice of the time their cases may be brought to trial and the opportunity to make engagements in advance accordingly.

ASKS LUNA PARK RECEIVER.

Woman Would Thus Make Certain the Payment of $7,624 Judgment.

Application was made yesterday to Supreme Court Justice Maddox in Brooklyn for the appointment of a receiver of the potential assets of the Luna Park Company. Thomas A. McCole, attorney for Miss Tessie Smith of Saratoga Springs, made the application for the purpose of protecting a judgment of $7,624 obtained against the company by his client.

He told Justice Maddox that the so-called financial difficulties of Luna Park were not as bad as they were represented to appear, and that the recent assignment of the park property was made probably to escape paying Miss Smith. She obtained the judgment last November for injuries which she said she received at the park last Summer.

Edwin T. Tallaferro, counsel for Frederic Thompson, opposed the motion. Mr. McCole contended that the assets of the Luna Park Company were at least $500,000. This was denied by Mr. Tallaferro. He said the company owed $180,000. Justice Maddox took the papers and reserved decision.

INJURED BY HIS GLASSES.

Prof. Porterfield Got Broken Particles in His Eye in Handball Game.

While playing handball in the Columbia gymnasium last Wednesday week, Dr. Allen Wilson Porterfield, an Assistant Professor of Germanic Language and Literature was seriously injured. He was wearing eyeglasses, and a blow in the face shattering the glasses, broken glass was driven through the eyeball. He was immediately taken to the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital, where it was thought that the injured eye would have to be taken out in order to save the sight of the other.

Dr. Porterfield refused to permit the operation, feeling there was some chance for the eye to be saved. On Sunday he said he could see slightly out of the injured eye, and the optical experts have redoubled their efforts to save it. Yesterday the report was hopeful.

CAN'T RECOVER FROM AHEARN

Court Dismisses Michaels's Suit for $30,000 Back Salary.

Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss dismissed a complaint yesterday in the suit brought by William H. Michaels to recover $30,624 from former Borough President of Manhattan John F. Ahearn. The plaintiff asserts that this is salary due him from December, 1909, when he was removed as head of the Bureau of Sewers.

Charles L. Hoffman, counsel for the defendant, moved that the complaint be dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had shown no cause of action in his complaint. Lawyer Hoffman said that the case had been on the calendar for more than three years and that the defendant had gone to considerable expense in preparing his defense.

SUED DAY AFTER HIS WEDDING

New York Girl Says Montclair, N. J., Man Promised to Marry Her.

Alger M. Hoagland, a well-to-do resident of Montclair, N. J., was married on Thursday night at the St. Regis, and yesterday a ten-thousand-dollar breach-of-promise suit was filed against him in the Supreme Court. He married Sophia E. Mackenzie. Mary I. Peer of this city is the plaintiff in the action.

In her complaint Miss Peer says that Hoagland promised to marry her in April, 1911, and that when she reminded him later he absolutely refused to do so. Hoagland will make a general denial through his attorney, James Gillen.

Why She Didn't Pay Jewelers.

Mrs. Maude Wolfe Cameron of 166 West Seventy-second Street declared yesterday in supplementary proceedings that the reason she had not paid a $525 City Court judgment against her, held by Marcus & Co., jewelers, was that she had assigned most of her equity in a $40,000 legacy from her grandfather, John Wolfe. She said she had drawn $6,000 against the legacy herself and had assigned other portions to creditors.

MAYOR SIGNS SCHOOL ANTI-MERGING BILL

Every One on Teachers' Eligible Lists Should Have a Fair Chance, He Says.

VETOES A PENSION MEASURE

Department of Correction Age Retirement Bill Too Liberal, He Declares —Calls Courts "Curious."

Mayor Gaynor held hearings yesterday on a number of legislative bills. He signed the Goldberg Anti-Merging bill, which provides that eligible lists for appointments to the teaching staff of the city schools shall not be merged as they have been in the past by Supt. Maxwell, and he vetoed the measure providing for a pension fund for the Department of Correction. Regarding the Goldberg bill, the Mayor sent this memorandum to the Governor:

"I regard this as a meritorious bill. The custom which has grown up with the Superintendent of Public Schools of merging the eligible lists of those qualified for appointment as teachers should not continue. I know of no law permitting it, and this bill prohibits it. When an eligible list is made up everybody on it should have a fair chance of appointment, instead of only those of the highest percentages being appointed. To run it half way down, and then get a new eligible list, and merge the two, and keep up that process, is to put those on the lower half of the list in a deplorable condition. They have scarcely left even that hope deferred which maketh the heart sick. Eligibles with higher ratings than theirs are constantly being put ahead of them on the lists made up by such mergers. We all know that those of the higher ratings do not always prove to be the best teachers, and that is true all through the affairs of life. There is no such practice in any of the other departments. I think the Department of Education should act more in harmony with the policy of the city Government than it has been doing for some years past. The city furnishes it with a vast annual revenue, and that revenue should be expended in fair harmony with the city Government."

This is the Mayor's memorandum on the other bill:

"I regret that I am not able to approve of this bill. It is altogether too liberal. It requires that any employe of the Department of Correction who shall reach the age of 55 years and has performed duty in the said department for twenty years, and that any employe who has reached the age of 60 years, without regard to how long he has been in the department, shall be retired on a pension on his application. I know of no reason why an employe 55 years old, or 60 years old, who is in good mental and physical condition and fit for service should be retired. The true principle is that such employe should be retired for physical or mental incapacity or for extreme age. Why should they be retired and pensioned when they are fit to go on with their work? This whole subject of pensions has to be reconsidered, and it is my purpose to appoint a committee of citizens therefor."

Among the other bills which came up was one permitting the Police Commissioner to increase the pension of Henry C. Fink, a former policeman, who lost his eyesight while in the proper performance of his duty, and who is now on a grant of half pay. The Mayor asked Fink how he became blind, and he replied that a colored woman whom he had arrested had kicked him in the head. It is thought the Mayor will approve the bill. Ernest Coulter, former chief clerk of the Court of Special Sessions, appeared in support of a measure providing that Children's Court Justices may have child prisoners who are mentally or physically defective examined by designated physicians. Another bill provides for legal commitments by inferior courts on Sundays.

"What do they want to do, lock people up till Monday?' asked the Mayor.

"Yes," said some one.

"Well," he replied, "I guess I'll sign that bill. The courts are very curious things."

The Mayor said he would sign another bill providing that Magistrates may admit accused persons to bail at all hours just as may Justices of the Supreme Court.

OBJECTED TO THE BIBLE

And Mayor Wrote Him Saying He Must Have a Very Nasty Mind.

Philip G. Peabody, who gave his addres as care of Brown, Shipley & Co., 123 Pall Mall, S. W., London, England, wrote to Mayor Gaynor a few days ago protesting against the Mayor's action in giving a Bible to a number of young women recently. The writer declared that the Bible was not a fit book for any one to read as it was filled with "filth, blasphemy, and cruelty." The Mayor wrote Mr. Peabody this reply:

April 12th, 1912.

Dear Sir: Your letter is at hand. It only proves that you have a very nasty mind. That is true of everybody who thinks the Bible is nasty. W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Mr. Philip G. Peabody, care of Brown, Shipley & Co., 123, Pall Mall, S. W., London, England.

Mr. Peabody's letter was dated "At anchor on board steamship Cincinnati, near Palermo, March 29, 1912."

Jail Term for Misbranding Oil.

Judge Holt sentenced Gaetano Marchesini, a vegetable oil importer of 585 Washington Street, yesterday to imprisonment for ten days and to pay a fine of $300 for misbranding and adulterating cottonseed oil and selling it as pure olive oil. This is the first jail sentence imposed in this Federal district for a violation of the Federal pure food law.

LEXINGTON AV. SUBWAY BIDS.

Tenders Asked for Section Passing Under the Harlem River.

Bids were invited yesterday by the Public Service Commission for the construction of that portion of the Lexington Avenue Subway route which passes under the Harlem River. The section begins a little north of 129th Street, and involves a tunnel under the river extending into the Bronx as far as 135th Street, where the subway will divide into two branches, along Jerome Avenue and Woodlawn Road, and through 138th Street, the Southern Boulevard, and Westchester Avenue to Pelham Bay Park.

In this section the subway will have four tracks, and bids are asked for three types of tunnel. One of these calls for four steel tubes, all of which are connected with each other, and the other two for cast iron tubes, either connected or arranged in pairs. According to the requirements of the War Department these tubes must be placed twenty-five feet below mean low water mark, but the contractor may either bore under the river or dredge out the bed of the Harlem River and lower the tubes from the surface.

VAN NESS SCENTED CONTEST.

Wrote Letter Disclaiming Paternity of Mrs. Parsons, Who Attacks Will.

Surrogate Fowler continued yesterday hearings on the contested will of Cornelius H. Van Ness. William A. Parshall of Port Jervis, who conducted most of Mr. Van Ness's legal business and who drew the contested will, spent his third day on the witness stand. He will be subjected to a fourth day's examination on Thursday, when the hearings will be continued.

Mr. Parshall told of the marriage of Mr. Van Ness and Alice Wood, his third wife, in Jersey City in 1900. The first wife of Mr. Van Ness, who had divorced him, and under whose decree he had been forbidden to remarry, was still alive at Garden City at that time. Attorney Parshall, who characterized himself a plain country lawyer, identified a letter written by Mr. Van Ness and witnessed by himself in 1902, in which Mr. Van Ness denied the paternity of Mrs. Alice Van Ness Parsons, the daughter, who is now contesting the will under which the old man's third wife is the principal beneficiary. The letter contained the statement that it was prepared for use in case Mrs. Parsons should attack her stepmother.

The attorney admitted that he had paid $1,000 of the dividends on $40,000 worth of bonds, which Mr. Van Ness gave him as part of a $47,000 fee, to Harry Wood, Mrs. Van Ness's brother. Wood is now a stenographer in the Supreme Court at Goshen.

In the Amazon Jungle
Adventures in a Remote Part of the Upper Amazon River Including a Sojourn among the Cannibal Indians
By ALGOT LANGE
With an Introduction by FREDERICK S. DELLENBAUGH
Octavo. With 86 illustrations from Original Photographs by the Author.
$2.50 net. By mail $2.75.

A unique narrative of discovery and adventure. Not only is the region described one that has long piqued curiosity, but the exceptional trials that the author endured and the unusual experiences that at every step beset his progress form a tout ensemble that make one's heart throb with sympathetic interest in the hardihood and pluck that finally conquered over the treachery of the horror-infested jungle. His experiences among the cannibal Indians are most thrilling.

HARPERS BOOKS

The Man in Lonely Land
By Kate Langley Bosher

To all prisoners in Lonely Land! Here's the way out—the way to happiness! For you, then, is this story of one prisoner who found his liberty. How? Suddenly, like a fragrant southern breeze, he felt the presence of Another. Her joyousness filled the air with song. Even the children reflected her sunshine till he, too, caught the infection. Thus led, he left Lonely Land behind him forever, and came out into the sunshine of Mary Caryland.

The Terrible Meek
By Charles Rann Kennedy

Here is the strangest play ever written—a play as dramatic and thrilling to read as to act. Think of it—it is a play to be played in the dark! In it there is a spiritual bomb—like the questions Jesus asked of His generation—which breaks some of our small notions of Duty. It is a drama of the new Courage, "more like woman's," and is even more significant than the author's "The Servant in the House."

Riders of the Purple Sage
By Zane Grey

"Most readers will devour it whole."—Chicago Record-Herald. "Stirring in action and wonderfully picturesque."—Charleston News and Courier. "The tang of the purple sage and the faint fragrance of untrodden grasses and wild flowers growing in lonely canyons and by unknown streams."—San Francisco Bulletin.

Greyfriars Bobby
By Eleanor Atkinson

"He manages to be loved by a whole cityful, with so much human interest that he makes a story by being himself."—Baltimore News. "Not unworthy of a place beside Black Beauty."—New York Tribune. "The human and the dog parts of the story are delightful; can stand comparison even with Rab and His Friends."—New York Sun.

Harper's Guide To Wild Flowers

In this book Mrs. Caroline A. Creevey explains—for young and old—the flowers and plants. Here are the new classifications, embodying the decisions of the Vienna botanical congress. Some old names, dear to us, have come back, and there is a greater simplicity. Many colored plates show the flowers as they actually appear to us.

The Abolition Crusade and Its Consequences

By HILARY A. HERBERT, LL. D.

Colonel of the Confederate Army, former Congressman, and Secretary of the Navy under President Cleveland.

With a Preface by James Ford Rhodes

$1.00 net. Postpaid $1.10.

Throws light on the causes of the Civil War from a new angle. He believes, and attempts to show, that a widespread sentiment in the South against slavery was working toward some peaceful form of emancipation, when Southern sentiment was changed by the rise of Garrisonian abolitionism, and was fanned into a warlike spirit by its violence.

The Sources of Religious Insight

By JOSIAH ROYCE,

Professor of Philosophy, Harvard University.

$1.25 net. Postpaid $1.35.

The distinguished author reasons for belief in a divine scheme of the universe that includes the salvation of man. His method is such as to render his argument valuable to every thoughtful person irrespective of the particular form of his faith or scepticism; for he relies not at all on theological doctrines or religious creeds, but purely upon the experiences of human life.

The Christian Hope

A Study in the Doctrine of Immortality

By WM. ADAMS BROWN, D. D., Ph.D.

75c. net. Postpaid 83c.

Gives in clear and simple language an account of the rise, history and present status of the Christian's hope of a future life. The author's concise pointed style has made this possible in the limits fixed by the small volume size of the Studies in Theology series.

The Religions of Modern Syria and Palestine

By FREDERIC JONES BLISS, Ph.D.

$1.50 net. Postpaid $1.65.

The writer gathered his material as largely as possible at first hand—by questioning in their native tongue the priests and elders of the five Christian churches of modern Syria and Palestine, and of the Mohammedan church. The result is not only a scholarly exposition full of valuable information, but a fresh, warm, and human description of the religions of living men.

The Best New Fiction

Emerson Hough's Greatest American Novel

JOHN RAWN

A New Novel by Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble, 54-40 or Fight, etc.

It is a progressive novel—one of the little voices of the era. You would better read it, for it will teach you something.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer

Dramatic in treatment, important in theme, and as entertaining throughout as any piece of fiction can possibly be, John Rawn must be given its place among the really notable contributions to current American literature.
—Pittsburgh Post

John Rawn is a novel you cannot sidestep if it once gets in your way.
—Boston Globe

You will remember that the great force toward cleaning up the slaughter houses was furnished by Sinclair's Jungle. It may be that this great disclosure, in John Rawn, of the selfishness of the rich and the poverty of the poor, may hold the solution of the problem which is now the most gigantic one in the world.
—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief Chemist of Dept. of Agriculture

Illustrated by Bracker. Price $1.25 Net.

Mr. Ellis has written a splendid novel, and Fran is a girl who deserves our most cordial approval. —Phil. Record

FRAN

A New Novel by John Breckenridge Ellis

Along with the force that subdues, looking out of Fran's big black eyes is the force that inevitably attracts. —N. Y. World

The direct, confidential style of the author fairly matches the bold spirit of Fran and lends added interest to her shrewd divinations of human nature.
—Phila. No. American

The story reads from beginning to end with a directness which is charming even to the tired reviewer of many modern novels.
—Phila. Inquirer

Fran, a most unusual and most attractive girl, completely fills the pages with her remarkable and vivid personality.
—Albany Knickerbocker-Press

An extraordinary novel is Fran—a book to achieve a great degree of popularity.
—Chicago Journal

Illustrated by King. Price $1.25 Net

YOU'LL remember Buck Peters as one of the Bar-20 Outfit. This is the story of what happened when he bought a half interest in a ranch in Montana. The cattle rustlers and range jumpers got busy with Buck's cattle and tried to run him out of the country. They had almost succeeded in doing it when Hopalong Cassidy and his men appeared on the scene, and what they did to the rustlers and range jumpers makes mighty exciting reading.

The book's mostly action, but there's a very pretty romance in it, too.

MY ACTOR HUSBAND

ANONYMOUS. HERE IS A BOOK THAT WILL UNDOUBTEDLY CREATE A SENSATION. "My Actor Husband" is the soul-throbbing story of a woman who married an actor of good birth and breeding who later became a matinee idol. Here life behind the scenes is stripped bare of all its glamor and gloss, and while the author does not aim for sensationalism the reader will be startled at times by the amazing truths set forth and the frankness of her revelations. OLIVER'S KIND WOMEN

By PHILIP GIBBS, author of the "Street of Adventure," "The Weak Man and His Folly," etc.

Oliver, the chief character, comes under the influence of many women of high and low degree, and is the strongest and most analytical portrait study yet drawn by the author. He is the type of many young men of promise of today and his career will be followed by amusement, sympathy and interest. Oliver's Kind Women is a brilliant novel and the cleverest work of the writer who has already been marked out by the critics as one of the few who are striking out along a new and characteristic line.

"County Lines Afire! They Can't Check It."

"Little Corky," superintendent of Consolidated Traction, knew what that meant. It was the Company's biggest car-barn and it held every closed car they owned. Unless these were saved the people of Tremont would have to ride all winter in open cars. And there were complaints enough already from the people of Tremont. "Little Corky" had to go, even though the girl he loved was waiting at that moment to give the answer that meant everything in the world to him. It looked that night as though "Little Corky" would lose the cars and the girl, too. But he didn't—because he was "Little Corky." Read the book and you will see what we mean.

LAW FOR THE DUAL SUBWAY.

Justice BLACKMAR's decision that the dual subway plan is constitutional must be appealed, of course, but he supplies the big stick with which to beat the lion in the path of this necessity of the city's development. The Constitution forbids the city to "give" anything, or to loan its credit to any private corporation. The proposal is that the city shall lease its property, allowing the lessor a priority regarding the receipts, but without guaranteeing the receipts. The receipts from the publicly built and privately built railways are to be pooled, but regarding this there is nothing in the Constitution, which also is silent regarding what has been called a partnership of the city with the railways. That the operating leases will be profitable to the lessees is nothing against the arrangement, since it must be profitable to attract them, or there could be no lease. In short, the Court has no doubts regarding the compliance with the letter of the Constitution.

Justice BLACKMAR is even more convincing when he considers what may be called the merits and the motive of the constitutional prohibitions which he declares inapplicable. They were directed against private railways, which had shown a tendency in the ante-regulation days to exploit the public. This is now prevented by the Public Service Commission, which did not exist at the time the Constitution was drawn. Moreover, the railways are now public utilities, especially for the purposes of this contract. The purpose of the dual subway is to provide a municipal subway, and not to make money. The purpose is not profit, but the welfare of the city and the convenience of its citizens. The city provides a five-cent fare throughout the respective systems and may thereby make them unprofitable. If this should prove a burden upon the taxes it is such a use of tax money as is within the city's functions, and such as it devotes all tax money to. Whether the contract is improvident remains to be seen, but no allegation of improvidence can enter into the judicial consideration of legality when there is no proof of fraud, collusion, or bad faith. The city is acting within its discretion and its rights, and the suits are dismissed with costs against those bringing them.

The Justice is as clear and strong on the economics of the dual subway as on the constitutional aspects. Profits, he says, are secondary, and there may be profits on the whole, even though there may be losses on traffic. The idea is not wholly new, but at last it may dawn upon the comprehension of those who have ignored everything but operative conditions, and have had delusions of grandeur and persecution about them.

JUDGES AND NATURALIZATION.

Justice KAPPER, who admitted to naturalization the Italian who seemed to think that "ROOSEVELT was everything" in this country, explains to a representative of The Brooklyn Eagle that the man's replies were the result of nervousness. When he had regained composure he made quite satisfactory answers to essential queries. He had been in this country a number of years, spoke fair English when not excited, and had a child born here.

The Justice gave a perfectly sound statement of the requirements he thinks should be made for admission to citizenship:

> With me, one of the real solid propositions in discerning an applicant's qualifications, besides that of good character and a belief in our institutions, is his ability intelligently to state the fundamental distinction between our form of Government and that of the country from which he came. If he shows that he knows the real difference between a republic and a monarchy he is apt to be pretty close to granting of his application.

We lay before our readers this explanation of Justice KAPPER's mode of dealing with naturalization cases because we have long insisted that the discretion of the courts in these cases is very considerable, and the responsibility for its exercise very grave. In the past the courts have shamefully abused their discretion. Through laziness, indifference, and sometimes through the influence of politicians, they have failed to enforce proper conditions for citizenship when they clearly had the power to do so. The only excuse for their errors in this direction was the lack of adequate provision for the orderly conduct of their business. This, however, was not a justification. Better a hundred cases of delay in securing naturalization than one case of lax admission.

POETRY AND SEDITION.

Doubtless to be dangerously seditious poetry need not be commendable as poetry. Some pretty bad doggerel survives in history because of its effective association with political movements. But the worst of it is spirited and effective. Mr. KIPLING's late rhymed remarks entitled "Ulster" have been condemned as seditious in the House of Commons by a Liberal member, Mr. JOSEPH MARTIN. Doubtless Mr. MARTIN's patriotism is superior to his literary judgment. He appeals to the Government to do something to Mr. KIPLING, and the Government, which includes a few good judges of poetry, may reply that Mr. KIPLING, in his present state, is not worth bothering about.

Mr. MARTIN wants the Government to prosecute not only Mr. KIPLING but also the publishers of his poem and the printers who set it in type. Only one printer was to blame, of course, as "Ulster" made only a small "take" for a linotype operator, and this operator would doubtless plead, before the bar of the House of Commons, that the support of a wife and nine small children depended on his obedience to orders—a poor excuse for a true patriot, but one that would be effective with legislators who have been going in for old age pensions and State insurance. As for the publishers, well, when they saw what they had paid for in cold type they were sufficiently punished. Mr. KIPLING, for his part, did his best. He has been going from bad to worse lately, and this is, by far, his worst effort, which is saying a great deal. There is no encouragement for Ulster in KIPLING's poem. There is no encouragement in it for English poetry, seditious or otherwise. Mr. MARTIN is wasting his powder.

GIVE AND TAKE.

We like the way the various candidates for the nomination are standing up to their work and warding off assaults. Gov. WILSON's veto of the Grade Crossing bill is his reply to those who charge that his radical views would betray him into running amuck against the corporations. Accused by the Republicans of writing veto messages in haste and of giving too little attention to the bills they enacted, he replies that he gave to that work every minute that the Republican Legislaturo and the Constitution allowed him. Mr. BRYAN has handled UNDERWOOD rather gingerly since that gentleman exposed the utter falsehood and meanness of the Nebraskan's charges against him and got the solid Democratic majority of the House to back him up in the retort. Now Gov. HARMON enters the lists. The Governor has been singularly meek and quiet under the attacks of the Bryan group, but yesterday he went into Nebraska, which he has a perfect right to do, since BRYAN invaded Ohio, and, selecting some of the grossest of the lies that have been told about him, he crammed them down the throats of their authors. Particularly enjoyable are his brief biographical notes upon some of the gentlemen who are aiding Mr. BRYAN in his anti-Harmon foray.

During Gov. HARMON's first campaign the matter of graft in connection with bank deposits of the public moneys became an issue. While Mr. HARMON was denouncing this kind of grafting he discovered that one of his associates on the ticket was trying to get votes by promising deposits of the State funds to bankers who would make contributions or get votes for him. "This man," said Gov. HARMON, "is now noisily progressive and fabricator-in-chief of the league at whose "first meeting the doorkeeper was under indictment for bribery in the "Legislature, and is now in the penitentiary." The next issue of The Commoner will be scanned by those who want to know what reply Mr. BRYAN will make to this. Another member of the league, said the Governor, one who has been stumping in Nebraska, tried to prevail upon the Treasurer of the State of Ohio to break faith with the people and turn over public funds to favored depository banks. This man, it turns out, had a client who had borrowed a very large sum of money, State funds, from a bank that was paying the State 2½ per cent. interest while it was paying 4 per cent. to the other depositors.

This is a very good beginning for Gov. HARMON. Such retorts make the campaign more interesting. Mr. ROOSEVELT has not been very successful in his tactics of defense. Issues of veracity have frequently been raised against him, and in most such cases, as was once said of a gentleman formerly well known in this community, "the other man was pretty uniformly right." But the Colonel makes so much noise himself that it takes a sharp ear to catch the notes of any accusing voice. Speaker CLARK has been fortunate. Nobody has pitched into him except about the annexation utterance. Anyway, he is now in a position to reply to attacks by pointing to Illinois. Mr. TAFT among the rest has been taking care of himself very well. It is only by deliberate perversions of the President's words that Mr. ROOSEVELT has been able to forge any thunderbolts to be hurled in that direction, and they have all fallen short. Meanwhile Mr. TAFT's analysis of the working of the ex-President's plan for reforming the courts has been both instructive and destructive. All of these candidates in both parties seem to be capable of taking care of themselves.

SALARY GRABS.

Unless Gov. DIX vetoes them, over a score of bills increasing salaries on the payrolls of this city, at an aggregate of $250,000—equivalent to an investment of $5,000,000—will become permanently effective. They have been passed at the instance of politicians. The Citizens' Union declares that the increases are either undeserved and unnecessary, or they involve questions that are properly under the control of the Board of Estimate. They are patronage bills, making fatter the minor offices at the disposal of District Attorneys, Sheriffs, County Register, County Clerk, the City Court, and so on. The City Club asks that the Governor veto them on the broad ground that they are opposed to the democratic principle of home rule.

That is a sufficient reason. This city has many financial troubles. The mandatory salary bills would add as much to the annual budget as an issue of $5,000,000 of bonds for subways. The Board of Estimate should be the judge of whether money that might be spent on facilities for transit should be used to increase the salaries of political henchmen.

SECRET PARTY FUNDS.

Mr. PERRY BELMONT has prepared a summary of the history of the movement for "the abolition of the secrecy of party funds." The greatest success of this movement was the law of last year requiring publicity of campaign contributions in National elections, Presidential and Congressional, but in this there was the serious defect that publicity was postponed until after election. Obviously, this was less than half-way reform. The Publicity Law Association will press earnestly for the completion of the work.

Mr. BELMONT's pamphlet is not issued by him as President of the association, but in his "individual capacity as a Democrat." It is intended to bring clearly to light the part the Democratic Party has had in the reform. That part is honorable. It is true that it is largely the result of the fact that the Democrats have been in the minority, and that the Republicans, as protectionists, have had legislation to sell, and have habitually sold it. We fear the Democrats in the various States are not free from like taint, and there is no chapter in the history of corruption more repulsive than that of the Democratic "Senators from Havemeyer," or the "bargain-counter" tariff of 1893. But it remains true that the movement for publicity has largely been a Democratic movement and that it is a sound one.

MR. MACVEAGH AND THE TARIFF.

Two points were made by the Secretary of the Treasury before the Metal Trades Association which show that the intricate laws of his office do not hinder him from doing his own thinking. One was that in this country the tariff is on the sure way to be revised, reformed, and reduced. All parties are tending, almost involuntarily, in that direction. The real issue between them is one of method rather than of aim. Personally he believes very earnestly in the method of non-partisan expert inquiry before action. So do most sensible men. But that is a system to be developed gradually. It cannot be created complete in a few months. And it is not a good excuse for absolute non-action to say that you are waiting for a scientific inquiry from a board which, though it is industrious and fairly effective, is still far from authoritative.

The second point made by Mr. MACVEAGH is that ultimately protective tariffs will disappear. Here is an admirable passage to that effect:

> It is simply impossible to conceive a free road to civilization and human progress unless the tariff walls are eventually and in the long run broken down. The protective system may do well enough for the present stage of the world's civilization, but it won't do for a civilization that is much more advanced, nor for a human progress and a human brotherhood that is better conceived. The enlargement of National boundaries and the adoption of freedom of trade within those boundaries has made the area of free trade in the world much greater than the area of protectionist trade, because the internal trade is very much larger than the external trade. And the same sort of progress which now dominates within the nations will carry itself beyond the nations and over the world.

CLARA BARTON.

CLARA BARTON, who died at her Maryland home yesterday, in her 91st year, was a woman of remarkable executive skill, of unbounded enthusiasm, inspired by humane ideas. She was probably the first woman appointed to office under the Federal Government, and after some years of patient and useful labor in the Patent Office she was dismissed because her political views, doubtless expressed with vehemence whenever occasion offered, were opposed to those of President BUCHANAN. In the civil war she labored incessantly as nurse for wounded soldiers and in providing supplies for the sick and wounded. She was instrumental in the establishment of field hospitals, and her name became a household word, associated in the public mind with goodness and mercy.

She inherited a fortune and spent freely for others. She was never remunerated for her services. At Berne, in 1869, she was one of the founders of the International Red Cross Society, and throughout the Franco-Prussian war she served as nurse and distributed relief at the front. She was chiefly instrumental in the foundation of the American Red Cross Association, and was appointed to its Presidency by President GARFIELD, the appointment receiving the signature, after GARFIELD's death, of President ARTHUR. In this capacity she aided the sufferers in many calamities. In the Spanish-American war Miss BARTON, though nearly 80 years old, took personal charge of field work.

Her old age was clouded, though her personal repute was never blemished, by a quarrel in the Red Cross Society, the running expenses of which she had nearly always paid out of her own funds. President ROOSEVELT took sides with her opponents, and in 1904 she resigned. But her great and noble work had been accomplished, and the American Red Cross survives as her monument.

SECRETARY KNOX IN HAVANA.

The only meaning that can reasonably be found for the comparatively cold reception of Secretary KNOX in Havana may be traced to the exaggerated importance lately given by some American newspapers to the gossip circulated by mischiefmakers in Cuba. There are many mischiefmakers there, and they are always alert. They have spread a great deal of talk about American intervention which is absolutely without basis.

As a matter of fact, although the reception of Secretary KNOX was not noticeably enthusiastic, it was polite and appropriate. Probably the Secretary was grateful for the absence of "pretentious fulsomeness" and "meaningless fol-de-rols." His speech at the elaborate banquet given in his honor was well received. If some suspicious persons found in it "another warning to Cuba" that is clearly their own fault.

The Havana Post interprets the speech to mean that if Cuba is to prosper its people, and not its politicians, must rule. That applies equally well to all republics. The Cuban Republic, in these years of its infancy, has too many politicians. But its prospects are bright, and, as The Post intimates, it is not a supplicant for favor.

> At least 90 per cent. of the accidents are caused, in my opinion, by the professional chauffeurs and the taxicab operators.—Mr. A. G. BATCHELDER in The Herald.

Is Mr. BATCHELDER sure of this? The regular chauffeurs are licensed and may be identified. But any inexperienced owner, borrower, or renter of a motor car may run it without a personal license. Secretary CORNELL of the National Highways Protective Society says that most of the accidents are caused by such irresponsible persons, who cannot be identified.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Panama and Its Geology. As there has been a good deal of talk about the possibility of damage to the Panama Canal from volcanic eruptions and earthquake shocks, the report that a steamship captain had come up from the Isthmus to Mobile with a large story about destructive lava flows from Chiriqui Peak doubtless caused some apprehension. This has now been allayed, for it seems that the story was entirely false. Even had the story been true, however, only a little knowledge of Isthmian geology was required to inspire entire calmness as regards the canal, for the chances of any injury to it from seismic disturbances are practically nil.

At each end of the Isthmus there are, indeed, mountains of volcanic origin. These are "extinct" in the sense that they have not been active for centuries, but any one of them might wake up. Of these two volcanic regions, the one at the west is a continuation of the range of which our Rocky Mountains are a part, and the other at the east is the northern extremity of the Andean system, but they are separated by the whole length of the Isthmus, and in this interval there is set down what seems somewhat like another island of the group to which Cuba, Haiti and Porto Rico belong. It is of a formation wholly unlike the great continental uplift, and its hills, instead of running north and south, run east and west.

It is through this central expanse that the canal has been built, sufficiently remote from even "extinct" volcanoes to be much more than fairly safe. Hence, while the reported eruption of Chiriqui might have been true, had it been so the canal would not have been imperiled. On the other hand, the recent story of volcanic action in the Culebra cut was false on its face, and could have been denied on purely geologic reasons.

There have been earthquakes in the part of Panama that interests us, but they have always been slight—mere subsiding tremors from distant agitations—and the best cure for nervousness as to what may happen to the canal from earthquakes is to see still standing in one of the oldest churches in the City of Panama one of the flattest arches that architects ever ventured to build.

Dark Fate Pursues Its Victims. They are gossipping in Washington, it seems, about the misfortunes of one kind or another that have befallen the Senators who last year decided that the remarkable LORIMER was worthy to remain their colleague and to retain the seat which he still more or less adorns. Several of the Senators who voted for him have died, others have been defeated for re-election, and still others have deemed it injudicious to seek the honor of another term.

The statistics as presented do make a rather impressive showing, quite strong enough to create at least a half belief—among those who like to believe such things—that a mysterious punishment is working itself out. Thus are legends of effective blights and curses established, and this one will doubtless take its place with its kind, to be told over with wise waggings of ancient heads in the twilight hours.

Of course there is no necessity at all for dragging in the supernatural or even the mystical to explain what has happened. Old men will die, whether they like the companionship of statesmen of the Lorimer stamp or not, and manifestations of such liking are so apt to be only one of many similar challenges of the public that they can hardly be alone in determining political fortunes of any Senator.

Not all of us, however, prefer simple and comprehensible explanations to those that are complex and incomprehensible. Therefore would it be unkind to treat the Lorimer legend with derision. If there isn't something in it there ought to be, some will say, and there is great comfort in the conviction that what ought to be, is. As has been often and well said, let those who would take away that consolation first put something in its place. The mere fact that a story isn't true is only one, and a not conclusive, reason for abandoning it. At least that's what lots of people think, and who shall say that they are all wrong?

Building Us Another Great Ship. A steamer of 54,000 tons is a floating island rather than a ship. At any rate the new liner ordered by the North German Lloyd Company will be a floating city, when its passengers and crew are all on board, and the difference between its size and that of the now greatest boats will itself equal the tonnage of what not many years ago would have been called a big vessel.

The evident belief that such a monster can pay its way and make profits for the owners besides shows to what magnitude the transatlantic traffic has attained, and of course the greater part of this movement is that of Americans going to Europe and back again. It is, at any rate, if the immigrants be counted as Americans in embryo, which most of them are.

The number of foreigners coming here as visitors, while large absolutely, is small comparatively, for we are but little skilled as yet in attracting tourists. There is more to see here, and better worth seeing, than the old-country folk realize, but we do not take the pains we might to advertise our scenic and other wonders, or to reveal that even as regards historic associations we are not so badly off as is commonly supposed.

There are not many European nations that are as old as this one, but they have the advantage of inheriting ruins and stories from their predecessors, while those whom we succeeded were lamentably inarticulate and unarchitectural. We have, that is, no history except our own history. Ours is really the better lot, but it is not picturesque or to the stranger thrilling. Where the "long house" of the Iroquois stood there is nothing to see, while the Roman forum is a spectacle of high rank—though just why it should fill the modern Italian with such pride could not be easily explained.

Baseball Perhaps Endangered. This year's first ball game, like the last one of last year, seems to have been notable chiefly as illustrative of a managerial desire to acquire the largest possible number of immediate dollars, regardless of the effect on the public mind and favor.

This looks like bad policy, even from, or especially from, the business point of view, but perhaps the popularity of baseball is so great and so firmly established that no exploitation, however ruthless, can destroy or even decrease it.

In that case, of course, there need be no compunctions about taking the immediate dollars, since the number of subsequent dollars will not be lessened. Yet it is a fact that this sort of wisdom did once "kill" baseball, and it had to be resuscitated by means of drastic reforms. That experience should not be forgotten.

THE RISKS OF WAR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Though Admiral Mahan in this morning's TIMES says "it is in some degree vexatious to have to repeat commonplaces in reply to commonplace blunderings," I hope you will allow this discussion to continue. I would not, of course, dream of arguing with the Admiral about naval strategy, even though unconvinced by his reasoning. But when he denies that the burden of proof is on him to show cause why "certain possible antagonists" require a great American navy to keep them at bay, I must continue to take issue with him.

Admiral Mahan says: "To justify my insuring my house against fire does not require any burden of proof that some one intends to attempt burning it." Of course a navy is one form of national insurance, but that is not the question. The question is whether or not we need the two extra battleships now. If so, why should the insurance rates go up when the risks are going down? The only risks we run of being defeated in war are from England, Germany, France and Japan. The other nations can be left entirely out of account. England, France and Germany are already on record in favoring unlimited arbitration treaties with us. Whenever our Senate is ready we can negotiate them. I speak advisedly when I say that Japan will likewise join the peace circle whenever the proper time comes. If any one doubts Japan's pacific intentions toward us, let me recall how last year—to cite the latest instance—she voluntarily consented to a modification of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance so that in case of war between the United States and Japan, England would not have to choose between breaking her proposed arbitration treaty with us or her alliance with Japan. Surely Japan would never have renounced England's aid if she had expected trouble with us.

When Admiral Mahan was a delegate at the first Hague Conference he cast the vote of the United States against the "Declaration" prohibiting the use of projectiles having as their sole object the diffusion of asphyxiating or deleterious gases, on the ground that "no shells emitting such gases were in practical use; consequently a vote taken now would be in ignorance of the facts," and he added, "it was illogical, and not demonstrably humane, to be tender about asphyxiating men with gas, when all were prepared to admit it was allowable to blow the bottom out of an ironclad at midnight, throwing four or five hundred men into the sea, to be choked, by water, with scarcely the remotest chance of escape."

A man who insists that the burden of proof be upon those who hold that asphyxiating shells should be prohibited from warfare, should at least have the burden of proof put upon him when he asks the American people in these days of high prices to tax themselves millions and millions of dollars to prevent such "remote" contingencies as being defeated in war by England, Germany, France or Japan. HAMILTON HOLT.

Ballots and Birth Rate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. Max G. Schlapp says: "The birth rate has been declining in every civilized country in the last thirty or forty years, until it is everywhere now at its lowest point."

Lady Stout, wife of the Chief Justice of New Zealand, stated not long ago, in an article in The Englishwoman, that the birth rate in New Zealand had steadily declined for thirteen years before woman suffrage was granted. After that the decline went on for a few years longer, but in 1890 it took a turn, and ever since then the birth rate has been steadily rising, till now it is higher than that of England and Wales. Lady Stout added that New Zealand's infant mortality was almost the lowest in the world. Clearly, equal suffrage does not lead to depopulation.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

Dorchester, Mass., April 11, 1912.

ANDREW SAKS'S WILL.

$25,000 for Charities to be Specified by His Wife.

The will of Andrew Saks, who died at Sherry's on April 8, was admitted yesterday in the Surrogate's Court for probate. The petition does not give the actual value of his estate but merely states that it is worth more than $10,000, all in personalty. Its estimated value is $2,000,000.

The will bequeaths $25,000 to charity. Mr. Saks did not designate in the will what institution he favored, but provided that these be named by his wife. The rest of his property is distributed as follows; to Jennie R. Saks, his wife, life estate and personal effects; to Leila S. Meyer, a daughter, $100,000 and a share in the remainder in the residuary estate; to William A. Saks, and Horace A. Saks, sons, equal shares in the remainder in the residuary estate; to Leonard C. Levey, Jr., a grandson, $10,000 and the income of and a share of the remainder in the residuary estate; and to Jane Meyer, a granddaughter, $10,000.

ELECT TWO NEW BISHOPS.

Revs. Biller for North Dakota and Page for New Mexico.

The Episcopal House of Bishops, in Synod Hall of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, yesterday morning elected the Rev. George Biller, Jr., formerly of New Jersey, as Bishop of South Dakota, and the Rev. Herman Page as Bishop of New Mexico.

The House of Bishops has been in session for two days, and the meeting to-day was the final one.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Since 1900 the Rev. Herman Page has been rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church here. He was formerly at Fall River, Mass., and prior to that had a charge at Wallace, Idaho. He was educated at Harvard University and the Cambridge Theological Seminary. He has a wife and one son.

M. C. Fleming a Princeton Trustee.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 12.—Matthew Corry Fleming, a lawyer, of New York City, has been chosen by the Princeton Alumni for membership on the Board of Trustees. Mr. Fleming was graduated from Princeton, President of his class, in 1886. In the last ten years he has served as Assistant Corporation Counsel of New York, Associate Counsel of the New York Gas Legislation Commission, and Associate Counsel of the Armstrong Insurance Legislative Committee of New York. He will succeed Andrew C. Imbrie, whose term expires in June.

MR. DIX ON CONSERVATION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have observed with pleasure that you have given the subject of conservation considerable space in the news columns of your paper, and I want to thank you for the cordial support you have given this great question.

It has been my aim to devise a plan whereby the undeveloped water powers of the State could be utilized to the immediate and lasting benefit of the people, and in my judgment the Conservation bill introduced by Senator Bayne provides a plan better suited to the accomplishment of this subject than any other measure yet presented.

This is a great economic question, and should be considered from the standpoint of the public welfare rather than from that of partisanship, and I am confident that the adoption of a similar measure will be the ultimate result.

Coal will be a luxury in the next generation, and our State should recognize the great blessings that have been bestowed upon us in the form of a water power substitute, and begin at once its scientific development.

Our flooded rivers and streams at this season bring home most forcibly these possibilities, for were we now storing this surplus and destructive water it could be fed into the natural channels when the time of drought returns, and not only materially benefit the prosperity and happiness of the people, but be of untold advantage to the public health.

The treatment of the subject in your paper convinces me that you have studied this problem, and I take this occasion to thank you for the support you have given. JOHN A. DIX.

Albany, N. Y., April 10, 1912.

While approving its purpose of conserving and making available the great water powers of this State, THE TIMES was unable to support the Bayne bill in the form presented to the Legislature. But, as anybody can see, it is a question of the first consequence, and it deserves the most candid and painstaking study, followed by effective action. The Legislature at its next session should take up this question and try earnestly to solve it as one of prime economic importance to the State.—[Editor THE TIMES.

Deaths from Motor Cars.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article "Death Penalty for Speeding" must have aroused in many TIMES readers vigorous indorsement. Those who, day after day, read of the needless deaths and injuries caused by the wantonly criminal recklessness of automobile drivers welcome such a stand, and fervently hope it may help bring about drastic measures to curb this constant slaughter of the guiltless.

If we must condone the seemingly joyous butchering of persons in unprotected factories and dangerous employments by such shadows of reason as "the assumption of risk," let us at least try to protect pedestrians on the street, where such an ironical doctrine hardly applies in theory, but apparently does in practice.

HUBERT H. d'AUTREMONT.

Syndicalism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read your editorial article on "Syndicalism," of which I should like to express my humble approval. In this excellent article there is one paragraph which might well serve as a text for many useful articles, as follows:

> It assumes because profits on production cannot be had without labor, that labor creates all production and is entitled to all the profits resulting.

This assumption, which you justly characterize as monstrous, is the fundamental cause of the greatest danger which we to-day face and with which we are threatened.

The Times's College Section.

From The Fordham University Monthly.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has inaugurated in its Sunday edition a two-page section devoted exclusively to college news. A section of this kind is useful and interesting. To the alumnus, often too busy to peruse the contents of the official publication of his college, it furnishes a brief summary of current events of his Alma Mater. It has a broadening effect upon the undergraduate, making him familiar with events, methods, and conditions at other institutions of learning.

That Bachelor Tax.

Once with much talk of single tax
Our weary ears did tingle,
But topics new crop up and now
They'd tax the man that's single.

Oh, she was fair, that jilt, and time
Can ne'er from memory blot her!
But should I pay out cash because
The other fellow got her?

AMERICAN PAINTERS SHOW RICH CANVASES

The special exhibition of American painters at the Montross Galleries until April 20 is rich in quality. There is a Dewing which surpasses any yet shown by that master, if one is indeed justified in making futile comparisons between beautiful works of art. This is a "Lady Holding a Rose." She wears a garment of a green hue that manages to suggest forests in Spring. The blue table cover is as deep and varied in tone as a lake reflecting the sky. That is the way Mr. Dewing paints color, so that you do not merely think of the special object or fabric that has served him for a model, but of other things, too, more mysterious and exquisite. His ladies are always of a peculiar charm, and this one has a greater charm than many of her wonderful sisters, but the painter has made her share it with all womankind. She might be an Empress, she might be a pretty American girl, she might be a little model posing in a dusky corner with some one else's cloak about her thin shoulders; but since she sat in that stiff little pose, where the shadow and light fell just that way, and was seen by eyes that drew from her commonplace all rare suggestion, her picture expresses the potential beauty of all womanhood. Mr. Dewing's gift is one that will make his pictures intensely desired by the collector of the future who cares only for the winnowed art of past centuries.

The name of Dwight W. Tryon is often associated with Mr. Dewing's, and in the present exhibition his "Marshes in Autumn," with their cold color and horizontal lines, is a worthy companion for the lady and the rose, and "Autumn: Twilight" shows a beautifully constructed sky, deep and atmospheric, with a lovely upward march of color.

Two pictures by Horatio Walker display the two poles of his talent. His "Milking: Evening" has the hue of nature seen through colored glass, which mars so many of the products of his brush and tends to nullify the admirable effect of the highly original composition. "Moonrise: Winter," on the other hand, is full of cool and restful color adequately varied and free from the taint of prettiness.

"The Sphinx," by Charles A. Winter, is at once mid-Victorian and pre-Raphaelite, professing a creed outworn, but careful and charming in its way. J. Francis Murphy shows two landscapes, neither of them in the highest rank. W. L. Lathrop's color and brushwork tend toward lifelessness, but his observation is frank, and his "Summer Afternoon" is unusually fine in both color and execution. Henry C. White shows a murky little "November," strong in emotional suggestion. Elliott Daingerfield's "Christ Stilling the Tempest" enters the region of melodrama by virtue of the curious repetition of form in the figure of the Christ and the rag of drapery blown from the mast. Edward A. Bell's "Japanese Screen" keeps the subsidiary attributes discreetly in the background and gives the figure its due importance. Alexander Schilling is represented by three landscapes, agreeable in color, but without close discrimination of planes.

Paintings by Richard E. Miller.

At the Macbeth Galleries is an exhibition of Richard E. Miller's work which amply justifies the growing appreciation of that painter's art. Born in 1875, he is already a man of many honors. His pictures hang in the Luxembourg, in various Italian galleries and in the private collection of the King of Italy, in the Royal Museum at Christiania, and one hangs in the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington. He has received medals at the Salon, at Buffalo, at St. Louis, and at Philadelphia, and with all this there is not a tinge of the academic in his beautiful work. He is not even very closely bound by the new convention of direct paintings and unglazed surfaces, certain pictures seeming to show the quality of paint dragged over paint for subtle purposes. In the main, however, it is direct painting, and the degree of brilliancy and air achieved is remarkable. One asks, of course, if the brilliancy will hold, and time will give the answer at leisure.

In the meantime, we may enjoy Mr. Miller's admirable expression of the warm, rich sunlight of Summer, with its intensification of color, in such pictures as "Tea in the Garden," "Summer Reverie," &c., and his fine grasp of the spirit of the place in such pictures as the "Interior of the Living Room," "The Boudoir," and "The Chinese Statuette." However abstract his intention, no artist can help expressing the measure and quality of his interest in humanity and human belongings, and Mr. Miller's sympathies are expressed without concession to associative character.

PLANS FOR FAIRER CITY.

Associations Getting Together to Confine Business and Tall Buildings.

A concerted City Planning movement by private citizens in addition to Borough President McAneny's recently appointed Commission, is being organized by the Fifth Avenue Association, the Wholesale Drygoods Merchants' Association and various civic bodies of the city.

One purpose is to stop "the erection of tall, unsightly buildings for the benefit of the few and the detriment of the many." Another purpose is, is to stop the "useless and reckless shifting of trade centres" which is going on in this city at the present time.

The movement will probably be launched at a meeting to be held on or about May 1, at which a city Ordinance Committee will probably be appointed to draw whatever ordinances are required to attain the object.

Mr. V. Sidney Rothschild, Secretary of the Wholesale Drygoods Merchants' Association, who is one of the organizers, said yesterday that Paris, Berlin and other European cities did not have unsightly buildings which were a detriment to their localities, ordinances preventing them.

"The useless shifting and changing of important trade localities that has been going on in the city for the last five years has entailed a great loss of capital, both to property-owners and to the city itself," said Mr. Rothschild. "The city has spent vast sums of money in wharves, freight and transit facilities, station re-arrangements and street re-arrangements. Whenever a trade locality is moved a duplication of these accommodations is involved and the real estate values of the section are turned upside down. The result of these reckless and impulsive trade centre movements are very far-reaching.

"The wholesalers coming up drive the big retailers further uptown, plants have to be abandoned, the artistic residence of the land-owner has to be altered for business, and he probably moves further uptown, too, or into the suburbs; on the one hand you have abandoned districts, on the other congested ones.

"Almost every district in the city to-day has its association like the Fifth Avenue Association, the Central Mercantile Association, the Seventh Avenue Association, the Wholesale Drygoods Center Association, etc. A committee from each of these working together with a committee of public-spirited, capable citizens composed of real estate men, architects, City Government representatives, merchants and warehousemen, insurance men and manufacturers could doubtless bring about a better condition all around by studying the subject."

CLARA BARTON DEAD IN HER 90TH YEAR

HER BATTLEFIELD CAREER

Nursed Wounded Soldiers of Civil, Franco-Prussian, and Spanish Wars—Honored by Foreign Rulers.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Miss Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross Society, died at her home in Glen Echo, Md., at 9 o'clock this morning. The cause of her death was chronic pneumonia. Her brother, Stephen Barton of Boston, was with her when she died.

Miss Barton had been confined to her home, Red Cross, at Glen Echo, since last Fall, when she returned from a visit to New England. It was thought her trip was beneficial, but soon afterward she was taken seriously ill. She celebrated her ninetieth birthday anniversary Dec. 25, when she received many messages of congratulation from all parts of the world.

Clara Barton was President for twenty-three years of the Red Cross Society, which was established in this country through her efforts. She retired in May, 1904, on account of factional quarrels within the organization. But long before the society was founded she had become famous for her work on battlefields in the civil war and in the Franco-Prussian war.

She was born in North Oxford, Mass., on Christmas Day, 1821. She began teaching school at sixteen. In 1853 she visited relatives at Washington, D. C., and was persuaded to take charge of a division of the Patent Office, whose work had been disorganized by the continual betrayal of secret information regarding patents. Miss Barton's executive ability was first notably displayed here. In a short time she had transformed her department into a model of efficiency and discretion. During Buchanan's Administration she was discharged because of her strong Republican leanings, but in a short time it was found necessary to recall her, in spite of her politics.

Miss Barton was in Washington when the first blood of the war was shed. The soldiers killed and injured in the Baltimore riot were from her own State, belonging to the Sixth Massachusetts. Her great career as a nurse began when she saw forty of the soldiers, wounded at Baltimore, taken to the infirmary in Washington. After visiting them and giving what aid she could, she distributed thousands of baskets of food for the soldiers and a hungry crowd which had invaded Washington without provisions.

During the Peninsula campaign, she made daily trips down the river, leaving Washington in a boat carrying a cargo of provisions and returning with a load of wounded men, for whom she cared at her own expense. She wrote letters home for the wounded under her charge, and was entrusted with thousands of gifts for soldiers from their friends in the States. When the regiments were ordered to different sections of the country it became impossible to locate all the soldiers to whom packages were addressed, but with the co-operation of army officers Clara Barton maintained a parcels post service throughout the war.

Her father died in 1861, leaving her an ample fortune. On his death bed they discussed her plan of going to the front and attending soldiers on the battlefield. Her father said: "Go, if you feel it your duty to go. I know what soldiers are, and I know that every soldier will respect your errand."

She had difficulty in getting a hearing from officers to whom she first applied for a pass beyond the army lines. Her mission was repeatedly discouraged. She finally met a friend in Assistant Quartermaster General Rucker, who gave her means of transportation and the freedom to go to the relief of soldiers in battle whenever she wished. She spent large sums on a train of army wagons loaded with provisions and medical supplies. At the battle of Antietam her supplies were used by the whole army, the regular supplies being three days delayed.

Before the war ended she was appointed Superintendent of the Tenth Army Corps Hospital, near City Point. Shortly before he was assassinated, President Lincoln appointed her to trace captured Union troops who were missing after prisoners of war had been exchanged. Of the 1,300 graves of soldiers who died at Andersonville Prison, she was able to identify all except 400. There was no appropriation at the time for this work, and Miss Barton later declined to accept reimbursement when Congress voted it for her.

In 1869 she went to Europe to rest. While she was at Berne she was called upon by representatives of the International Committee of Relief, who asked her to take part in their convention. This convention led to the organization of the International Red Cross Society. While she was in Europe the Franco-Prussian war broke out, and at the request of Dr. Appia she went to the front and served as she had done during the civil war. She took part in the relief work at Strassburg, Belfort, Montpelier, and during the siege of Paris. The Emperor and Empress of Germany presented her with the Cross of Merit. The Grand Duke and Duchess of Baden gave her a Red Cross brooch, the Gold Cross of Remembrance, and the colors of Baden.

When Clara Barton came home in 1873 she set about persuading this Government to sign the International treaty guaranteeing protection and exemption from capture to those who go on the battlefield to take care of the sick and wounded. The matter was delayed till the term of President Garfield, who favored the treaty. He was assassinated before he signed it, but this was done shortly after by President Arthur.

In 1877 a few men and women at Washington had formed an American National Committee of the Red Cross. Under President Garfield it reorganized and was incorporated under the title of the American Association of the Red Cross. Miss Barton was appointed President by President Garfield. At her suggestion the work of the society was broadened to include, in addition to work on the battlefield, the object of relieving suffering in times of great National calamity. In 1893 Miss Barton organized a relief corps which was sent to Russia to the relief of peasants during the famine of that year. In 1898 she headed a party which went to Armenia after the Armenian massacre.

During the Spanish-American war Miss Barton, who was then nearly eighty years of age, went to Cuba and directed the work of the society on the field. For years she had borne a large share of the expenses of the organization. In 1903, when changes in the by-laws were proposed, placing more power in her hands, one faction of the society revolted, and in May of the following year she resigned.

THE LATE CLARA BARTON.

Founder of the American Red Cross Society.

MISS QUACKENBUSH WEDS.

Married to Herbert C. Bertine by the Rev. Dr. H. S. Coffin.

The wedding of Miss Esther Anna Quackenbush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Suydam Quackenbush, to Herbert Cable Bertine, took place last evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the church.

The bride wore a gown of white charmeuse embroidered with pearls and trimmed with duchesse and rose point lace and with a court train elaborately embroidered with pearls. Her lace veil was caught up with a chaplet of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. A diamond pendant, the gift of the bridegroom, was the only ornament she wore.

Miss Adrai Quackenbush attended her sister as maid of honor and wore a green charmeuse gown with a coronation train festooned with daisies and veiled with white embroidered net. She carried a shower bouquet of white daisies. The bridesmaids were the Misses Isabel Quackenbush, another sister; Louise Pulling of South Orange, Jane Ball of New Haven, and Vesta Freeman and Myrtle Guggenheim. They wore green chiffon over white satin with court trains festooned with daisies and carried yellow daisies.

Edward S. Bennett served as best man, and the ushers were John McWilliam, Harold Baker, Charles Saulpaugh, George E. Kellogg, Claude E. Ritch, and Dr. Albert Jinenis.

After the church ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 8 East Ninety-fourth Street. Later the couple left for the South, where they will spend some time, and will reside in this city upon their return.

DINNER FOR BRIDAL PARTY.

Mrs. H. L. Roosevelt Entertains for Her Niece, Miss Hester Davis.

Mrs. Hilborne L. Roosevelt gave a dinner last evening, followed by informal dancing, for her niece, Miss Hester L. Davis; the latter's fiancé, Lawrence Howe, and their bridal party, following the wedding rehearsal in the Church of the Incarnation, where the ceremony will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The guests included, besides Miss Davis and Mr. Howe, the Misses Ruth Gardiner Davis and Sybil Davis, Anna Cronkite, Dorothy Hurry, Dorothy Bull, Rosette Ford, Miss Shippen, Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Geer, Mr. Howe's best man, Howland S. Davis, and the ushers, Hatherly Foster, Jr., Stanley Howe of Boston, William Shippen Davis, William McM. Rutter, Raymond Ives, and Morton Newhall of Philadelphia, and William Bramhall of Boston and Arkley King.

A few additional guests, immediate relatives from out of town and in town, came in after the dinner for the dancing, which stopped at an early hour.

To-day's ceremony will be performed by the Very Rev. William M. Grosvenor, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, assisted by the Rev. William Olmstead of the Pomfret School, and a small reception will be held at the Davis residence, 204 Madison Avenue.

Two Fraternities Give Dances.

The Sigma Nu Society gave a large dance and supper last night at the St. Regis. The marble ballroom and adjoining suits, which were used for the affair, were decorated with flags, palms, and cut flowers. The guests were asked for 10 o'clock. A seated supper was served at midnight in the oak dining room at small tables for two hundred covers.

Emanu-El Sisterhood Benefit.

Seats for the Emanu-El Sisterhood benefit at the Winter Garden on Monday evening are nearly all sold. The few remaining may be had from Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, at the Hotel St. Regis. Mrs. Sidney Borg's group of débutantes will sell candy and flowers. Miss Greta Wiesenthal, the German dancer, will make her first American appearance at this performance, and an orchestra of gypsy women will play.

Mr. and Mrs. Mannes in Concert.

Mr. and Mrs. David Mannes gave the first of a series of sonata concerts yesterday afternoon in Rumford Hall. They have completed their evening series of chamber concerts at the Belasco Theatre, and these afternoon concerts are given in addition to those. Yesterday the programme contained nothing novel. It began with Grieg's F major sonata and ended with Mozart's D major sonata. Between these came shorter pieces by Debussy, Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Walker Whiteside will move his production of "The Typhoon" from the Fulton Theatre to the Hudson Theatre on April 22, to continue his New York engagement indefinitely.

Oland and Burt's production of "The Father" will be continued at the Berkeley Theatre, and arrangements are under way to secure all of the open time at that house until June 1 for the production of a series of Strindberg dramas.

Rehearsals of "The Drums of Oude," the second of the one-act plays that David Belasco is producing for vaudeville, by arrangement with Martin Beck, will begin at the Republic Theatre on Monday morning. The company will include E. J. Radcliffe, Jack Standing, Harry Rose, John Hobson, William Phillips, and Eleanore L. Estelle. The piece is by Austin Strong, and is a drama of the Sepoy mutiny of 1857.

Al Jolson yesterday signed a long-time contract with the Shuberts to appear under their management. It is planned to star him in a new musical comedy by Harold Attridge and Louis A. Hirsch next season at the conclusion of his Winter Garden engagement. The contract requires that Mr. Jolson will not appear in vaudeville either in this country or in England.

Mrs. Leslie Carter will conclude her season in Rupert Hughes's drama, "Two Women," under the direction of John Cort at South Bend, Ind., on May 4.

BENEFIT FOR GUSTAV AMBERG

Testimonial Planned for Manager of Irving Place German Theatre.

The Shuberts are arranging a performance to be given early next month at one of their theatres for the benefit of Gustav Amberg, who has been operating the Irving Place German Theatre for the last two seasons. Mr. Amberg has been active in German and English theatrical life in this country for the last thirty years, and the benefit is to be of the nature of a testimonial to his work. He established the German theatre in New York and was director of the Irving Place house for some time before the coming of Heinrich Conried. He has never before taken a benefit, although such is common among the German managers and actors.

During his many years in business Mr. Amberg has brought to this country a long list of famous stars. He managed the three American tours of Herr von Possart, and also obtained many foreign plays for American production.

Among those who volunteered to take part in the benefit are George M. Cohan, Grete Wiesenthal, Weber and Fields, Eddie Foy, Al Jolson, Stella Mayhew, Billee Taylor, Melville Ellis, the Courteny sisters, Jose Collins, Martin Brown, Moon and Morris, the Viennese Orchestra, and Dole Dainert.

"Texas Tommy" Dancers Appear.

The "Texas Tommy" dancers from San Francisco made their first appearance at the Winter Garden last night, in the second scene of "Whirl of Society," and introduced to New York a new and energetic style of dancing. The audiences showed an unmistakable liking for the free, vigorous actions of the dancers, and for the novelty of the steps. There are eight of them, divided into four couples, each couple with its individual variations of a sort of syncopated two-step that seems to have limitless possibilities. Last night they were dressed in cowboy and cowgirl costumes, and carried revolvers, with which they punctuated the dancing. The finish of their number was a whirlwind ensemble in which all took part.

Mme. Nordica Seeks Lost Collie.

A negro who said he was employed by George W. Young of 8 West Ninth Street reported at the Mercer Street Police Station last night that a collie dog belonging to Mme. Nordica, and a great favorite of hers, had wandered away from him while he had it in Washington Square early in the evening. He said the dog wore a collar with the name "Gyp." and the address "George W. Young, Oakwood Hall, Deal, N. J.," on it.

William A. Lathrop.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—William A. Lathrop, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, died from appendicitis at the City Hospital, Wilkesbarre, early this morning. Mr. Lathrop had been ill several weeks. He was operated on April 2. For a time it was believed he would recover, but early this week he began to sink. Mr. Lathrop, who was 61 years old, is survived by a widow and a daughter. Mr. Lathrop was elected to the Presidency of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, which has its offices here, on Feb. 26, 1907. Before his election he was connected with the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, and was President of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company.

Fred Bailey, Vaudeville Actor, Dead.

Frederick H. Bailey of the vaudeville team of Bailey and Austin, died at his home in Freeport, L. I., yesterday. Mr. Bailey was born in New York City thirty-eight years ago and made his first appearance on the stage when very young. He was with the "Top o' the World" company for a long time, and he and Ralph Austin had been team ates for years. Mr. Bailey was taken ill in December last while playing in the West. He was a member of the White Rats, the Comedy Club, and New York Lodge of Elks No. 1. He is survived by a widow and son.

Dean Walter E. Howard.

Dean Walter E. Howard of Middlebury College, died yesterday at Middlebury, Vt. He was born at Tumbridge, Vt., in 1849. For a number of years he practiced law at Milwaukee. He served terms as United States Consul at Toronto, Ontario, and at Cardiff, Wales. In 1889 he became professor of history and political science at Middlebury College, and in 1908 was made its first dean. In 1882 he was a member of the Vermont State Senate. For a number of years Dean Howard was a member of the Vermont State Board of Education.

VERSAILLES GARDENS SET FOR HER GUESTS

ALL OF LOUIS XV. PERIOD

Dancer, as Marie Antoinette, Performs Minuet—Marble Hall Decorated with Portraits and Arms.

One of the most picturesque and novel affairs of the season was given last night at Sherry's, where Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker was hostess at a dinner and dance. The entire second floor of the restaurant was transformed into a model of the palace and gardens of Versailles, and the guests, numbering 100, sat down at dinner in a wonderful garden, illumined by moonlight.

Many weeks were spent in preparation of the decoration and scenic effects. The result, as viewed last night, was a striking picture of the gardens of Versailles as originally planned by Le Notre, and the marble hall of the palace was also duplicated with the most exacting and complete detail.

The entertainment arranged for the guests was also in keeping with the period of Louis XV., and a dancer attired as Marie Antoinette, with half a dozen children in Louis XV. costumes did the stately minuet in the centre of the garden during the dinner. Pierrots and Pierrettes also gamboled on the green, singing and dancing, and there were also Russian dances.

Mrs. Wanamaker had planned the decorative part of the dinner as a surprise for Mr. Wanamaker, as well as for her guests, and when the scene was revealed there was much surprise and appreciation evinced.

The guests, as they arrived, passed from the corridor on the second floor into the marble hall, which was hung with wonderful tapestries and decorated with the arms of crusaders, Kings, Princes, and lords, and mirrors reflecting portraits and furniture of the empire period.

At 9 o'clock the guests passed into the garden. The large ballroom had been in the hands of the scenic painter for days, and the scene revealed showed the terraces, broad walks, statuary, hundreds of blooming plants, a splashing electric fountain, the water playing over many colors, while above a star-studded sky was dimmed by an electric moon.

There were four tables arranged in the garden, twenty-five being seated at each table, which were arranged in crescent fashion, facing the central walk, and in front of each was a garden, representing the four seasons, Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter. The tables were banked with hundreds of orchids, mingled with hydrangeas, azaleas, and shrubbery.

One side of the palace was shown, with practical windows and draperies, and to the west the broad alley extended to a background of hedges and trees. Here and there were ornamental basins, statues, and stone benches, and sixty waiters, in black breeches, cream-colored coats, with touches of gold braid, and powdered wigs, were in attendance.

The wind, made by electric fans, swayed the branches of the trees and shrubbery, and this, together with the cool effect of the moonlight, with the splash of colored waters in the large basin of Apollo, turned the place, as by magic, into the Old World setting by night.

After the Pierrots and Pierrettes had sung and danced along the alleys end grass covered triangles, the Marie Antoinette dancer appeared in a sedan chair, carried by guards of the Empire period in brilliant uniforms, and followed by the children. Then, to the soft melody of string music, the minuet was danced to the delight of the beholders. After this came the Russian dancers in costume.

Later the guests walked through the garden, by the basin of Enceladus, the King's shrubbery, which was laid out in English style by Louis Philippe, and along the "Tapis Vert," to the north of which in the original gardens stand twenty-two groups of children, each group holding a marble basin, from which a jet of water rises.

There was general dancing later in the marble room.

MADE BRICK TRUST SHERMAN LAW PROOF

IT WAS A LOVE FEAST, TOO

Some Evidence About "Riding" or Any Dealer Helping Himself to Another's Barge Load.

The Greater New York Brick Company, which is being investigated by Assistant District Attorney Ellison, was organized so as to be "Sherman law and Donnelly law proof." That, at any rate, is what some of the New York brick dealers, at yesterday's hearing before Magistrate Freschi, credited State Senator John B. Rose, President of the company, with asserting at a meeting July 7, 1911, to which the dealers had been invited by the Senator.

Yesterday's hearing, the seventh of the series, was held in the District Attorney's library, for lack of a vacant court room. The meeting at which Senator Rose is said to have dissertated on anti-trust laws is the same as that which other dealers who have testified at the investigation have called a love feast and which still others have denounced as the beginning of a conspiracy to put the brick dealers of New York City out of business by eliminating them as middlemen. Ten witnesses testified at the hearing, and most of them, particularly the dealers, were bitter against the Greater New York Brick Company.

On the other hand, the testimony revealed a peculiar practice which has been common among brick dealers for the last ten years. In brick-yard colloquialism this practice is called "accommodation riding." A, for instance buys a carload of brick from a Hudson River brick manufacturer, or, what is more likely, through a commission man or through a salesman of the Greater New York Brick Company, and has it sent to the foot of West Fiftieth Street. The brick belongs to A, of course, to do with what he pleases. But, it so happens that B and C and half a dozen other dealers have contracts to sell brick to contractors who are putting up buildings in the neighborhood of Fiftieth Street.

These "rival" dealers, according to the practice of "accommodation riding," send their trucks to A's barge-load of bricks and take off as many brick as they need. They hand the Captain of the barge a slip containing the number taken and ride away. If there happens to be not enough left for A himself, it is unfortunate, of course, but he can await his turn and "ride" from one of his competitors when that competitor's barge of brick comes in. The brick are paid for at the market rate. If the price is high, no one rides. If the price is low, every one rides.

One "Rider" Stopped.

A dealer named Grahame Murtha, who said that he had been "riding" at liberty for the last ten years of his twenty-three years in the brick business, it appears from yesterday's testimony, was "riding" from a barge which had been sent to another New York dealer through the Greater New York Brick Company. Murtha's truck was dumping the brick on a job which Senator Rose had reason to believe was in the hands of a New Jersey dealer. Murtha and the New Jersey dealer, it appears, were on friendly terms, but Senator Rose's friendship didn't extend across the river, and one day Murtha's truckmen were refused permission to ride more brick from that particular barge and for that particular job. That angered Murtha, and he was compelled to quit supplying Hudson River brick as an accommodation to the New Jersey dealer, who, it happened, was supplying the main allotment of brick for the job from his own brick yard in New Jersey.

"Senator Rose doesn't like to see brick come into the New York market from New Jersey," said Mr. Murtha. "Last Winter when the ice was so thick that the New Jersey manufacturers couldn't bring any across the river it made him glad."

There is only one Hudson River company, outside of the companies which are members of the Greater New York Brick Company, said Mr. Murtha, of whom he would be able to purchase brick. But that company's total output is thirty million brick a year, and Mr. Murtha said that he used as many as forty million himself.

P. J. Heaney, another dealer, when asked what Senator Rose had said at the memorable meeting on July 7 concerning the New Jersey situation, said:

"Senator Rose said he had the Jersey situation in hand. He said he could handle everything in Jersey with the possible exception of one concern, and that concern, he said, wouldn't interfere much."

Mr. Heaney also stated that the Greater New York Brick Company had placed a limit on the credit of each company. He admitted that the company had his notes for $20,000 and that the company had asked for cash when no settlement was due.

Mr. Heaney defined the "normal market in brick" as a price for brick of less than $6.50. If the price is below that figure, he said, New Jersey brick cannot compete in the New York market.

Rose Would Waive Immunity.

John Philbrick, a dealer who sells 55,000,000 brick annually, said that it was he who had restricted Mr. Murtha from "riding" from his barge. He explained that he did so because he had bought the brick at a bargain price and "didn't want to let any one in on it." At this point Mr. Ellison asked him whether he was not connected with the Greater New York Brick Company. Mr. Philbrick said that he was not, but he said he thought he was a Director of a company which purchased its brick from this company.

"What is the name of that company?" was asked.

"It starts with Atlas, but I'll have to ask one of my friends in court for the rest of the name. May I?"

"Certainly," Magistrate Freschi responded.

"All right; then I'll ask Senator Rose."

The Senator was sitting directly in front of the witness and was just leaning over to help Mr. Philbrick out of a difficulty when the District Attorney interrupted.

"Oh, no, not Senator Rose!" he shouted. "I don't want him on the record."

"I'll waive immunity," interjected the Senator.

"That's a very ticklish subject," retorted Mr. Ellison.

"Well," said Magistrate Freschi, "you may whisper it to him, Senator Rose, and then there'll be no question about it."

The Senator then whispered. It was the Atlas Building Material Company that was meant, and Senator Rose as well as Mr. Philbrick is a stockholder in this company.

John Peck, Manager of the Garner Brick Company of Haverstraw and a Director of the Greater New York Brick Company, said that the Greater New York Brick Company was organized to offset the "unrighteous treatment at the hands of dealers and commission men in New York City." He said that the plans for limiting the output of brick had been discussed only once and then only "informally."

The hearings will be continued next Tuesday at 4 P. M. De Witt Warner, representing the contractor who drew up the complaint against the brick company, said yesterday that the investigation would in all likelihood come to an end next week. Magistrate Freschi will then decide whether or not to issue warrants.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Women's Cotton and Metal Bags Pay High Duty—Other Decisions.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday denied contentions raised by Samstag & Hilder Brothers and A. H. Ringk & Co. in protest affecting the classification of women's bags composed of metal and cotton and ornamented with glass beads. The protests arise under the Tariff Act of 1897, and duty was taken at the rate of 60 per cent. on the value of the goods under Paragraph 408 of that act. The importers claimed that the merchandise should be allowed to enter at 45 per cent. as being in chief value of metal. This claim is denied by Judge Sharretts, who maintains that the classification as imposed is correct and must stand.

In sustaining a protest by Messrs. Hunken, Beale & Forbes, the board reduces the duty on certain hat pins for women's use from 60 per cent. ad valorem to 45 per cent. under the glass schedule. It appears that the pins have heads of imitation jet, glass, or paste. The board holds that all of the goods were erroneously classified, and must be allowed to enter at either 45 per cent. or at other rates lower than those assessed. The protests are all sustained and the Collector directed to make a reliquidation of the entries.

J. & H. Rosenberg objected to the Government's classification of women's combs manufactured from pyroxylin. The combs are mounted with imitation jet ornaments made from metal and cut glass, cut glass being the component material of chief value. Duty was assessed at 60 per cent. ad valorem under the provision for cut glass in the Tariff Act of 1897, at 60 per cent., whereas the importer claims the merchandise dutiable at 45 per cent., either as manufactures of glass or metal. Judge Sharretts holds that the contention is well taken and must be sustained. The Collector is reversed.

MEXICAN RUBBER COMING.

Operations Interrupted by Fighting Resumed at Torreon.

Advices from Torreon, Mexico, received in the New York crude rubber market yesterday, state that operations in preparing guayule rubber for shipment have been resumed there after an interruption of several weeks, caused by fighting in that vicinity. Receipts of guayule rubber in the local market have been light for some time, and its place has been taken to a considerable extent for commercial purposes by the lower and medium qualities of African rubber. Guayule rubber is used largely in the manufacture of boots, overshoes, and similar articles, and the news that increased shipments will begin shortly was well received in the local market.

There has been practically no change in the condition of the water in the upper reaches of the Amazon, and shipments of up-river rubber into the Manaos, Brazil, market continue very light. Stocks in the districts along the upper river are piling up, and when the water rises to a point high enough to permit the moving of this accumulation into Manaos, a sharp decline in the price of up-river fine is expected. This quality is now quoted around $1.16 per pound in the New York market.

Trading in the local market is dull, and prices showed a slight general decline yesterday. In view of the auction to be held in London, April 16, at which close to 730 tons of Ceylon rubber will be offered, it is expected that quotations will stiffen some during the next few days.

LOWER FREIGHT ON WOOL.

Commerce Commission Makes 15 Per Cent. Reduction in Rates.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Radical reductions in freight rates on wool, both in sacks and in bales, transported from western points of origin to eastern destinations, were prescribed to-day by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission held that existing rates on wool were unreasonably high; that the blanket system of making those rates should be broken up and graded rates established; that the rates on wool in bales should be lower by about fifteen per cent. than those on wool in sacks, and that there should be a readjustment of the classification of wool to the distinct advantage of the shippers.

The carriers will be expected to conform to the commission's suggestions by May 1. If, by that date, they have not established rates in substantial accord with those determined by the commission to be reasonable, a definite order will be issued.

SILK CONDITIONING REPORT.

Officers of United States Testing Company Are Elected.

At the annual meeting of the United States Conditioning and Testing Company yesterday, at the office of the company, 340 Hudson Street, these officers were elected: President, H. D. Klots; Vice-President, R. von Briesen; Treasurer, E. J. Stehli, and Secretary, Ramsay Peugnet. G. A. Post, H. D. Cheney, Carl Schoen, E. J. Stehli, and H. G. Klots were elected to the Executive Committee. The new Board of Directors includes William Skinner, E. J. Stehli, G. A. Post, M. D. Whitman, and Dr. August Hunziker.

The report shows that in 1911 19,021 bales of raw silk, aggregating 2,301,120 pounds, were conditioned, placing the company fourth in the list of silk conditioning houses of the world. The Milan conditioning house heads the list with 16,385,288 pounds, followed by the Lyons house with 10,952,556, and the Zurich house with 3,218,283 pounds.

FEW EMBROIDERY IMPORTS.

Decrease in March Due to a Decline in the Trade.

Imports of embroideries from St. Gall, Switzerland, entered at the Port of New York in March aggregated $872,248, a falling off of $192,489 compared with the imports of the same period in 1911, according to figures given out yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics of the New York Customs House. The extent of the decline caused some surprise in local embroidery circles, although a falling off in the amount of business done in these lines this season made it evident that there would be a decrease in import totals.

"There are a number of reasons to be given for the decline," said a prominent manufacturer and importer yesterday. "In the first place, the demand for embroideries on the part of retailers and cutters-up is considerably less at this time than it was a year ago. On the other hand, the demand for them is growing rapidly in the leading countries of Europe. A year or two ago the demand of European women for embroideries for street wear was nominal, but now a large part of the St. Gall production is used to fill their requirements. Then the fact that the number of domestic machines in operation is increasing must be considered. To-day there are about 1,200 working in various parts of the country, and their output furnishes a good part of the needs of American women.

"Although the records show a sharp decline in the embroidery imports in March, the strength of the St. Gall market is not affected. On the contrary, that market is very strong at the present time."

234 Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 234 business failures in the United States during the week against 261 for the previous week and 233, 207, 201, and 261 for the corresponding weeks of 1911 to 1908. The Middle States had 75, New England 28, Southern 55, Western 35, Northwestern 20, Far Western 21. Canada had 22 against 23 for the preceding week. About 85 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 9 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

RICE CROP WILL BE LATE.

Conditions in South Reported to be Very Bad.

Next season's crop of Texas, Arkansas, and Louisiana rice will be anywhere from thirty to ninety days late, according to a statement made yesterday by L. C. Naisawald of L. C. Naisawald & Co., 102 Wall Street. Mr. Naisawald has just returned from an extended trip through the rice belt in those States, and reports general conditions very bad. Continued rains in that section of the country have materially interfered with operations on the new season's crop, and consequently it will be much later than usual this year.

Stocks of the present season's rice in the storage centres of the three States on April 1 approximated 1,000,000 pockets, which is far below normal. The scarcity is due to a great extent to exportation of about 500,000 bags, the largest amount exported in the last nine years. European buyers are still in the market, for conditions on the other side point to a limited crop this year.

The American markets are strong, and prices are slowly advancing. Indications are that the new season will open with the present crop pretty well cleand up.

WHEAT PRICES ADVANCE.

Damage to Soft Winter Crop Causes Chicago Grain Pit to Jump.

CHICAGO, April 12.—Wheat prices to-day advanced in a manner which attracted wide attention. The cause was the fact that damage to the soft Winter crop appeared to have reached nearly the proportions of a disaster.

Many millers here from interior points bought cash wheat freely, and confirmed reports that hundreds of fields which were expected to produce a fine harvest would have to be plowed under and utilized so far as possible in some other way. The injury, though vast, was said to be confined chiefly to States east of the Missouri River.

July wheat, which closed last night at 100 to 101, sold to-day up to 105, a net rise of 2 to 2⅛. The rise was the more remarkable owing to a previous straight-away advance of 6⅛ cents.

RECORD PRICE FOR CATTLE.

Denver Reports Highest Level in Ten Years—All Chicago Prices Up.

Advices from Denver and Chicago received by a prominent New York wholesale butcher yesterday, state that with the advances of the last few days the price of beef on the hoof in those markets has reached the highest level in the last ten years. Prices in the Denver yards are around $7.50 a hundred for steers, and $6.50 a hundred for cows and heifers. Prices in the Chicago stock yards range from 10 to 25 cents a hundred higher, and further advances are predicted. Local wholesalers have raised prices $1 a hundred in selling to retailers, and retailers in turn are boosting prices to the consumer.

The reasons for the advance are said to be the depleting of corn-fed herds, the expense of feeding corn to the existing herds, the recent heavy rains and floods in the West, and unfavorable climatic conditions. There is usually an advance at this time of the year, because it marks the end of the cornfed season and the beginning of the grassfed, but the present advance is the heaviest noted in years.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

EMANUEL DREIFUS & CO.—A petition has been filed here against Emanuel Dreifus and Company, dealers in scrap iron and steel in Philadelphia, as two of the partners reside in this city; Emanuel Dreifus, residing at the Belnord Apartments, Broadway and Eighty-sixth Street, and Henry P. Rees, residing at 39 Claremont Avenue. The other partner, Stanton L. Dreifus, resides in Philadelphia. The petitioning creditors are Joseph Joseph and Brothers Company, $13,298; Morton B. Smith Company, $1,203, and Alfred K. Barker, Inc., $241. Judge Mayer appointed William Blau receiver under a bond of $120,000. Mr. Blau said that the only asset in this city is an account due them of more than $300,000 by a construction company of this city. The liabilities are reported to be $550,000 and nominal assets, $780,000. Creevey and Rogers, attorneys of the firm here, said yesterday that an answer would be filed immediately and that theywould contest the petition.

BRAUNSTEIN & CARNIOL.—A petition has been filed against Isidor Braunstein and Nathan Carniol, composing the firm of Braunstein & Carniol, manufacturers of passementerie novelties at 454 Broadway, by these creditors: Universal Textile Company, $1,510; Jacob Blitzer as the Empire Braid Works, $69; and Isidor Daniel, $31. Judge Mayer appointed Alexander Wolf receiver, bond $2,500. The assets are estimated at $2,500.

THE WRIGHT PIANO COMPANY, manufacturer of pianos at 485 Greenwich Street, has been placed in the hands of a receiver in bankruptcy proceedings begun in New Jersey, as it is a New Jersey corporation, but all the assets are in this city. James D. Carpenter, Jr., of Jersey City, has been appointed receiver in both States. He gave a bond in New Jersey for $20,000. The assets here are estimated at $15,000 in pianos, tools, and materials, and the liabilities are said to be about $58,000.

DLUGATCH & KARASTOFF.—A petition has been filed against Abraham Dlugatch and Abraham Karastoff, who compose the firm of Dlugatch & Karastoff, manufacturers of cloaks at 106 Greene Street, by these creditors: L. Lasky & Son, $163; Isidor Rosen, $146, and Samuel Henigson, $213. The liabilities are $4,500 and the assets $1,000.

CHARLES W. MOFFATT, residing at Yonkers, who formerly had a general store at Stamford, N. Y., has filed a petition, with bilities of $23,182 and assets of $10,000. Among the creditors are the National Bank of Stamford, $7,050; Clark, Chapin & Bushnell, New York City, $2,127, and Oneonta Grocery Company, $1,400.

FREDERICK H. D. GRAHAM, theatrical agent, of 1,402 Broadway, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $1,634 and nominal assets of $1,881. There are five creditors: Frances G. Corcoran, $1,187; T. H. Ealand, Key West, $50; Austin J. Ruddy, $22; National Printing and Engraving Company, $225, and the Metropolitan Printing Company, $150.

UNIVERSITY SMOKE SHOPS COMPANY.—Judge Mayer has appointed Robert A. B. Cook of Wellesley, Mass., ancillary receiver here for the University Smoke Shops Company, which has an office in this city at 131 Duane Street, and store at Cambridge, Mass. He was appointed receiver in bankruptcy proceedings brought in Massachusetts, and has already taken possession of the assets at Cambridge, consisting of stocks and fixtures, $5,000, and accounts, $2,500.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of items referred to.

8,522. METAL CEILINGS—An American Consular officer in France reports that metal ceilings are unknown in his district, but that a prominent French architect desires to receive samples, free of charge.

8,523. HARDWOODS—A firm in Italy informs an American Consular officer that it desires to be placed in communication with American exporters of hardwoods with a view to purchase or represent them on that market. References furnished.

8,524. CEMENT AND TILE-MOLDING MACHINES—An American Consular agent in Mexico reports that on account of the installation of a new water and sewerage system in the city in which he is located, more attention will be given to roof drainage.

8,525. AXLE WASHERS—An American Consul in Canada transmitted to the Bureau of Manufactures the name of a firm in his district which desires to purchase vulcanized fibre axle washers.

8,526. SCRAP STEEL AND PIG IRON—A firm in Italy informs an American consular officer that it wishes to be placed in communication with American producers of pig iron and scrap steel rail cuttings, known in England as crop ends, with a view to representing them on that market.

8,527. SICKLE-MANUFACTURING MACHINERY—An American Consular officer in Russia forwarded the name of an American citizen who wishes to be placed in immediate communication with American firms capable of equipping a factory with machinery for the manufacture of a million sickles monthly.

8,528. HOUSEHOLD GOODS—A firm with offices in England and China, but incorporated in Sweden, expressed a desire through an American Consular officer in England to be placed in touch with suppliers of sanitary seats, blind rollers, curtain poles and rings, broom handles and wash boards in the United States.

8,529. COAL—An American Consular officer in Italy reports that there is a large demand in that country for coking coal and splint, or cannel coal for use in the steel works. The name of a firm was transmitted which desires to represent American exporters of this product.

8,530. PAPER PERFORATING MACHINES—A firm of importers and exporters in New York transmits to the Bureau of Manufactures a request from a firm in Brazil which desires to communicate with American manufacturers of machines for perforating paper rolls for piano players.

8,531. ELECTRIC PLANTS—American Minister Nicolay A. Grevstad, of Uruguay, reports that, anticipating prompt action by the Legislature of that country regarding the establishment of a state electric monopoly, the Minister of Finance has requested the board of directors of the electric works of Montevideo to prepare without delay complete plans for electric plants in all the cities and important villages in the republic.

PROMOTERS ARE HELD LIABLE FOR FRAUDS

COURT OF APPEALS RULING

Fixes Responsibility for Corporation Prospectus Which Misrepresents Business Facts.

ALBANY, April 12.—Persons who invest money in the bonds of a corporation, relying upon a prospectus containing misleading statements concerning the properties of such corporation, are entitled to recover the money so invested.

This is the effect of a decision of the Court of Appeals to-day, which holds that Frank Downey of Rochester, who, with several hundred other persons, purchased bonds of the United States Independent Telephone Company, is entitled to recover from the men responsible for the issuing of the prospectus of that company.

Among the defendants in the suit were Thomas W. Finucane, Hiram W. Sibley, Henry A. Strong, George Eastman, and James S. Watson, all of Rochester. More than one hundred actions of a similar character are said to be pending, involving several million dollars.

The Court of Appeals points out that the sole signature to the prospectus was that of Albert O. Fenn of Rochester, and that if he was the agent of the defendants his acts in furtherance of the enterprise and all that he did in reference to the prospectus must be binding upon them.

"Where there are a number of such promoters," says Judge Bartlett, writing the opinion of the court, "all the co-adventurers are liable for damages for the fraud of an agent employed by them to effect the sale of the corporation securities without reference to their moral guilt or innocence."

Judge Bartlett then points out that the franchise which the prospectus set forth that the company owned was originally granted in 1894 by the Board of Electrical Control of New York City to the Mercantile Electric Company and the only business done under it was the operation of a system of burglar alarms in the financial district of New York.

"In 1905," continues Judge Bartlett, "the Mercantile Electric Company was merged with the New York Independent Telephone Company, which acquired all of its capital stock, amounting at par to $5,000. This stock was purchased by the promoters for $250,000 and turned over to the New York Independent Telephone Company for $41,000,000 of its stock. At the time when the prospectus was prepared and published no permit had been granted by the municipal authorities to the Mercantile Electric Company.

"It is obvious that if the fact in regard to the limited use to which the franchise had been put by the original grantees, for burglar alarm purposes only, had been set forth in the prospectus, together with the discrepancy between the cost of the franchise to the promoters and the amount of stock issued therefor, no careful investor would have been induced to put any money into bonds based on such a foundation."

Elbridge L. Adams, who was associated with ex-Congressman James M. E. O'Grady and Alton B. Parker in the trial of the case against the telephone promoters, was at the City Club yesterday when he received news of the Court of Appeals decision. He said that $16,000,000 worth of the bonds of the United States Independent Telephone Company had been sold and that suits had been brought against the promoters by purchasers of about $2,500,000 worth of them. The effect of the decision, he said, would be to make the collection of the other claims an easy matter.

At the present time, Mr. Adams said, the telephone company, which is a New Jersey corporation, is in the hands of a receiver in Newark. Its collapse, Mr. Adams said, was directly due to the failure of the company to obtain a writ of mandamus against the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity of this city for permission to lay conduits under the streets of the city, and thus establish in this city a telephone system in opposition to the Bell interests, which would give the independent telephone lines of the country an entrance into the metropolis.

The suit for a mandamus followed an opinion of Corporation Counsel Ellison, given to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, that the franchise of the Mercantile Electric Company did not permit the operation of a telephone system. The franchise was the principal asset of the New York Independent Telephone Company and was capitalized by it at $12,500,000.

This capitalization of the franchise as early as 1905 was the subject of official investigation. It was called to the attention of Charles E. Hughes, who was then conducting an investigation of the life insurance companies. It had been generally understood that the Mercantile Electric Company was owned by the Equitable Life Assurance Society. This was denied by the society's officers in a statement to the press, which declared:

> The Mercantile Electric Company was incorporated some years ago with a special charter or franchise which gave it permission to lay wires in the Subways of New York and to do a general burglar alarm and telephone business. The stock is owned entirely by the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company.

The sale price reported for the stock to the New York Independent Telephone Company, a subsidiary of the United States Independent Telephone Corporation, was $5,000.

During the proceedings brought by the bond holders to throw the company into a receivership, it was brought out that large amounts of stock had been given to various politicians without consideration. Among those who received large blocks of stock was William J. Conners of Buffalo, at the time Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. Several prominent politicians were reported to be using their offices in the company's favor. Thomsa W. Finucane's entrance into Democratic State politics followed his visit to New York in the Winter of 1905 to promote the company's interests. His elevation to the State Committee of the party as member from Monroe County was attributed to the political friendships he had formed in this city.

Downey, who was selected to bring the test case, was one of the smallest bondholders. He won a jury verdict against the promoters before Supreme Court Justice Benton, which was upheld by the Appellate Division of the Fourth Department. The promoters were represented throughout the proceedings by John G. Milburn, in whose house in Buffalo, President McKinley died.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general trade conditions, Dun's Review says:

> The principal industries and trades maintain their recent gains in activity, and an amount of business is carried on which, although still below the full limit of capacity, shows nevertheless a distinct advance, and is on the whole very satisfactory. The good Spring weather generally prevailing is producing renewed activity in building operations. In the iron and steel trade, while there was some falling off in the unfilled orders of the principal producer during March, the trade improvement, which set in late last year and has continued progressively ever since, is maintained, so that actual production is only one-tenth below the capacity of the plants.

Bradstreet's says:

> Trade and industrial developments are largely favorable, and conservative optimism predominates. Leading encouraging features are brighter skies, higher temperatures, less strain in the coal strike negotiations, and the passing of the Mississippi flood menace from the Central Valley further toward the sea. Unfavorable developments are a rather poor Government Winter wheat report, advices of much Winter killing of that crop east of the Mississippi, wet soil and poor roads in sections recently experiencing rains and high water, and the possibilities contained in the prospects of an engineers' strike on Eastern railroads. Jobbing trade reports include advices of a quieting of Spring demand at large Eastern centres, with attention turning to late Summer and Fall trade, but of an improvement nearer points of final distribution.

IRON ORE FOR 30 YEARS ONLY.

Joseph Sellwood Says Steel Holdings Will Then Be Exhausted.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A prophecy that the ores held by the United States Steel Corporation would be exhausted within twenty-five or thirty years was made to-day before the House Steel Trust Investigating Committee by Joseph Sellwood, an authority on ores, who says he has scoured the North American continent in search of merchantable ore.

Mr. Sellwood told the committee that in Utah there were known to be to-day a billion tons of merchantable ore. This ore can be used to make steel just as well as any other ore, but it is not near coke or coal or fluxing material, he said.

Several years ago Mr. Sellwood explored the Utah ores for James J. Hill, the late John W. Gates, and the late E. H. Harriman. They considered those ores at that time as a reserve.

"How long do you think that those Utah ores will be considered merely as a reserve?" asked Representative Gardner.

"Probably twenty-five years."

Mr. Sellwood thought the time would come when it would be practical to build steel plants on the Pacific Coast, and told of when Gates and others had considered erecting a steel mill at Los Angeles. With the completion of the Panama Canal the availability of the Western ore, it was said, would increase.

Mr. Sellwood said there were deposits of 55 per cent. metallic iron ore at Moose Mountain, Ontario, aggregating 100,000,000 tons. In Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, he said there were similar deposits with which he was not familiar. He estimated the total tonnage in the United States as follows:

Lake Superior District, 1,800,000,000 tons; Utah, 1,000,000,000 tons; Wyoming, 100,000,000 tons; California, 250,000,000 tons; New Mexico, 100,000,000 tons; Texas, 50,000,000 tons; New York, the Lake Champlain District, 100,000,000 tons, a total of 3,400,000,000 tons.

BILL TO BUILD ALASKA ROAD.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A bill for the construction and equipment of 1,000 miles of railroad in Alaska under the direction of the Alaska Railway Commision of five members to be appointed by the President was introduced to-day by Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan, by direction of the Territories Committee.

The bill would authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to issue bonds to build the railroad and would immediately appropriate $1,000,000 to be expended under the direction of the President, reimbursable from the bond sales. The Government property no longer needed in constructing the Panama Canal would be transferred for the use of the Alaska commission.

The bill does not provide for the building of a Government railroad from tidewater at Resurrection Bay to the Yukon Valley as has been urged by Secretary Fisher and differs in Mr. Fisher's plans in other details.

STEEL TRUST'S LABOR INQUIRY

Its Own Committee to Report to Stockholders Next Monday.

After visiting the steel plants at Gary, Homestead, Chicago, and other points where the United States Steel Corporation has mills, the committee of the corporation appointed to investigate labor conditions returned to New York yesterday and it is expected that the report will be ready for submission to stockholders at the annual meeting next Monday in Hoboken.

It was in response to a resolution offered at the last annual meeting asking for facts in reply to charges made in a series of magazine articles that the corporation's workmen were overworked and ill treated, that the committee was appointed. It was not named, however, until the Fall. It consists of Stuyvesant Fish, Charles A. Painter, D. Miller, Charles L. Taylor, and De Witt Cuyler.

"In-er-seal" Men Celebrate.

The In-er-seal Association, composed of employes of the National Biscuit Company, celebrated its twelfth anniversary last night. Its members saw "Oliver Twist," and afterward attended a reception and dance at Louis Martin's.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Wheat Leaps Upward on Colossal Trade—All Staples Follow.

Great excitement prevailed in the grain markets, with new high records for the season. Trading was on an enormous scale. Damage reports were very numerous in wheat. Fear of delayed seeding affected oats, and corn receipts were very small. Provisions were strong on a small movement of hogs. Cotton reverses its action, and sells at about the high prices of the movement again. Apprehension as to weather probabilities brought in considerable buying, although heavy profit taking is still encountered. Cottonseed oil also goes to new high records, with crude actively bought. Coffee closes firm on liberal support and some unfavorable crop news.

WHEAT.

Heavy trading again developed in the wheat market, prices developing pronounced strength and advanced 2c to 3c a bushel for the new crop deliveries, closing at the extreme prices. The old crop deliveries again lagged behind. The excitement was the result of the crop situation and the growing apprehension regarding the amount of damage to the Winter wheat. The fact that bad reports continue to come in in great volume from the Central West backed up by persistent reports from the Southwest and Nebraska made buyers very uneasy. The buying by commission houses was on a very heavy and persistent scale, so that prices suffered very few reactions. In fact, very little reaction seemed to lend fresh zest to the buying. The crop experts in the fields reiterated former statements, and individual reports were numerous of damage. The advices that the country was a heavy buyer at the interior had very decided influence on the market. Western receipts for the day were small. The Modern Miller report was of extensive damage from Winter killing to late sown soft wheat, with reports of damage to hard Winter wheat in Kansas, due to exposure of the plant when unprotected. Bradstreet's exports were 2,613,000 bushels, against 1,634,000 bushels last year; Argentina, 3,992,000 bushels, against 2,720,000 bushels; Australian, 912,000 bushels, against 1,280,000 bushels, and Indian, 280,000 bushels, against 1,048,000 bushels. The indicated world's exports of 11,000,000 bushels were nearly 3,000,000 bushels less than the previous week and 1,060,000 bushels less than last year. Export sales were reported of 12 loads of Manitoba wheat at outports. Cash wheat was strong, with No. 2 red $1.12½, free on board; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.17; No. 1 Northern, opening of navigation, $1.24½; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.15⅝.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN—New high levels were made in the corn market influenced largely by the strength in wheat and corn, prices closing at the extreme. The trading was less active, due to the excitement in other grain. Western cash markets weer strong, while receipts showed further loss compared with a year ago. The interior movement in five days has decreased 800,000 bushels, compared with last year, and interior shipments increased 500,000 bushels, the interior shipments being nearly double the receipts. The exports of American corn for the past week were only 353,000 bushels, against 1,170,000 bushels last year. Argentina exports were 111,000 bushels, against 154,000 bushels. Spot corn was strong, with No. 2 quoted at 84½c, free on board.

OATS—Intense excitement prevailed in the oats market, with prices advancing rapidly for the July delivery. This month showed 1¼c gain, closing at about the top; other months were up ⅝ to ¾c. Continued fear of delay in field work caused heavy buying. Weather conditions promised less favorably with a storm centre approaching in the Rocky Mountain region. Western receipts were small and showed further falling off with increased shipments. Cash oats were strong, and quoted at 2c a pound in New York. Exporters reported 70,000 bushels of Canadian oats. Standards and No. 2 whites were quoted at 64c, elevator; No. 3, 63½c.

PROVISIONS.

Provisions which for several days have been showing some hesitation developed quite decided strength partly influenced by the big advance in feeding grain. Live hogs were irregular but receipts were only 50,000 at all points. Packing returns for the past week made a total of only 445,000 or 60,000 less than last year.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Substantial gains were witnessed during the day. The high levels for the season were again made at the finals although on the "curb" recessions of from 5 to 7 points occurred, due to realizing by early buyers thought to be partly influenced by a suspicion that leading refining interests were endeavoring to liquidate some oil recently purchased. Sentiment is still bullish in the main, although it is apparent that there has been a great deal of realizing and general evening of commitments. During yesterday's session, the domisating influence was the strength in crude with 5.33 paid in all sections although undoubtedly the strength in the provision, grain and cotton market contributed to developments. There are some contentions that the recent enhancement of oil values will result in a larger seed-crush than earlier anticipated.

COTTON.

Intimations that the upward movement had culminated with Thursday's setback were less general yesterday, and ostensibly fluctuations in the market are influencing sentiment to an important extent. It is still apparent, however, that many regard the technical position as vulnerable and have sold on this theory, although quite a little of this cotton was repurchased yesterday. Speculative demand from outside quarters was again large and resulted in recoveries exceeding the losses of the previous session. Selling credited to Pell interests, however, and by other bulls seemed sufficient to quiet the inquiry, and on this liquidation the maximum advances were about reduced to only slightly above the opening levels, which were 9 to 13 points above Thursday's finals.

Liverpool and the South bought freely at intervals and generally the buying was based on weather conditions. Scattered rains were shown in the Central West, but private accounts reported heavy precipitation in parts of the Mississippi Valley, and there are again conflicting reports at hand relative to the flood situation. Information was at hand, that a levee, near Greenville, Miss., had broken; but later dispatches were not in accord with this report. It was evident, however, that bear pressure was restricted by predictions of unsettled weather conditions, with probable rains over practically the entire belt, but as on the preceding day there seemed to be an increase of offerings on the scale up, probably indicative of an inclination to accept profits at these levels, pending further unsatisfactory climatic developments.

The initial report of Habersham King for the season was issued and stated in part that excepting for Texas and Oklahoma the crop cannot be considered an early one as was last season's; the greatest delay beyond the normal being in the northern half of the belt, east of the Mississippi. He claims, however, that this crop is not yet a late one, for the April developments may result in its being planted at a normal date and also expresses the opinion that it will greatly depend on April weather conditions.

Liverpool cables were better than expected yesterday and were instrumental in the higher openings on this side, although considerable buying from New York in the foreign market was reported, presumably on weather conditions. Manchester reports continue conflicting, but generally are to the effect that a larger business is being interfered with by the advanced prices. There have also been more claims of a diminution of buying by domestic mills at prevailing levels, but in the meantime spot prices are being well maintained. Yesterday Southern markets were unchanged to ⅛c higher, and New York spot cotton .20c advance, with middlings 11.65c. The week-end statistics were regarded as moderately bullish. The into-sight amounted to 178,000 bales, and since Sept. 1 14,457,000 bales, against 11,155,000 bales last year. If the early estimates of the spinners' takings of from 285,000 bales to 295,000 bales are approximately correct, a decrease in the visible of 112,000 bales will be shown, against 70,000 bales decrease last week and 127,000 bales last year. Spinners' takings last week were 249,000 bales; last year [illegible]000 bales. The visible of American cotton is 4,189,000 bales, against 2,894,000 bales last year. Exports aggregate 9,393,000 bales, or about 2,630,000 bales above this time last season.

COFFEE.

Coffee sales totaled 109,000 bags, and prices closed at an advance of 5 to 11 points, offerings being readily absorbed. The demand for well-described Santos coffee on the spot was quite active, and deliveries are running considerably ahead of last year. The desirable grades of Brazilian coffee are scarce, and this has stimulated more activity in mild coffee. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were firm, and a private cable from Cia Exportadora de Cafe of Santos said, "Rains doing damage. Crop will be later than usual coming to market." Havre was unchanged; Hamburg advanced ¼ pfennig; Rio advanced 150 reis, while Santos was 50 to 100 reis higher.

Spot coffee steady; Rio No. 7, 14⅝c.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE

New York & Harlem Railroad Co.

At a meeting of several large stockholders of the New York and Harlem Railroad Company, who deem the offer of $175 per $50 share of Harlem stock by the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company wholly inadequate, the undersigned were appointed a Committee to act in their behalf and to protect their interests. Other holders of stock desiring to act through and with the committee may communicate their purpose to the Secretary, JOHN S. SHEPPARD, JR., ESQ., AT NO. 80 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK CITY, giving names, addresses, and number of shares owned or controlled. The Secretary will furnish full particulars of the plan under which the Committee will act.

DISSOLUTION NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM, PART I., OF THE Supreme Court of the State of New York held in and for the County of New York at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on 22d day of March, 1912.—Present: Hon. Edward J. Gavegan, Justice.—In the matter of the application of THE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY OF DIVINE PROVIDENCE for voluntary dissolution.

On reading the petition of John M. Farley, John D. Crimmins, George D. Mackay, and James McMahon, a majority of the Trustees of The Benevolent Society of Divine Providence, a corporation created under the laws of New York, and having its principal office in the County of New York, and the schedule thereto annexed, verified February 14th, 1912, from which it appears that the case is one of those specified in Section 170 of the General Corporation Law, and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the Court from the statements in said petition and schedule that it is beneficial to the interests of the members of the said corporation that it should be dissolved, and on reading the notice of this application dated February 28th, 1912, with proof of the due service thereof and of said petition and schedule on the Attorney General of the State of New York and heretofore filed, and after hearing Edward J. McGuire, Esq., of counsel for the petitioners, and no one appearing on behalf of the Attorney General, (and upon filing the opinion of the court,)

Now, on motion of Edward J. McGuire, attorney for the petitioners, it is Ordered that all persons interested in the said corporation show cause before the Supreme Court of the State of New York at a Special Term, Part I. thereof, to be held in and for the County of New York at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, on May 10th, 1912, at 10:30 o'clock A. M., or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why said corporation The Benevolent Society of Divine Providence should not be dissolved, and it is further Ordered that a copy of this order be published at least once in each of the three weeks immediately preceding said May 10th, 1912, in the New York Law Journal and New York Times, newspapers published in the County of New York. Enter E. J. G., Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

MUCH LONG STOCK SOLD

Uncertainty Over Outcome of Pennsylvania Primary and Strike Vote of Engineers, Adverse Influences.

Whatever efforts were made to stay the reaction which began in irregular fashion three days ago did not prevent a general decline yesterday, from which only two or three active stocks escaped without net losses, and which in many cases ran to well over a point. Trading was on a broad scale, and the amount of long stock liquidated was probably very considerable. At the opening there was a show of firmness, some prices rising above Thursday's close, but after this initial strength, the movement of prices was pretty steadily downward. It was in the last moments of trading that the low prices of the day were recorded in nearly all issues. It was, however, by no means a disorderly retreat from the position to which the market had recently advanced, for, considering the length to which the upward movement had run, there seemed to be justification for the view that the market was giving a good account of itself in the manner in which it was absorbing the very considerable amount of stock which was coming out. At the same time, the general extent of the downward movement left no doubt that the market was under the influence of the reaction for which many had begun to look a considerable time before it actually occurred.

Of the specific influence contributing to the weakness displayed yesterday, first place possibly should be given to the uncertainty felt regarding the outcome of the Pennsylvania Republican Presidential primary, which loomed much larger in Stock Exchange opinion as a possible factor in the securities markets because of the outcome of the Illinois primaries earlier in the week. The heavy vote in favor of a strike by the locomotive engineers was another of the day's contributions to the unsettling influences to which the financial district paid attention, but it is doubtful if any were really surprised by the result of this vote. Anything, however, which seems to becloud the prospects for a friendly settlement of the labor controversies now presenting themselves for solution, serves to weaken one of the theories upon which the security markets have been advancing, and the same would be true of any further indication of popular support for radical political candidacies. Hence the attention paid yesterday to the possibility of an unexpected result of to-day's Pennsylvania primary.

So far as one other theory which has supported the recent rise in prices is concerned, yesterday's news in no way impaired its soundness. Reference is made to the growth in general business of which further proof is afforded in the weekly trade reviews which tell of sustained hopefulness in business circles, and increased movement of merchandise into consumption. Somewhat in the background, but playing nevertheless a fundamental part in shaping the sentiment of the financial markets, is the expectation of favorable crop results. Therefore, it may be that the still further rise in grain prices yesterday had some adverse effect upon Stock Exchange sentiment, although there is no general disposition to abandon the view that those who would at this early date assume serious mishap to the Winter crops are merely taking the worse for granted, a position in which the further course of the season may very well prove them to be wrong. A renewed rise in the cotton market brought net gains in the several options of upward of 10 points, while the spot price of the staple rose to a new high level for this movement. The rise in cotton does not seem to have materially checked demand, and it is reasonable to suppose that it will have the incidental effect of lessening such degree of enthusiasm as may still exist among Southern cotton growers, for a reduction in cotton acreage.

Considers Out-of-Town Checks.

The special committee of the Clearing House Association which is to consider the revision of the rules governing the collection of out-of-town checks had its first meeting yesterday. As two of the five members are out of town, no definite action was taken, and it will be at least two weeks before the hearings will be under way.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

J. J. Hill's Steel Interests.

A report from Winnipeg that James J. Hill and associates had bought two miles of lake front property near Fort William, to be used as a site for steel works and blast furnaces, caused a little flurry of interest among people holding United States Steel yesterday. With the cancellation of the Steel Corporation's lease of the Missabe ore fields next year Mr. Hill will again be put in possession of upward of half a billion tons of ore, and it has been suggested from time to time that he might build his own steel plants to make use of this. Yesterday's report was denied by Mr. Hill's associates, and the denial became convincing when it was realized that so shrewd a man as the Great Northern Chairman would hardly build a steel manufactory on the wrong side of a tariff wall.

India's Coal Supply.

The British coal strike had an instantaneous effect on points several thousand miles away. Steamers at Calcutta have been unwilling to take cargo for England since the receipt of news of the strike, owing to a natural desire to keep clear of the trade disturbances there, and a congestion of export cargo threatens that port. Steamers leaving Calcutta have been taking 30 per cent. more bunker coal than is customary, and while no loaded ships have been held in port through inability to obtain fuel, the unusual demand has caused a delay in coaling. There has also been a strong demand for coal from other ports of India which the Bengal collieries have been unable to supply. The demand for coal at Calcutta has been unusually brisk in the past five months as a result of the flourishing condition of manufacturing. In Bombay the cotton mills have been kept very busy by the brisk tone of the Chinese yarn market. There is said to be plenty of coal at the mines in India, but an insufficient number of cars to move it. At Bombay there has been a real coal famine, with shipping rates much inflated in consequence.

Some Exceptions to Reaction.

Despite the reaction in the market, which was more pronounced yesterday than in any of the recent sessions of irregular movement, seven new high records for the year were established, and two issues, Can common and Canadian Pacific, advanced to the highest points in their history. American Can common was active all day, and in the afternoon it sold up to 30. Canadian Pacific sold up to 252⅝. Both of these issues were affected by the general weakness of the market in the late trading, although at the close Can common showed a net gain of one-quarter point, which was notable in a list where gains were the exception. Canadian Pacific closed 2⅝ from the top and was off ⅝ point for the day. Among the high records made for the year the most important was that made by New York Central, which reached 115⅜. It closed at 114⅞, a gain of ⅛.

Three Pages of Commissioner Smith

Copies of the annual report of the Commissioner of Corporations have reached Wall Street. No Government bureau save the Inter-State Commerce Commission has saddled so much work on the office forces of the corporations, and the reports and data which traveled to Washington on its order would cover acres of paper. Commissioner Smith's remarks about the year's activities of the bureau fill less than three small pages of type.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Activity and Firmness Shown in Most of the Out-of-Town Markets.

G. B. S. BREWING BONDS UP

New High Records Made by American Can Common and Preferred in Chicago—Philadelphia Market Quiet.

Active trading and a strong tone marked operations in most of the out-of-town markets yesterday, as shown by special dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

In Baltimore excited trading in G. B. S. Brewing bonds, accompanied by sensational advances, was the feature. G. B. S. 4s rose about 5 points and the income bonds rose from 6 to 12, thus doubling their value in one day, but last prices were off from the best. To-day's buoyancy is thought to be due either to buying on behalf of a new interest or to the fact that a change in the management and the expected improvement in the property are assured. New high records were made by Consolidated Power, common and preferred.

In Boston the activity of Arizona Commercial was the feature of the market. Granby was active and inclined to be strong, but it reacted in the afternoon. North Butte also, after advancing half a point, went lower than it opened. United States Smelting and Amalgamated were moderately active. The action of most copper stocks denoted hesitation among traders and general unwillingness to purchase freely, while doubt exists regarding the position of the metal and the political and labor situations. Selected issues with a large speculative following enjoyed a fairly broad movement, but trading on the whole was restricted by the approach of the week-end and accompanying operations to adjust accounts. Comment was made freely on the fact that many leading coppers are no higher than a month ago, indicating that the market was forced to absorb a large volume of long stock during the recent period of activity.

In Chicago new high records were touched again by American Can common and preferred, furnishing two of the strongest features in a rather irregular market. The common, after reaching 30, receded to 29¼, a shade over Thursday and the preferred closed at 111¼, compared with 109¾ on Thursday. Fractional gains were made by Illinois Brick and National Carbon preferred. Among the weakest spots was Street's common, which at the close was 1¼ under Thursday's. Chicago Railways Series 2s lost a point, while Sears Roebuck, Swift, and a few others were down fractionally.

In Philadelphia the wavering drift of the market in New York found reflection in the trading. Outside of Philadelphia Electric and Lake Superior interest fell to a low ebb, but the tone was firm. On account of the primary elections in this State to-morrow there was little disposition to enter upon new commitments. Near the close moderate recessions occurred, Lehigh Navigation yielded a half, following news of the death of the President of the company. General Asphalt preferred rose ½ on purchases of 200 shares. Otherwise the market was listless.

In Pittsburgh the sharp decline in New York stocks had little influence, although trading was dull. Westinghouse Air Brake again made a new high record, for the present capitalization. The stock advanced $1 additional to 169. The extreme advance for the week has been from 166½, transactions having been light. Electric common went to 38 and Union Switch and Signal to 95. Crucible Steel was a shade easier at 12½, and the preferred lost ¾ to 83. High Grade Oil rose $1 to 83, a new record.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

On the Metal Exchange yesterday trading was quiet, with prices on about a parity with Thursday's closing. Five tons of August delivery tin sold at 42.50. Lead was down 5 points in the bid, and nearly 10 points in the asking price; 200,000 pounds of St. Louis spelter, May delivery, sold at 6.50.

The closing bid and asked prices follow:

	—Friday.— Bid.	Asked.	—Thursday.— Bid.	Asked.
Standard Copper— Spot	15.45	15.75	15.50	15.75
April	15.55	15.75	15.50	15.75
May	15.55	15.87½	15.55	15.87½
June	15.57½	15.75	15.55	15.87½

Spelter	6.60	6.80	6.60	6.80

	Friday. £ s. d.	Thursday. £ s. d.
Copper, spot	70 7 6	70 8 9
Copper, futures	71 5 0	71 6 3
Pig tin, futures	194 0 0	194 5 0

The market closed easy. Spanish pig lead was unchanged at £16 3s 9d. Spelter was up 5s, at £25 15s. Cleveland warrants were strong at an improvement of 7½d. to 53s 6d.

NEW OIL CAPITAL UNLIKELY.

Impression Is That Standard Will Increase Eventually, but Not Now.

Although no official information was obtainable yesterday from the officers of the Standard Oil Company of New York, rumors that the capital was about to be increased from $15,000,000 to $50,000,000 or $60,000,000 were not generally credited among those who have been usually well informed about Standard Oil affairs.

It has been known for a long time that a number of the former subsidiaries of the Oil Trust will have their capital changed to sums more nearly representing assets, as was the case with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, but it is generally believed that most of these companies will be allowed to run on under the present financial organization.

It was conceded yesterday that the Standard Oil Company of New York would eventually increase its capital, and probably issue a stock dividend to shareholders, but the guess was hazarded that this melon would not be cut for months to come, and perhaps not until the year is out.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Home Rails, Southeastern Railway, and Mexican Rails Are Higher in London.

MONEY IN GREAT DEMAND

American Securities Are Quiet, but Canadian Pacific Advances—Paris Prices Heavy—Berlin Boerse Easy.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, April 13.—The London Times in its City article this morning says:

"Much money was wanted in the market, owing partly to the demands arising out of Stock Exchange pay day, which had not been adequately provided for on Wednesday. Rates were firm for day-to-day and short fixtures, and discount houses made no concessions on their quotations for bills except to a limited extent in regard to six months' paper. Applications to the Bank of England were small, and would probably have been larger if the supply of money in the market had not increased a little during the day. Sovereigns were withdrawn from the bank for export to Argentina, and the bank also sold some German gold coin, the destination of which was not known.

"The outstanding feature of the stock market was the buoyancy of some railway stock, more especially those of the Southern passenger lines. In some instances prices showed big rises. The balance of the markets were generally quite active. The tone on the whole was firm.

"The American shares, however, relapsed sharply toward the close on sales from New York. The tone of the South African market was dull, but West African gold and tin shares showed strength.

"Among foreign railway stocks the upward movement in Mexican rails made further progress. The tone of the market was quietly steady.

"Marconi shares again attracted a considerable amount of attention. Closing prices showed an all-around advance on ordinary, after being dealt in at 9 3-32, closed at 8 9-32, a rise of 1 3-32. Marconi Spanish wireless shares were freely offered."

LONDON, April 12.—Money was in increased demand, and discount rates were firm to-day.

The settlement was concluded satisfactorily on the Stock Exchange, and with the exception of dullness in the gilt-edged section, due to politics, the markets were cheerful and active. Home rails closed higher under the lead of Southeastern Railway shares, which advanced 5 points. Marconi touched 9⅛ on American buying, and Mexican rails and oil shares were buoyant. There was another outbreak of speculation in tin shares.

American securities were quiet and steady and a fraction above parity during the forenoon. Canadian Pacific was strong at an advance of 2⅝ points. The list relapsed sharply in the afternoon under New York selling. Canadian Pacific was especially weak and led the decline. The closing was weak.

HOPEFUL COAL SESSIONS.

Conferrees in Philadelphia Take Cheerful View of Situation.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—The subcommittee of miners and operators, which is seeking a new working arrangement between the anthracite mine workers and coal companies held two long sessions today, and when it adjourned to meet to-morrow reported good progress had been made. Nothing occurred to indicate that a peaceful settlement will not be reached.

To-day's discussion had to do with the demand for an eight-hour day for all men about the mines, the wage question, the demand for recognition of the union, and modifications of the methods of the Conciliation Board.

One proposition is to divide the anthracite fields into three or four districts and have members of the Conciliation board, which may be enlarged, take up grievances in their respective districts.

The eight-hour day question, which means a slight increase in pay, was taken up, and with this was linked the demand for more wages. No final action will be taken until a thorough understanding is had on the principal differences. There will then be a summing up and adoption of various demands.

Good feeling prevailed throughout the sessions. Miners and operators took luncheon in one of President Baer's private offices, and all expressed themselves as hopeful of an agreement next week.

The question of recognition of the union may not be settled by the sub-committee. The impression prevails in some quarters that the operators will not grant straight-out recognition, but will concede enough in wages and improved conditions to lead the miners to waive the recognition demand.

START SEGAL SUGAR FACTORY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 12.—Sugar is being made at last at the Shackamaxon Street refinery, which is owned and operated by the Pennsylvania Sugar Company. So well has progress been made in the preliminary work, after the idleness in which the refinery has stood ever since it was built by Adolph Segal, ten years ago, that next week sugar will be shipped from the great plant.

Six or seven cargoes of raw sugar have been bought, one of which arrived recently. The management expects the refinery to be operated without interruption from now on. Through its sales department the Pennsylvania Sugar Company has opened up a market for all the refinery can produce.

MORE M., K. & T. NOTES.

Speyer & Co. Likely to Take Balance, $1,650,000, This Month.

A small amount of financing will probably be done by the Missouri, Kansas & Texas this month. The company has in its treasury $1,650,000 of two-year 5 per cent. notes, the unsold balance of an authorized issue of $16,000,000, and it was said yesterday that these may be sold to Speyer & Co.

Frank Trumbull, Chairman of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the M., K. & T., is said to leave Monday for an inspection trip over these lines and the Colorado & Southern. He will be accompanied over the M., K. & T. system by C. E. Schaff, the newly elected President. Upon the completion of this trip the officials expect to be able to say how much money is likely to be needed for the coming year. Stockholders authorized an issue of $125,000,000 of 5 per cent. consolidated bonds last year, and a block of them may be offered if the market is favorable.

RENEWING PRUSSIAN NOTES.

But the Treasury Bills Sold Here Are Not a Part of Them.

Hallgarten & Co., who were instrumental in placing here, a few months ago, an issue of 60,000,000 marks of Prussian treasury bills, explained yesterday that the notes which are being renewed in Berlin are not a part of this issue. The treasury bills, which mature April 15, are being taken up and cancelled. Most of the notes, which were in marks, have already found their way back to Berlin, owing to a change in discount rates which favored a sale by the holders.

The notes which are being extended mature July 1, and were all sold on the Continent, part of the proceeds being used for the retirement of the bills sold in this country. Only a relatively small part of this issue is held in the United States.

ICE ASSETS HIGHER.

Increase Shown in the Item of Accrued Preferred Dividends.

The American Ice Securities Company's balance sheet for the year ended Dec. 31 shows total assets of $25,625,880, compared with $24,934,734 in the previous year. The principal change is in "accrued preferred dividends" which are now $6,530,433, compared with $5,843,835 in 1910. Cash notes and accounts receivable are now $11,528, against $20,879 at the end of the previous year. The increase in the items of accrued preferred dividends carried among assets resulted in an increase in surplus, the other items among liabilities remaining practically unchanged.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Trading Less Active, and Prices Reactionary on the Curb.

Trading was in diminished volume yesterday and prices were inclined to be reactionary. Marconi Wireless of America became suddenly active, and sold from 54 up to 80. Lehigh Valley Coal Sales sold off from 253 to 245½, closing at 246. Fluctuations in the mining list were narrow. Guggenheim Exploration sold 210 shares between 225 and 229, closing at 228.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices were as follows:

DENIES 'PHONE REBATES.

Western Union Is Not Worrying Over Philadelphia Investigation.

At the main office of the Western Union the officials had nothing to say yesterday concerning the report from Philadelphia to the effect that agents of the Department of Justice are investigating the legality under the anti-rebate law of a new arrangement whereby certain subscribers of the Bell Telephone Company are made agents of the Western Union, receiving 10 per cent. commissions on all telegrams sent over the telephone wires. Vice President Bethel of the New York Telephone Company said the investigation report was not worrying him.

He explained that for some time it had been the custom to make the people in charge of many of the drug store, hotel and other telephone pay stations agents of the company, with a commission interest in the receipts. The same idea, he explained, was now being tried to a limited extent with the telegraph company, the drug store people receiving the telegram, accepting payment and, after telephoning it to the Western Union office, collecting their commission.

One Philadelphia dispatch pointed out that the Department of Justice's chief interest was in watching to see whether this scheme would be extended to large business houses. Mr. Bethel laughed at the notion.

When it was pointed out to him that if so large a telephone depot as the Pennsylvania Station, at Broad Street, were to be converted into a Western Union agency, the amount of the Pennsylvania's own messages would be large enough for the commission to constitute a substantial rebate. Mr. Bethel said the telephone pay stations in such a place were not operated as agencies. The Pennsylvania road was not the agent, he said, but rather the landlord of the Bell. The telephone company rents the space there and puts in its own operators as it does in most large places, such as department stores. The Western Union would never extend, he was sure, its agency idea to customers of such proportions that the rebate question could be raised.

Deposit Company Incorporates.

ALBANY, April 12.—The Corn Exchange Safe Deposit Company of New York has filed with the State Banking Department for approval a certificate of incorporation. The capital is $200,000, and the Directors are William A. Nash, Walter E. Frew, William H. Nichols, Clarence H. Kelsey of New York, and David Bingham of East Orange, N. J.

POSTAL FILES COMPLAINT.

Takes Grievance Against Western Union to Public Service Commission.

ALBANY, April 12.—The Public Service Commission has received an informal complaint from the Postal Telegraph Company directed against the New York Telephone Company, alleging that the telephone company is wrongfully diverting to the Western Union telegrams which are intended for the Postal.

A large number of instances occurring in New York, Rochester, Poughkeepsie, Schenectady, Ithaca, Brooklyn, North Tonawanda, Albany, and Gloversville are cited.

BANKERS FOR BRIARCLIFF.

Spring Meeting of Their Association Opens at the Lodge May 4.

The Spring meeting of the Executive Council of the American Bankers' Association will be held at Briarcliff Lodge, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. The session at the Lodge will open May 4, but the committee will not meet until Monday, May 6. The Council will have its sessions on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 7 and 8. A special train will be run from Chicago. In addition to the usual banquet, golf and tennis tournaments have been arranged for the diversion of the visiting bankers and their friends.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The revival of politics as a factor was reflected in the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, where prices were under pressure all day. Business was on a heavy scale, activity increasing as prices declined. Sales totaled 102,260 shares, with sixty-five stocks represented by transactions. The professional trading attitude was bearish from the opening, but at the lower levels many operators who were short were inclined to secure their profits, this imparting relative firmness compared with New York Stock Exchange quotations.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Tefft-Weller Building Leased by Tower Company—Investor Buys Madison Avenue Corner—New Owner for Hotel Aberdeen—Residence Near Union Club Sold—$700,000 Brooklyn Building Lease.

By far the most important deal in several months in the lower Broadway mercantile section has been made by the Charles F. Noyes Company, which has leased on a long term to the Tower Manufacturing Company the old Tefft-Weller building at 326 to 330 Broadway, fronting 75 feet in the middle of the block on the east side, between Pearl and Worth Streets, and with frontages in the rear of the building on both those thoroughfares. The lease is for a long term, representing an aggregate rental of about $700,000. Of additional interest is the fact that James N. Jarvie, the new owner of the property which, for years, was the headquarters of one of the largest dry goods jobbing houses in the city, will erect what will be virtually a new building for the lessee, the plans for which have just been prepared by the architects, Goldwin, Starrett & Van Vleck.

The Tower Manufacturing Company, which is one of the largest stationery and mail order houses in the country, will use the entire building, covering an area of 17,500 square feet, and, with its five floors and basement, containing over 100,000 square feet of space, for their various departments now located at 306 to 310 Broadway, 350 Broadway, 100 Reade Street, and in the Bush Terminal buildings, Brooklyn. The decision of the firm to remain in its old established locality is regarded by the leading brokers and merchants in the lower business section of the city as indicating a checking of the uptown movement, and, with other fireproof building improvements, a revival of high class business activity is likely to be experienced in the locality. The Tefft-Weller building is within a block of the new Court House centre to the east and the Worth Street subway station is but a block east of Broadway.

Strong efforts have been made to induce the Tower Company to move uptown, and at one time it had almost decided to move to the vicinity of Broadway and Fifteenth Street. The company was established in 1845, and was recently reorganized, with James H. Einstein as President. The Tefft-Weller building has been vacant for over a year since the dissolution of the firm, and Mr. Jarvie bought the property through the Noyes Company last January.

Madison Av. Corner Bought for Loft.

Another Madison Avenue corner south of Thirty-fourth Street is about to be improved with a tall loft structure. The property on the northeast corner of Thirty-third Street, being 169 and 171 Madison Avenue, which Loton H. Slawson bought over a year ago for a prospective building, has been sold for him as President of the Hubbard Holding Company, the owners of record, and also the adjoining parcel at 173, for the 173 Madison Avenue Company. The brokers in the transaction were William A. White & Sons, but the name of the purchaser or syndicate was not announced. It was said, however, that the buyers will erect at once on the site a twenty-story building of attractive architectural design. The combined plot, now occupied by two old four-story dwellings and a five-story building, has a frontage of 74.1 feet on Madison Avenue and 100 feet on Thirty-third Street. The two plots on the corner sold by Mr. Slawson have been held at $400,000.

Hotel Aberdeen Sold.

The Aberdeen Hotel, a twelve-story structure covering a plot 73.9 by 100 at 17, 19 and 21 West Thirty-second Street, has been sold by Mrs. Percy D. Houghton to Louis Markel.

The buyer, who is the lessee of the Pierrepont, Normandie and Calvert, takes possession of the property immediately, and plans to make extensive improvements at a cost of about $100,000.

The price at which the property was sold has not been made public. Its assessed valuation is $700,000. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company and E. L. Turnbull & Co. of Baltimore were the brokers in the transaction.

Investor Buys Greene Street Loft.

The seven-story loft on plot 50 by 100 at 204 and 206 Greene Street, adjoining the southeast corner of West Third Street, has been sold by Steinman & Son for Assemblyman Andrew F. Murray to a client for investment.

Buys $300,000 Dwelling.

Another deal in the Fifth Avenue section, which has been remarkably active during the past week, was reported yesterday by Davis & Robinson, who sold for Ogden Codman his residence at 15 East Fifty-first Street. The property, which was purchased by B. G. Work of Ohio, consists of a six-story English basement dwelling, on lot 25 by 100.5, just east of the Union Club, at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-first Street. The house faces St. Patrick's Cathedral, and was held at $300,000. It is assessed in the city tax books at $160,000.

This is the third time the same brokers have sold this property. It comprises the easterly end of a plot 82.6 feet wide, which they sold to W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., several years ago, and resold part to Mr. Codman. The westerly 30 feet of the Vanderbilt plot was sold to E. Rollins Morse.

The same brokers sold 40 feet adjoining the Codman plot on the west, and also a 55-foot parcel at the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street to Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. It is understood that Mr. Codman will erect a new residence on Ninety-sixth Street, near Fifth Avenue.

$275,000 Lease on Thirty-fourth St.

The Regal Shoe Company has leased from Frank Brothers for a period of sixteen years the five-story building at 40 West Thirty-fourth Street, just west of the Waldorf-Astoria, at a rental aggregating about $275,000. The lessees operate more than a dozen stores in this city, and this is the first location other than a corner chosen by the company. John N. Golding was the broker.

Activity Along Lexington Avenue.

The stimulative effect of the Lexington Avenue subway on east side realty was evident in several transactions reported yesterday, the most important of which was the sale of the six-story elevator apartment house at the southeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Eighty-first Street to Charles S. and Melville Untermyer for investment.

The structure, which was sold by the Hudson Realty Company, occupies a plot of 104 feet on the avenue and 70 feet on the street. Stations on the new subway line will be placed at Seventy-eighth and Eighty-sixth Streets. On the side street further north Snowber & Smith sold for John McBride the three story and basement brick dwelling 136 East Ninety-third Street, on a lot 18.4 by 100.8. This property is within 18 feet of Lexington Avenue, and is the key to the corner. The buyer is an investor.

Buys Uptown Plot for Apartments.

The vacant plot, 100 by 100, comprising four city lots, on the south side of 191st Street, 100 feet west of St. Nicholas Avenue, has been sold by E. T. Stein & Yarfitz for the Henry Morgenthau Company to a client who will erect on the property two five-story apartments.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Charles Schoolhouse has sold to Dr. Charles J. Dillon 161 West Seventy-seventh Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 17.6 by 102.2. The buyer will occupy. Mark Rafalsky & Co. were the brokers.

Margaret J. Ellis has sold 112 West 131st Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 16.8 by 99.11, to J. L. C. Schutt of Queens. Porter & Co. were the brokers.

Quick Resale and Profit.

A quick resale of west side property was reported yesterday by G. F. Treacy, who sold for Alfred M. Rau to John J. Boyle the two-story frame dwelling 211 West Sixty-fourth Street on a lot 25 by 100. The buyer will alter the building into a studio for his own use.

Mr. Rau purchased the property recently at auction and resold it at a substantial profit.

Investors Buying Tenements.

FACE BRICK
Water having penetrated through the joints to the back of a wall built of bricks that are too non-absorbent, works its way to the interior wall surfaces. Seepage, sweating, condensation, and interior evaporation produce a condition of continuous saturation on such walls. This trouble is avoided where Hydraulic-Press Bricks are used. 500,000,000 made annually.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CITY OF NEW YORK.
Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held March 28, 1912, the following petition was received:

TO THE HONORABLE THE BOARD OF Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York:

Gentlemen:

THE CONEY ISLAND AND BROOKLYN RAILROAD COMPANY, a street surface railroad corporation, duly incorporated and doing business under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, hereby makes application for a franchise to construct, operate, and maintain a street surface railroad for the transportation of persons and property, together with the necessary connections, switches and turnouts, appurtenances and appliances, to be operated by electricity conducted and supplied through the overhead single trolley system, along the routes in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, described as follows:

Commencing at a point at or near the intersection of Ninth Street and Fourth Avenue, and running thence in a northeasterly direction along Fourth Avenue to Flatbush Avenue and continuing across Flatbush Avenue into and along Ashland Place to Fulton Street with double tracks, and continuing from thence with a single track in a northerly direction along Ashland Place to De Kalb Avenue, and also with a single track from a point at or near the intersection of Ashland Place and Fulton Street; running in a westerly direction along Fulton Street to a point at or near the intersection of Fulton Street and Rockwell Place, and from thence northerly into and along Rockwell Place to De Kalb Avenue.

THE CONEY ISLAND AND BROOKLYN RAILROAD COMPANY,
By S. W. HUFF, President.

[Seal]
Attest: JOHN A. THAKE, Asst. Sec'y.

State of New York, City of New York, County of Kings, ss.:

On the 11th day of March, 1912, before me personally came S. W. Huff, to me known, who, being by me duly sworn, did depose and say: That he resides in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York; that he is the President of the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company, the corporation described in and which executed the foregoing instrument; that he knew the seal of said corporation; that the seal affixed to said instrument was such corporate seal; that it was so affixed by order of the Board of Directors of said corporation, and that he signed his name thereto by like order.

GEORGE P. FORT,
Notary Public, Kings County.

and the following resolutions were thereupon adopted:

Whereas, the foregoing petition from the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company, dated March 11, 1912, was presented to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at a meeting held March 28, 1912.

Resolved, That in pursuance of law this Board sets Thursday, the 25th day of April, 1912, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and Room 16 in the City Hall, Borough of Manhattan, as the time and place when and where such petition shall be first considered, and a public hearing be had thereon, at which citizens shall be entitled to appear and be heard, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary is directed to cause such petition and these resolutions to be published for at least fourteen (14) days in two daily newspapers in the City of New York, to be designated by the Mayor, and for at least ten (10) days in the "City Record" immediately prior to such date of public hearing. The expense of such publication to be borne by the petitioner.

The Times and the New York Press designated.

JOSEPH HAAG, Secretary.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The western storm area has moved from the western plateau to the Plain States with decidedly increased intensity, and during the last twenty-four hours it caused general rains and snows, extending through the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys into the Middle Atlantic States.

The temperature has fallen decidedly over the Rocky Mountains and the Northwest, and it continues near or above the normal east of the Mississippi River.

The indications are that the western disturbance will move slowly east, attended by unsettled weather over the greater part of the country during the next forty-eight hours. The weather will clear west of the Rocky Mountains on Saturday.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coasts, moderate, variable; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south and southeast.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate, variable winds and overcast, showery weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers Saturday and probably Sunday; moderate, variable winds.

Southern New England—Probably showers Saturday and Sunday; moderate, variable winds.

Northern New England—Unsettled Saturday; probably showers in Vermont and New Hampshire; Sunday showers; moderate, variable winds.

3 A. M.	41	48	4 P. M.	47	49
6 A. M.	39	46	6 P. M.	44	47
9 A. M.	44	49	9 P. M.	42	43
12 M.	49	49	12 P. M.	40	44

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 48; for the corresponding date last year it was 44; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 46.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 47, at 8 P. M. it was 45. Maximum temperature 52 degrees at 3:30 P. M., minimum 43 degrees at 9 P. M. Humidity 59 per cent. at 8 A. M., 71 per cent. at 8 P. M.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Musical and Dramatic Societies of the Eastern District High School, Marcy Avenue and Keap Street, Brooklyn, will produce Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "The Mikado," on the evening of May 3. The proceeds of the entertainment will be given to the students' aid fund.

It is said that the number of teachers, who have not been approved as "fit and meritorious" by the Board of Superintendents, is more than 500.

Thomas E. Bussey, clerk to the Board of Superintendents, who took such an active part in the efforts of the City Council of the New York Civil Service Association, of which he is Secretary, in behalf of the Walker bill, protecting the rights of civil service employes which, however, failed to pass the Senate, has written the following letter to Edward B. Sheeran, Chairman of the Legislation Committee of the Civil Service State Association:

I have your favor of April 1st and beg leave to assure you that I appreciate the kind words you say about me, and I value them more highly because you are in a position to know what has been done and of my efforts in the matter.

I sometimes think that the more we do for an association, such as ours, the more criticism we come in for from our own members, and it is really a great relief and pleasure to have such words of commendation from those who know the facts. Whenever we have our meetings, at which our most earnest workers are unsparingly attacked, I feel a great deal of disgust, and sometimes feel like turning over my job to some one whose skin is thicker; but, after second thought, it always happens that I stick and put forth renewed efforts to try if possible to remove the objections of all members if it happen, in nearly every instance, that the men who criticise those who are trying to do so much for them are the very ones who are most helpless and least able to do anything for themselves or anybody else. The abuse of our really good members generally comes from this class of persons, and I feel that they should be excused on account of their ignorance.

The Board of Education has adopted the following reports of its Committee on Buildings:

Awarding contracts for alterations, repairs, &c., at Public Schools 4, 13, 14, 19, 25, 35, 40, 50, 63, 79, 91, 104, 122, 140, 160, 161, and 174, and the Stuyvesant High School.

Awarding contracts for furniture for new Public School 40, Queens.

Awarding contracts for alterations, repairs, &c., at Public Schools 39, 43, 44, 52, 53, 59, 66, 82, and 90, Queens.

Awarding contracts for fire protection work at Public Schools 20, 21, and 30, Richmond.

DIDN'T STEAL $40,000 GEMS

So Magistrate Decides in Discharging Two Prisoners—Praises Police.

Isidore Hellman and Israel Feldman, who were accused of stealing $40,000 worth of loose diamonds from the firm of Louis Stern, Dreibett & Co., of 43 John Street, were discharged yesterday by Magistrate Appleton in the Tombs Court. Mr. Stern testified that 2,000 loose diamonds had been stolen from his store on Nov. 17, 1910, and that three weeks ago he received a letter from Mrs. Joseph Millofsky, of 3,858 Third Avenue, saying that Hellman, who been employed by him as a messenger, had stolen the jewels and handed them to Feldman, who stood outside in the hall. Mrs. Millofsky said her husband had told her about the robbery.

Millofsky said Feldman had told him that $2,700 he had was the result of a "big haul downtown." On cross-examination he admitted that he had written to Mr. Stern, through his wife, because of a misunderstanding about business matters. Magistrate Appleton then said:

"There is one thing sure in this case and that is that it knocks some of these men who have been knocking the Police Department into a cocked hat. In this case the police have been very fair, and in their testimony neither Detectives Sagage nor Cray said one thing which was unfair, although a conviction in this case would mean a whole lot to them."

Hellman lives at 4 West 114th Street, and Feldman at 159 Delancey Street.

PUBLIC TOO FINICKY TO GET CHEAP FOOD

POT ROASTS OUT OF DATE

Poor Folk Must Have Porterhouse Steaks Now — Grocers Attack the "Package" Sales.

The retail dealer had his say yesterday at the hearing of the State's Food Investigating Commission, which has been inquiring into the high cost of living. Like all the other witnesses, he said, he was almost losing money by shaving profits down to a minimum.

C. H. Haslop of 537 West Forty-sixth Street, who has a grocery and vegetable store, said he had been in business at that address for twenty-nine years, and at the end of the year 1911, allowing himself a salary of $25 a week, his store, on a gross business of a little more than $25,000, showed a net profit of about $16.

"Twenty years ago, when we were selling good butter at 20 to 25 cents a pound, we were making 4 cents a pound. Yesterday I was selling special butter at 39 cents and I paid 36½ for it. That sounds like 2½ cents profit, but you can never weigh out of a tub the number of pounds you bought it as containing."

All the necessities—sugar, potatoes, flour, eggs, butter—were sold practically without profit, he said.

"The chain stores cut quality and quantity," he said. "About two years ago we were selling pound packages of raisins for 12 cents, when the chain stores advertised 'package raisins for 10 cents.' Their packages contained twelve ounces."

"Would the retail grocers favor strict laws against such deception?" asked Commissioner Osborn.

"They certainly would," answered Mr. Haslop. "Also laws against deceptive advertising."

Farmers, he said, were getting 50 per cent. more for vegetables than they were ten or fifteen years ago.

A. C. Slinter, owner of a grocery and meat market at 64 Main Street, Flushing, said the cost of delivery amounted to about 12½ per cent. of his total expenses.

George Stadtlander, a retailer at 231 Ninth Avenue, President of the [redacted] Also, newspapers are used. What happens? The package must sell for 10 cents. The advertising has to be paid for, and by the consumer. Result, the amount in the package is cut down. Then the other manufacturers have to advertise, and consequently cut down the quantity. One commodity, oatmeal, when first put in a package, sold two pounds for 10 cents. Now the same package, still selling for 10 cents, contains 22 ounces."

The retail butchers all agreed that the public was to blame for the high price of meat.

"You can't sell anything but the best cuts," said Edward Johnsdorfer, a butcher, of 385 Knickerbocker Avenue, Brooklyn. "Nobody wants the rough cuts. The class that four or five years ago liked stews and soups has died out."

"Everybody is high-toned now," said George A. Schaefer, a butcher, of 429 Hamburg Avenue, Brooklyn.

"The poorer classes used to enjoy corned beef, pot roasts, and so on—the cheaper cuts," said William Schneider of 300 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, "but now nothing but prime ribs, porterhouse steak, &c., is taken. Then people used to accept brown paper around their meat; now they want two wrappings of white paper and a bag. That is expensive."

Commissioner Osborn suggested that perhaps the reason for the increased trade in steaks and chops was due to a great extent to the fact that many more women were working and did not have the time to cook stews. Then it was suggested that gas was used more extensively now, and that there wasn't the all-day coal fire available for stews.

Mr. Schaefer said that the absence of coal fire or the lack of time shouldn't interfere with the cooking of stews and soups.

"You can boil the meat for ten minutes in the morning and then add your vegetables," he said, "wrap the pot up tightly in two or three old quilts, and return at night to find it better cooked than if it had been on the fire all day. But people don't seem to know this."

The commission will hear the pushcart peddlers next Thursday.

NEED NOT SELL BY WEIGHT.

Appellate Division Pronounces a City Ordinance Invalid.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, by a vote of three to two, pronounced invalid yesterday the city ordinance forbidding the selling of provisions and foodstuffs of certain classes except by weight or measure. The majority of the court held that the ordinance was unconstitutional because local custom had sanctioned the selling of branded package goods. This custom had so entered into the life of the community, the court said, that it could not be penalized.

In a dissenting opinion Justices Scott and Laughlin hold that the ordinance covers all sales of food whether in jars or other sealed packages, because the only exception provided relates to the sale of poultry.

BUTTER MEN'S PLEA FAILS.

Injunction to Halt Investigation Denied to Mercantile Exchange.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court dismissed yesterday the appeal of the Mercantile Exchange from a Special Term order denying it an injunction against District Attorney Whitman's investigation of its methods to control the price of butter and eggs in the New York market.

The Court rules that in John Doe proceedings corporations and firms have no rights superior to individuals, who are not allowed to be represented by counsel.

Y. W. H. A. FUND NOW $74,215.

Contributions of $4,615 Yesterday for New Building for Girls.

The campaign to raise $250,000 for a new Young Women's Hebrew Association building before April 25 gained momentum yesterday. The contributions reported for the day at the noon meeting held in the headquarters on the third floor of the old Tiffany Building, Broadway and Fifteenth Street, were $4,615. Several hundred dollars in subscriptions were reported after the rolls were closed. The donations reported yesterday brought the total to $74,215.

The largest subscription yesterday was $3,000 from Henry Dix, of 116 West Fourteenth Street.

Miss Sadie American, Executive Secretary of the Council of Jewish Women, spoke to the workers after the luncheon which is a daily feature of the campaign. Miss American said that working girls, for whom the new building is to provide, "do not live to work, but work to live." She urged that the community look upon them as its daughters and recognize their right to enjoy the pleasures of youth in wholesome surroundings as equal to that of other girls who have parents in comfortable circumstances.

Mrs. A. N. Cohan, who is prominently identified with many Jewish charities, said that when she became interested in the association four years ago, she suggested the erection of a new building. She took the first active step in the work by getting the Directors to undertake the project and then by presenting its appeal to Jacob H. Schiff, who promised the first $10,000.

One of the encouraging features of the announcements made at the luncheon was that several of the persons solicited had promised money not only for the building fund but contributions regularly in the future for maintenance.

SIGNS MORE BILLS.

Board of Claims for Audit.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 12.—By signing to-day the bill of Assemblyman A. E. Smith, which gives the State Board of Claims jurisdiction to hear and audit claims arising out of the Conger-Allds Senatorial investigation in 1910, Gov. Dix will be able to veto the item for $35,938 in the annual supply bill for the payment of witnesses and certain counsel in the Conger-Allds investigation. This item includes $5,637 for Lewis E. Carr, $6,000 for Martin W. Littleton, $2,212 for Lewis E. Griffith, $2,500 for Danforth E. Ainsworth, $669 for Daniel N. Carvalho, $928 for Albert N. Hamilton, $5,500 for James W. Osborne, $5,000 for Augustine Van Wyck, $1,500 for Edwin A. Watson, $1,053 for Nelson F. Bonney, and $4,346 for David W. Van Hoesen. It was provided that upon the audit of the temporary President and Chairman of the Committee of the Whole of the Senate and the State Controller, these sums should be paid.

Former Senator Jotham P. Allds, who was in town to-day "practicing law," as he put it, said, answering a question, that the Smith bill was not inspired by him, that his attorneys had been cared for, and that the bill was drawn by Augustus Van Wyck.

Gov. Dix also approved of Assemblyman Cross's bill defining "insurance" as including "any agreement by which one party, for a consideration, promises to pay money or its equivalent or to do any act valuable to the insured, or to a beneficiary upon the death, destruction, loss or injury of some person or thing in which the other party has an interest." The new law also rearranges the term of office of the State Superintendent of Insurance to make it begin July 1, instead of Jan. 1, and increases his salary from $7,500 to $10,000 a year.

Assemblyman Brooks's amendment to the military law providing that classified and rated enlisted National guardsmen, while on actual duty, shall receive such extra daily allowance as may be fixed by the Governor, in addition to the compensation heretofore provided, was also approved by the Governor.

The Governor also signed the Bayne bill, designed to expedite the final disposition of murder cases. It provides that no compensation shall be allowed counsel in cases on appeal from judgment unless the appeal is brought on for argument within six months.

The Governor also approved these bills:

Assemblyman Smith's, providing that the employment of girls or women not members of the family of a holder of a liquor tax certificate shall constitute a misdemeanor.

Assemblyman Kopp's, prohibiting the re-licensing of employment agencies until after three years from the date of the revocation of a license.

Assemblyman Phillips's, constituting the State Controller and two members of the State Hospital Commission as a board for the retirement of hospital employes.

Senator Murtaugh's, giving the State Parole Board power to order the absolute discharge of prisoners.

Senator Foley's, extending to 1913 the time in which the Lake Champlain Tercentenary Commission shall report to the Legislature.

CARUSO SINGS FAREWELL.

Makes Last Appearance in "Pagliacci"—Mrs. Cahier Sings Amneris.

Mrs. Charles Cahier made her third appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon in the rôle of Amneris in a special performance of "Aida." She gave an interesting interpretation of the character and differed from other contraltos who have sung the part, in that she did not paint Amneris snow white, although she was of lighter brown than the Princess of Upper Egypt. Mrs. Rappold was the Aida, Mr. Martin the Radames, and Mr. Gilly the Amonasro. Mr. Sturani conducted.

In the evening Mr. Caruso made his final appearance here this season as Canio in "Pagliacci" before a packed house. The cast also included Messrs. Amato, Bada, and Reschiglian, and Mme. de Pasquali. Leoncavallo's opera was preceded by "Versiegelt," in which Mr. Reiss for the first time assumed the rôle of Bertel. The rest of the cast was the familiar one, including Mme. Gadski, Mme. Alten, Mrs Mattfeld, and Messrs. Weil and Goritz. Mr. Hertz conducted.

ORDERS DOUGHERTY OUT OF THE COURT

Judge Mulqueen Sharply Rebukes Deputy Police Commissioner for Record He Furnished.

DARK FOR THE PRISONER

Useless, the Court Says, and Advises the Police Department to Mind Its Own Business.

Judge Mulqueen, in General Sessions, yesterday ordered Second Deputy Police Commissioner George S. Dougherty from the court room after rebuking him sharply because of the record which Dougherty gave in the case of George Ryan, alias George Walmsley, who was convicted of robbery in the first degree and sentenced to twenty years' in State's prison.

This information is submitted for your consideration when you are sentencing this defendant.

After reading this letter in court yesterday, Judge Mulqueen said:

"Have you any personal knowledge about certain statements concerned in this letter?"

"I have not," replied Dougherty.

"Why did you write me this letter? I am curious to know. You never wrote me one before."

"It is my intention in the future, after a criminal has been convicted of a crime, to endeavor to bring the record of the criminal before the sentencing Judge."

"Don't you think we always know the records?" said Judge Mulqueen.

"I don't know that you always do," replied Dougherty. "I know that we furnish them to the men to deliver to the Judge, but I believe this would be an official way of sending the records to you."

"And do you think a record of this kind would be of any value? You don't know anything about it," said Judge Mulqueen, striking his desk.

Commissioner Dougherty said that his detectives gave him the record and that he believed what they said. Judge Mulqueen then asked the Commissioner where he learned the facts about his discharging the prisoner in 1908.

Dougherty explained that Detectives Dennision and Scalon had given the facts to him.

Judge Mulqueen again struck the desk, and said:

"Didn't you hear the detective's testimony in the Brandt case and how worthless it was, and don't you know that it is statements like this that makes the prejudice against a detective's testimony when he makes rash statements without any knowledge on which to base them. There is no record in this court of any such act. There is one here 'Arrested Dec. 4, 1911.' Don't you know that the District Attorney in open court said there was no evidence against this man and that he should be discharged upon the recommendation of the District Attorney?"

Dougherty said that he did not know and in reply to a question from the court also stated that his records were not kept with a view of discrediting Judges. His Honor shouted:

"Let me tell you and tell your department through you to get legal evidence, to keep your records in a way so that they will deserve respect and not contempt, that they will be records of fact and not of fiction. Now, the records kept in that way may suit the Police Department; they may be of use to them in the detection of crime; I do not care how you detect crime if you do dectect it, but when you come into courts of law bring legal evidence. Do you understand that?"

"I do," replied the Commissioner in amazement.

"And the Judges of this court don't need any advice from the Police Department in the discharge of their duties, and they suggest to the Police Department that they attend to their own business and get the evidence, and the District Attorney and courts will attend to theirs."

"Which we are doing now," said Dougherty.

"Now, I brought you here to say," continued Judge Mulqueen, not paying any attention to Dougherty's remark, "that your letter is worthless; that it does not affect my judgment in the slightest, and I did not ask for it. I said when this man was convicted and an adjournment was asked for that there was only one penalty, and that was and is the sentence which I am going to impose upon him, and which the Judges of this court impose in every case where the evidence justifies it."

Commissioner Dougherty started to say something, but Judge Mulqueen cut him short by saying:

"You may go. I don't care to hear anything further from you. Your letter is an impertinence and uncalled for. You may leave the room."

Immediately after Commissioner Dougherty had left Ryan, the defendant, said:

"I will prove that the Police Department has pounded me, and framed me up, and sent me to the penitentiary. It is not because you pronounced twenty years against me that I say this. I say it for justice's sake. I am satisfied with the twenty years, because I know if I come out I will go back again."

The Judge let the sentence stand, and Ryan was taken back to the Tombs. In the case where Commissioner Dougherty said Judge Mulqueen had discharged the prisoner Assistant District Attorney Brothers recommended that he be released on the ground of insufficient evidence.

ANTIQUES BRING LOW PRICES.

Society Women Among Purchasers of Early American Furniture.

A number of society people and well-known collectors of early American furniture made many purchases at the sale of old originals at the removal sale of "The Antique Shop," which was held at Clarke's auction rooms, 5 West Forty-fourth Street, yesterday afternoon. The prices were low for the quality of the goods as they have averaged at the different sales this year. J. B. Thomas, one of the collectors, whose name is connected with the work in artistic homes in New York, paid $100 for a hundred-legged table in maple, early American, with the original knobs having unusual features in the turnings, and $97.50 for a maple field bed plain with slender posts.

A mahogany Sheraton secretary with reeded feet and a fan inlay on the roll scroll top went to Mrs. George W. Bacon for $175; Mrs. H. I. Riker paid $150 for a large maple high boy, and $50 for a card table, maple and satin wood, with mahogany inlay; Mrs. F. C. Havemeyer paid $47.50 for an early American Jacobean table with an original oval pine top; Mrs. H. R. Winthrop gave $60 for a mahogany Queen Anne armchair, splat, with Dutch feet in original condition, the same price for its companion, and $80 for a mahogany card or serving table with two columns and claw feet.

Mrs. E. C. Henderson paid $97 for a mahogany bed with slender carved and reeded posts; Mrs. W. Sewell Webb $40 for an armchair with carved urn and splat; C. L. Baldwin, $75 for a large antique mirror with two glasses, columns and balls on top. The total returns for the day were $6,052.

Mrs. Henry Bull, Mrs. Payne Whitney, and Sleeper, the Massachusetts collector of early American furniture, were other purchasers. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

ELEPHANTS HER SECURITY.

Woman Who Is Suing the Circus Gets Writ of Attachment.

Supreme Court Justice Platzek issued yesterday to writ of attachment against fourteen of the elephants of the Barnum & Bailey Circus. The attachment states the value of the elephants at $3,500 each. The writ was applied for by Florence Kennan, a circus rider.

Miss Kennan is suing the circus for $25,000 for the loss of an arm, which was amputated following an accident last Summer at Cleveland, she declares. The circus managers denied last night that they were responsible for the accident which cost Miss Kennan her arm.

Public Service Meter Tests.

In March the Public Service Commission tested 84,978 gas meters. Of these 421 were examined on complaint of the consumers. It was found that 43.4 per cent. of these were too "fast," and 10.5 per cent. too slow. The remainder were within the legal amount of variation. Tests of 120 electric meters were made on complaint of consumers, and it was found that 89.2 per cent. of these were working properly. Five per cent. were too fast and 5.8 per cent. too slow.

Spring Suits
$20.00

"Clothes from Maker to Wearer"
$25 Guaranteed Suits, $15
This is the value that is creating a sensation in clothing centres. People are at a loss to understand how I can sell these suits at $15. I am able to do so because of my manufacturing advantages, and my low rent here on Walker Street.
If the truth of this value were known to every man interested in clothes at this price it would take a store several times the size of my present large establishment to satisfy the demand. Come to Walker Street—I will show you twenty-nine of the smartest Spring styles and over a hundred different beautiful fabrics in rough and smooth effects. I guarantee to satisfy your ideal of a $25 Spring Suit for $15.

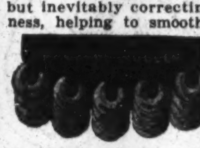
PROF. E. J. MACK'S

MACSAGE ROLLER

For a Natural, Healthy, Live Complexion

The INTENSIFIED massage produced by this patented Multi-ball System (20 balls of York Ivory revolving by pressure against the skin) reaches every hollow and eminence, gradually but inevitably correcting all unevenness, helping to smooth out wrinkles and other blemishes, leaving a normal, healthy skin, soft in texture and attractive in coloring. The MACSAGE ROLLER is far superior to finger massage, which stretches the skin and tends to pull it from the underlying tissues.



The most pronounced double chin will be improved by a daily application of the MACSAGE ROLLER, and massage creams are doubly effective when rubbed into the skin with this wonderful device.

FLUFFY RUFFERS

unscrupulous dealers are attempting to mislead the public by using names so construed as to appear the same article. So many complaints have come to me that I desire to caution my patrons and others that MY FLUFFY RUFFERS can be bought only from me at the address below. ALL OTHERS ARE IMITATIONS.

So many women are experiencing difficulty in dressing their hair becomingly that a brief explanation of the uses and hygienic value of my FLUFFY RUFFERS will be accepted with general relief. FLUFFY RUFFERS are worn under your own hair, giving the full effect of Thick, Natural Abundance, without the aid of any unnatural additions, as rats, rolls, &c. They are made of the Finest, Naturally Wavy Hair, prepared by a secret process, so that they remain Fluffy, Light, Airy and Hygienically Correct, to promote the health and growth of your own hair. The FLUFFY RUFFERS will prove especially beneficial to the woman with thin hair. Price $4 to $15, according to size and color.

MY WONDERFUL HAIR COLORING

The discovery of something DIFFERENT—something BETTER—to many who have the desire to REMAIN younger than gray hair will permit—is of the greatest interest.
